INDUSTRY PUTS JOHNSON IN OWN GOLDFISH BOWL

U. S. Chamber Asks About Future.

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—Smiling and wisecracking, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, the recovery czar, tonight submitted to a public inquisition on the present and prospective policies of his NRA.

His inquisitors were leaders of business from all over the country, assembled in a local hotel for a dinner that climaxed the first day of the 22d annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Gen. Johnson was in fine fettle as he addressed the representatives of industry and commerce briefly on the development of the recovery administration. He interspersed his remarks with typical phrases to the vast pleasure of his audience. Then he announced, somewhat unexpectedly, that he would be glad to answer—if he could—any questions that might be asked.

The Questioning Starts.

For a moment the business leaders hesitated, but once the ice was broken they made the most of their opportunity. It was Charles J. Brand, one time co-administrator of the AAA and a prominent figure in the fertilizer industry, who put the first question to the recovery chieftain.

What, asked Mr. Brand, was the outlook for perpetuation of the NRA? Industry, seeking to regulate itself under codes, was handicapped, he explained, by not knowing whether the NRA would live after June 13, 1935, when the act is scheduled to expire.

The general replied that it would be "rash" for him to predict what parts of the recovery program would be retained and what parts would be eliminated. He personally favored letting the license provision of the act die, but he had no assurance that President Roosevelt agreed with him. In any event, he assured Mr. Brand, there would be some adequate mechanism to carry on after the NRA, as it now stands, passes on.

How About Price Policies?

Question No. 2 had to do with price policies, and the general answered that as far as he was concerned he still believed the only safe ground was a system of open price posting. Danger lay in selling below cost in cutthroat competition, he said, and there was equal danger in fixed prices with crystalized profits.

From then on the business men plied him with detailed inquiries near to their own interests. They brought from him an admission that "there is no doubt in the world that there has been a lapse in public interest and enthusiasm."

A new campaign to make the nation Blue Eagle conscious was now being mapped, he told his listeners, and soon will be launched.

Pledges Better Results.

He promised also "better results than you have been getting" when a representative of the small retail merchants asked him about enforcement of the code on nonobserving competitors in the smaller retail lines.

It was this question, however, which brought from the NRA leader the sharpest and most evasive reply.

"Which has been the most loyal to the NRA—industry or organized labor?"

"They have been equally, both ways," was his instant retort, and even those who had hoped for a more direct answer roared with laughter.

Hears Point of Anxiety.

A moment later he heard another question that reflected the anxiety industry is feeling over the power of labor under the recovery administration:

"Does operation of the industrial recovery act in your opinion lead ultimately to the unionization of all industry?"

Under the statute he was commissioned to administer, the general replied, he had no authority whatever over the activities of organized labor. The act granted labor certain rights, and he was not empowered to depart from the language of the act "one dot or tittle." But he expressed his own "personal private opinion" that the ideal relationship between labor and management had been worked out in the bituminous coal industry.

Differences More Acute.

Gen. Johnson frankly admitted in his opening remarks that the controversy between labor and industry under the NRA is becoming more acute.

"As the umpire in that controversy," he declared, "I expected pop bottles to be thrown—and I've had

DEMAND SENATE EXPEL OVERTON AND HUEY LONG

Women of Louisiana Prefer Charges.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—Charges that Senator Huey P. Long and his political satellite, Senator John H. Overton, were "tarred and tainted with fraud" and unfit to occupy senate seats were made today before the senate committee on privileges and elections.

The occasion marked the opening of hearings to determine what shall be done concerning the demand for the ousting of the two Louisiana senators made upon the senate by the women's committee of Louisiana.

It is the first time in congressional history that action looking to the possible disqualification of a senate member has been taken without the presentation of a formal resolution by some individual senator or senate committee and solely on the strength of a petition by a citizens' group.

Feeling Against Long Rises.

Chairman Walter F. George [Dem., Ga.] did not need to explain this unique feature in order to make the session significant. The very fact of the committee's sitting spoke of the desire among numerous members of the Democratic leadership to find any sort of legitimate excuse to get rid of the Louisiana "Kingfish." A growing sentiment, while willing to let Senator Overton remain, is determined to be rid of Huey Long.

Long's recent political misfortunes in his home state have resulted from an interplay of cause and effect. They have encouraged the spread of the anti-Long movement in Washington by allaying the fears of certain senators that Long might step over state boundary lines, as he did in the last Arkansas senatorial election, and make trouble for his political enemies. They have encouraged Postmaster General Farley, as master of patronage for the administration, to discipline Long by turning a deaf ear to his demands for jobs.

Huey's Power Wanes.

The waning power of the Long machine has in turn been the result in large part of events in Washington. Long's rebellion against the President, increasing rumors that he might be ousted from his seat, and his inability to get his henchmen jobs on the government pay roll have turned the voters more and more against him, according to reports from Louisiana.

The charges brought before the senate committee today by Mrs. Hilda Phelps Hammond on behalf of the women's committee are actually the summation of the demands for unseating Senators Long and Overton made by the numerous Louisiana factions hostile to the Long organization. For better effect the political groups fighting Long are remaining in the background and leaving the stage appearances to the women headed by Mrs. Hammond, a sister of one of the owners of the New Orleans Times-Picayune, anti-Long newspaper.

Appearing before the committee as counsel for the women's committee was Gen. Samuel T. Ansell, wartime acting judge advocate general.

Expect to Prove Fraud.

"We expect," said Gen. Ansell, in his opening statement, "to prove the charge that there was fraud in the 1932 Louisiana primaries sufficient to vitiate the election of Senator Overton; that Senator Overton was an active perpetrator of that fraud; that Senators Overton and Long were designers and instigators of that fraud."

Gen. Ansell was formerly counsel for the special senate committee which investigated the Overton election. It was he whom Senator Long attacked in a violent speech on the senate floor during which the senator boasted that he would waive all claim to immunity.

When Gen. Ansell sued for libel, however, Long pleaded his senatorial privilege. An appeal to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals resulted in an order that Long make answer to the suit, which is still pending.

Press Charges Against Both.

It has been the thought of those anxious to unseat Long, but to allow Overton to remain, that charges should be directed at Long's alleged intimidation of witnesses during the special campaign committee hearings in New Orleans. But Gen. Ansell's opening argument indicated the intention of those behind him to press the charges against both Long and Overton.

He would seek to prove, when the time for testimony came, that Overton, in conspiracy with Long and others in the Long organization, was an active perpetrator of fraud in the primaries in which he was elected over the then incumbent, former Sena-

Hope for Rain Today to End Long Drouth

Some hope that the long continued drouth which, with abnormally high temperatures, has prevented the germination of grass seeds and the normal leaving out of shrubs in the Chicago area would be broken today was held out in the official weather forecast. The temperature reached 80 degrees yesterday, the highest of the year.

Generally fair skies, with continued high temperatures, are expected during the day, but showers are forecast for this evening or tomorrow. Forecaster C. A. Donnel, however, was not optimistic that the rains would be heavy enough to undo much of the harm the long continued dry spell has caused.

Rain May Be on Way.

"There have been some rains in the far southwest and in Dakota in the last twenty-four hours," he said, "but they have been spotty. In a few places in Texas the precipitation was heavy; generally, as in Oklahoma, it was quite light. But there should be showers in the heart of the midwest by tomorrow night.

"We will undoubtedly have shower conditions, but we cannot say this far ahead whether there will be any heavy rain. The result might be only a light sprinkle."

One of the principal fears of the farmers in Chicagoland is that the subsoil moisture will be found wanting when hot summer weather arrives. Experiments made in spading up patches of soil yesterday showed that the earth was crumbly and dry to a depth of many inches. Streams in central Illinois have already fallen to a level normal for August.

Dry Spring Sets Record.

Since Jan. 1 there has been a deficiency in Chicagoland rainfall amounting to 5.73 inches. Putting the matter in another way, only 3.89 inches has fallen in more than four months, while the normal precipitation for the period would have been 9.62 inches. The spring thus far has been the driest on record.

City lawns and parks, as well as golf courses, are feeling the lack of moisture.

Forecaster Donnel said there was no way to estimate whether an abnormally dry spring would be followed by an exceedingly dry or wet summer or merely a normal one.

"May could be a month of heavy precipitation," he said. "So could June, July, and August. Or they could be the reverse. Dry springs in the past have been followed by various conditions. We may guess that the lack of rain will eventually be made up, but it might take several years to do it."

Iowa's Crops Periled.

Des Moines, Ia., May 2.—[Special.]—With the exception of the northeastern area, where heavy winter snows and early spring rains stored up enough moisture to tide the farm lands over the unseasonable drouth, Iowa today is on the verge of suffering immense crop losses due to the unprecedented lack of rain.

Planting of corn is being delayed because of the fear it will not germinate in the parched soil, and early oat crops are reported uneven over the state due to the series of dust storms which have piled tons of fine earth along drift fences and roadways.

2 Pickpockets Freed by Jury; Judge Amazed

A jury in Judge Francis B. Allegretti's Criminal court last night freed two well known pickpockets after five minutes of deliberation. The surprise verdict caused Judge Allegretti to announce from the bench that some of the "fictions of the law" should be abolished so that jurors will not be fooled into turning well known criminals loose.

John Cummings, 53 years old, who has a record dating back to 1901, and William Feldman, 43, whose record starts in 1915, were the defendants liberated by the jury. Cummings has been arrested at least 26 different times in almost every city in the country, while Feldman's sheet shows 49 arrests, starting in Pittsburgh in 1915. However, because the law prohibits the prosecution from disclosing the police records, the defendants appeared before the jury as men never before arrested.

Defense Lawyers Rebuked.

After the jury returned its verdict Judge Allegretti summoned Defense Attorneys James M. Burke and George Crane before him. The jurors were first sent from the room.

"Now tell me honestly, are you two lawyers proud of this verdict," said the judge. "These men are well known pickpockets who should be in the penitentiary."

The defense attorneys replied they only presented to the jury the defense of an alibi as told to them by the defendants themselves.

"This verdict is the result of the peculiar system under which we must work in these courts," continued Judge Allegretti. "It would not be fair to censure this jury, because as far as they could determine the defendants were decent, respectable citizens appearing before them as victims of a mistaken identity."

Citizen Traps Pair.

Walter H. Fraas, 641 Wrightwood avenue, the victim of pickpockets three times in a year, left the courtroom a very disappointed man, so he told Assistant State's Attorney Richard B. Austin.

After his second experience Fraas turned sleuth and arranged a trap to capture the thieves. He wrapped up some papers to appear as a roll of bills. He tied a piece of twine to the paper roll and pinned the end to the bottom end of his pocket. The other end of the twine was pinned to the upper end of his pocket so that when the pickpocket put his hand in the pocket it would entangle him sufficiently in the rope to notify Fraas.

The trap worked, he testified, when on March 21 Feldman took the fake roll and an envelope containing $3. Fraas said Feldman was caught in the trap long enough so that he obtained a good look at him and was able to identify him when he was captured.

Electric Rates Ordered Cut in 321 Suburbs

A temporary reduction in electricity rates of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, which will effect an annual saving of some $1,300,000 to users, was ordered yesterday by the Illinois commerce commission.

Reductions were ordered in service to residential and commercial users, and in rates for municipal street lighting, the reductions ranging from 8 to 15 per cent, depending on the class of service.

Reductions to residential users will average approximately 11.8 per cent to some 228,675 customers, and will aggregate a saving of about $1,055,000. The Public Service Company covers a territory in the suburbs of some 6,000 square miles, comprising 321 communities. Among the consumers affected are 9,289 farms which use electricity.

I. C. C. Making Inquiry.

The lower rates were ordered pending the completion of an investigation now being conducted by the commerce commission to determine permanent rates.

A householder's light bill which averaged $2.30 a month under the old rates would be cut to $2.04 by the new rates, it was estimated by the commerce commission's experts. A monthly bill of $4 would be cut to $3.63, and a bill that averaged $8.20 a month would be cut to $6.68 if the consumption of electricity remained the same.

The Public Service company was cited a year ago to show cause why its rates should not be reduced. In informal conferences which followed, the company voluntarily made slight reductions which saved power customers $300,000 a year. The revision, however, was not satisfactory to the commission.

According to the commission, the temporary order will yield the Public Service company a return of approximately 6.5 per cent. The company contended its properties were worth $150,000,000 as a basis for rate fixing. The commission attorneys asserted a fair valuation would be $125,000,000.

Exercise of Summary Power.

"While the hearings are still not completed, the commission has heard enough evidence to be convinced that a rate reduction is in order," Chairman Benjamin F. Lindheimer said last night. "If the commission were to delay the order until it had completed every detail of the investigation the rate payers would be denied relief by way of reductions just that much longer.

"The Illinois legislature at the last regular session gave to this commission the power to enter temporary orders compelling forthwith rate reductions in cases where the commission finds that a utility is earning more than a fair return."

CHICAGO HOUSE MEMBERS FORM SCHOOL BILL PLAN

Washington, D. C., May 2.—(AP)—Chicago congressmen were formulating a plan tonight whereby the Reconstruction Finance corporation act would be amended to the liking of the administration so that the Chicago school board could procure enough money to pay the back salaries of its long unpaid employés.

Representative A. J. Sabath [Dem., Ill.], a leader in the house, was pictured by Robert Keenan of the Chicago division of the Illinois Teachers' association as being prepared to offer an amendment which would make it possible for the RFC to loan not in excess of 100 million dollars to needy school districts throughout the country.

The decision to attack the long pending problem from a different direction followed a conference held with Chairman Jesse Jones of the RFC. Attending the meeting were Sabath, Keenan, and Representatives Kelly, Beam, Schuetz, Kocialkowski, all Democrats, of Chicago, and Brennan, Democrat, of Bloomington.

FIND CAR; TRACE GANG'S FLIGHT AFTER BATTLE

The hunt for John Dillinger and his outlaw gang was concentrated in the Chicago area last night after the discovery here earlier in the day of a bloodstained automobile abandoned by the gang.

Special details of Chicago police, acting for federal agents, spread through the city, seeking to pick up the oft lost trail of the desperadoes.

The gangsters' automobile was found yesterday afternoon in front of 3333 North Leavitt street. It had been standing there since 2 o'clock Tuesday morning, residents of the neighborhood said.

Abandoned Car Identified.

The car, a Ford V-8 sedan, was identified as the one taken from Roy P. Francis, district manager for a power company, near South St. Paul, Minn., on April 23, a day after the gangsters had escaped from a trap set by federal agents at the Little Bohemia resort, on Spider lake, near Mercer, Wis.

From evidence found in the automobile the police were convinced that Dillinger and some of his men had been making Chicago the base of their operations since the night of April 23.

There were bloodstains and emergency surgical kits on the seats of the car, supporting the belief of the authorities that some of the gangsters had been shot in an encounter with deputy sheriffs at St. Paul Park. This battle followed gun fights near Mercer, in which a federal agent and a civilian conservation corps worker were slain and four other men were wounded.

Francis' Card in Auto.

There was no question about the identification of the car, the police said. In it they discovered a lether holder containing the driver's license card of Francis. This gave Francis' address as 356 3d avenue, South St. Paul.

Other articles found in the machine enabled the authorities to trace the route of the gangsters' flight from northern Wisconsin to Chicago. The first of these were several packets of matches bearing the name of Emil Wanatka, proprietor of the Little Bohemia resort.

The matches apparently were in the pockets of the fugitives when they escaped the federal agents' trap on April 22, kidnaped a Spider lake resident, and forced him to drive them toward St. Paul. The trail led through Park Falls, Wis., where they stopped for gasoline and dropped the abducted driver.

Seize Sedan from Francis.

Early in the afternoon of April 23 Francis, riding with his wife and baby near South St. Paul, was halted by three gunmen who had just escaped from the battle with the deputies at nearby St. Paul Park. Seizing the Francis sedan, the desperadoes speeded south. They are believed to have been Dillinger and two companions.

The next bit of evidence was a copy of a Dubuque newspaper, the Telegraph Herald, dated April 23, which was found yesterday in the stolen Francis car. A headline on the newspaper's front page read, "Dillinger on Rampage." The paper, police said, indicated that the gang had followed U. S. highway 61 from South St. Paul to Dubuque and there had sought a news stand.

From Dubuque the fugitives turned east toward Chicago in U. S. highway 20. This was established, the police said, because on the abandoned automobile they found a set of Illinois license plates which had been stolen from the car of Dr. E. E. Shelly of Freeport, Ill., between 7 and 8 o'clock on the night of April 23.

Minnesota Plates Gone.

The Minnesota license plates used by Francis had been removed. A physician's insignia, which Dr. Shelly had attached to his license plates, was also found on the Dillinger car.

All this chain of evidence, the investigators said, indicated that the gang arrived in Chicago on the night of April 23.

Since Francis' automobile was taken early that afternoon the gangsters could have covered the 324 miles from South St. Paul to Freeport and stolen Dr. Shelly's license plates during the evening. The automobile trip could have been accomplished at breakneck speed and without much danger of immediate detection because the search for the outlaws was centered in the Wisconsin backwoods and in the St. Paul area.

From Freeport the fleeing gangsters could have speeded the 105 miles to Chicago and arrived here late at night.

Throughout the trip from South St.

Paul and since then the gangsters apparently were prepared for war, the police said. The rear window of the car had been removed to give the fugitives free play for their machine guns and shotguns in the event of pursuit. Two empty .45 caliber shells were found on the front seat.

Ralph Moore, fingerprint expert of the police bureau of identification, was examining the automobile last night when the roof caught fire from a match he had lighted. The blaze was put out hurriedly. Moore said the roof had been saturated with an inflammable material, and that apparently the gangsters had planned to burn the car when they abandoned it.

Discovery of the Car.

The abandoned automobile was discovered by Sergts. Edward Grim and James Dyer and Patrolman Francis Gleason of the Damen avenue station, who were cruising in a squad car. Sergt. Frank Reynolds and federal agents, who later viewed the machine, found that only three gallons of gasoline remained in the tank. This led to the belief that the gangsters had abandoned the car because they feared it would not carry them far enough in the event of a chase. It was pointed out that the car had been abandoned early in the morning at which time few filling stations were open.

Special police details immediately began a search of the district where the car was found.

During the night the radius of the search was lengthening. The authorities believed that Dillinger and his men might have fled the area where the car was discovered, but were certain that the gangsters were to be found in Chicago or its vicinity.

Recent Reports Recalled.

Reports within the last few days that Dillinger or members of his band were in the Chicago area appeared fully confirmed by the finding of the automobile. It is believed that the gangsters have established a hideout in the city and have made quick trips to nearby towns, returning to the hideout after these forays.

The first indication that Dillinger probably was in the Chicago area came on April 26 when an attendant in a filling station in South Bend told police that a man he believed to be the gangster had stopped at the station to get gasoline.

That night James Nichols, a waiter in a Chicago restaurant at 3202 Broadway, told the Town Hall police that a man who he was certain was Dillinger appeared at the restaurant with two women and had a meal. They then left in a taxicab, Nichols said. Dillinger maintained a hideaway in the Town Hall district last fall and police believed at the time of Nichols' report that if the desperado was in the city he would be in that district.

Villa Park Bank Robbed.

On April 27 the Villa Park Trust and Savings bank in Villa Park, just west of Chicago, was robbed by five gunmen, one of whom was identified by bank employés as Dillinger's lieutenant, Homer Van Meter. Although Dillinger was not one of the bandits, according to the employés, police believed last night that he had planned the holdup. The gunmen took $6,000 in the robbery.

Six men, arrested by the Michigan state police yesterday afternoon, were viewed in the jail at Paw Paw, Mich., last night by Frank Chancellor, one of the Villa Park bank's employés. He said that three of the six looked a little like the robbers. Five of the men, all from Melrose Park, say they are John Blair, 1011 North 17th avenue; Michael Gerrico, 113 21st street; James De Grazia, 121 22d street; George Baugadis, 2410 Lake street, and Rocco Pranno, 130 North 20th street. The sixth is Joseph Leopoldi, 828 South Racine avenue. All denied any connection with the robbery.

Reported in Indiana Same Day.

The day of the Villa Park holdup Dillinger was reported to have been seen in Fort Wayne and in Sullivan, Ind. The next day the search for Dillinger and Van Meter was pressed in Fort Wayne in the belief that the men might have visited Van Meter's relatives there.

On April 28 north shore police entered the hunt when they were informed that a man resembling Dillinger had been seen in an automobile speeding through Wilmette.

The next supposed appearance of Dillinger was at St. Charles and Mannheim roads in Bellwood last Monday. Three Bellwood policemen saw four men at the intersection in an automobile similar to the one found yesterday.

Three Policemen Menaced.

The policemen, Joseph Hagneister, Gus Nendze, and Harry Wayland, pursued the automobile in their squad car. The gangsters halted in a filling station at Roosevelt and Mannheim roads in Hillside and ordered the attendant to give them gasoline.

The attendant was complying when the policemen arrived. One of the gangsters, identified as Dillinger, menaced the police with a machine gun. The policemen were then disarmed, and as the gangsters were leaving the man resembling Dillinger struck Wayland with the machine gun, knocking him to the ground.

The hunt for Dillinger has been centered in the middle west since his escape from the Crown Point jail last March 3. He is under indictment for the murder of a policeman in an East Chicago bank robbery, which took place before his capture last January in Arizona with other members of his gang.

While the search for the gangsters proceeded, federal authorities were awaiting the action of the federal grand jury in St. Paul, which is expected to return indictments today charging John J. [Boss] McLaughlin and three others held here with conspiracy in connection with the kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, last January.

Alvin Karpis and Arthur [Doc] Barker, Dillinger allies, are sought as the actual kidnapers of the banker. McLaughlin yesterday denied that he had confessed to handling $53,000 of the $200,000 ransom paid for Bremer's release.

Woman Held in $60,000.

St. Paul, Minn., May 2.—[Special.]—Evelyn Frechette, sweetheart of John Dillinger, pleaded not guilty to charges of harboring the gangster when she was arraigned today before Federal Judge M. M. Joyce. Her bail was set at $60,000 over the protests of her attorneys.

Probable Route of Dillinger Flight

Map shows probable course of Dillinger gang's flight after gun battle near Mercer, Wis., to Chicago, where blood stained automobile was found abandoned yesterday. No. 1—North Spider lake, where gang escaped trap April 22. No. 2—Where the car of Roy F. Francis was stolen. No. 3—Where Dillinger bought a local newspaper. No. 4—Where license plates were stolen from Dr. E. E. Shelly, and No. 5—Where car was abandoned. Stars indicate towns in which Dillinger or his gunmen were reported seen after their supposed arrival in Chicago the night of April 23.

5 TRUCK DRIVERS GIVE UP TOTAL OF $160 TO ROBBERS

Two armed men last evening held up and robbed five truck drivers on the northwest side, taking a total of $160. The victims were Haschal P. Miller, 5225 Byron street, who gave up $30 at Wabansia and Menard avenues; Stephen Humanski, 1225 North Western avenue, robbed of $35 at Lockwood avenue and Henderson street; Charles Fosewit, 3429 Hirsch street, who surrendered $20 in front of 615 North Drake avenue; Clyde Waterman, 1260 North Dearborn street, forced to hand over $30 at 1805 North Mayfield avenue, and Benjamin Berland, 917 Independence boulevard, robbed of $45 at 2004 North Avers avenue.

MISS HEPBURN'S HUSBAND AGREES TO HER DIVORCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MERIDA, Yucatan, Mexico, May 2.—Katharine Hepburn, the American movie actress, will be awarded a decree of divorce from Ludlow Ogden Smith of New York within three or four days. This was learned here today.

Miss Hepburn appeared before the judge of the second civil court of Merida on April 30 in a suit for divorce on the ground of incompatibility of characters. A local attorney, Francisco Arcovedo Guillermo, acted on instructions from Smith to accept the divorce and gave his consent for the case to be closed after the hearing.

Miss Hepburn left today by air line for Havana and Miami. The official decree of divorce will be transmitted by mail.

[Miss Hepburn reached Miami last night. She refused to discuss her marital affairs.]

IOWA FIXES GUNS SO THEY'RE NOT WORTH STEALING

Des Moines, Ia., May 2.—(AP)—Rifles and automatic pistols in all Iowa National Guard armories temporarily have been made incapable of firing by order of Adjt. Gen. Grahl, he said today.

The order was issued as a precautionary measure in connection with an epidemic of thefts from armories throughout the country by criminal gangs seeking firearms.

Bank Cashier Is Robbed of His Auto and $75

E. L. Jarl, 1530 Thorndale avenue, an assistant cashier of the First National Bank of Chicago, was robbed of $75 and his automobile by a man armed with a sawed-off shotgun in the alley in the rear of his home last night. Jarl had just stopped in front of his garage when the robber appeared out of the darkness and ordered him to hand over his money. The gunman then drove away with the car.

KIDNAPED GIRL STILL MISSING AFTER A WEEK

$15,000 Ransom Money Ignored by Abductors.

Tucson, Ariz., May 2.—(AP)—June Robles, kidnaped a week ago today, still is missing.

The ransom demanded—$15,000 in notes of small denomination—is ready and relatives awaited acceptance by her abductors of their offer to pay for the child's safe return.

Bernabe Robles, white haired grandfather of June; Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Robles, her parents, and others of the intimate family circle grimly kept their own counsel in furtherance of their promise of secrecy to the kidnapers.

Rumors Prove False.

No inkling as to whether a reply had been received to the family's appeal and ransom offer, made two days ago, was allowed to escape.

Information from reliable sources was that June's relatives were convinced she is not dead.

Investigation of a report that the 73 year old wealthy grandfather had gone back to Sonora to continue searches he pursued there Sunday and Monday found the grizzled veteran of frontier days secluded in his home.

Money Ready for Them.

Further rumors that the $15,000 ransom was not available, and that negotiations had started in hopes of reducing the amount, met prompt denial.

The only information confidential family spokesmen did allow to get out was that the money not only was available but was ready and waiting in the form demanded by the kidnapers in the ransom note delivered to Fernando Robles two hours after his daughter disappeared—currency in $5, $10, and $20 denominations.

DOG REVIVED FROM DEATH TO WALK AGAIN

Berkeley, Cal., May 2.—(AP)—The dog which Dr. Robert E. Cornish revived from a clinical death 19 days ago is going to learn to walk again with a "creeper," the young scientist announced today.

Dr. Cornish said the dog has tried to walk but apparently has lost the use of its legs. The "creeper" he said, will be modeled after the type used for children to aid the animal in supporting itself.

The dog's brain is still numb, Dr. Cornish said and added: "We know this—that if its brain does restore it will have no memory of the intervening period."

GOV. LAFFOON REJECTS SOLDIER GUARDS AS THREATS ARE TOLD

Frankfort, Ky., May 2.—(AP)—"There are no guards around the mansion and there won't be any," Gov. Ruby Laffoon said tonight in announcing he had overruled Adjt. Gen. Henry H. Denhardt, who had ordered the governor's mansion guarded because of threatening letters received by the chief executive.

The governor said he had no fears for his own safety, and had instructed Gen. Denhardt to post the guards assigned him at the state reformatory, strengthening the guard there lest an attempt be made to free Neal Bowman, Ohio fugitive charged with two murders in Kentucky.

"All I need is a few minutes' notice if any one makes an attempt on my life," Gov. Laffoon said, "and I will outrun them in spite of my game leg."

PLANE WITH 19 ABOARD FORCED DOWN; ALL SAFE

New York, May 2.—(AP)—One of 15 passengers was slightly hurt tonight as an American Airways plane, bound from Buffalo to Newark, N. J., made a forced landing on the beach of Staten Island in a New York harbor fog.

The ship, piloted by Ernest Basham, circled over the metropolitan area for an hour before its gas ran out and the pilot, after dropping flares, brought his ship down safely on the beach.

Perry Wurst of the M. & T. Trust company, Buffalo, N. Y., was treated for slight cuts on the forehead by an ambulance surgeon. Wurst was thrown forward in his seat when the plane landed and cut his forehead on the seat before him.

The ship, second section of the regular Chicago to New York run, arrived in Buffalo 15 minutes late and took off for Newark at 5:55 p. m.

STEAMSHIP LATE; WARSHIPS, SHARK GIVEN AS REASON

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—The steamship Santa Lucia of the Grace line arrived 30 hours late today on her trip from California. The ship was delayed by the passage of the U. S. warships through the Panama canal and a collision with a 45 foot whale shark in the Caribbean sea.

Bees Besiege Family; Paint Was Mixed with Syrup

Pittsfield, Mass., May 2.—(AP)—Frank Wilson and his family are besieged in their house by a great swarm of bees. A crew of house painters gets the blame. In mixing their paint they used three gallons of maple syrup instead of linseed oil in similar cans that stood nearby.

JURY TO DECIDE RARE PLEA OF MARTIN INSULL

Abatement Proceeding to Be Heard May 16.

A jury will be chosen May 16 to consider a plea of abatement of the embezzlement indictments against Martin J. Insull, former president of the billion dollar Middle West Utilities company and brother of Samuel Insull. This was decided yesterday at a hearing before Judge James F. Fardy of the Criminal court.

The calling of a jury on a plea in abatement is a rare proceeding. It was explained that certain questions of fact will be submitted to the jury, and on its findings, the court will render a decision on the legal questions involved.

Yesterday's hearing, which is the third since Martin Insull was returned to Chicago from Canada to face prosecution in the state court, lasted only five minutes. Insull, quietly dressed and genial in countenance, spoke no word. He stood throughout the proceedings beside his counsel, John E. Northup.

Court Told State Is Ready.

Assistant State's Attorney John O'Hora told Judge Fardy that the state was ready to proceed with the trial immediately. Attorney Northup asked for the continuance, asserting that he had not quite completed preparations, and that one of his associates in the case was out of town. He promised to be ready on the 16th.

The plea of abatement which was entered by Attorney Northup on April 7 is intended to quash the indictments against Insull. It is based upon two counts which the defense has set up, and which the state must oppose before the trial proper can begin.

In the first count it is charged that the grand jury which voted the indictments on Oct. 4, 1932, was illegally drawn. It is questions of fact concerning the drawing of the grand jury which will be submitted to a jury on May 16. The recent decision of the state Supreme court holding that the method of choosing the Cook county grand jury, used prior to April, 1934, was contrary to statute, was cited in the defense count. The court is now reconsidering this ruling upon application of State's Attorney Courtney.

Hits Court Location.

The second count charges that the criminal courts are not located in the area prescribed by the constitution of 1870. The constitution says that the courts shall be located in an area bounded by Lake Michigan, Kinzie street, Van Buren street, and Franklin street. The courthouse where the indictment was voted and where the trial will be held is at 26th street and California avenue. This plea has been raised in other cases and always been overruled.

The defendant, who is 65 years old, is facing trial in the state courts on three indictments, two of them in which he is co-defendant with his brother, and the third in which he is named alone. The latter indictment, charging him with embezzling $377,720 from the Middle West Utilities company to protect his personal brokerage accounts, is the one upon which he will be tried before Judge Fardy.

Push Samuel Insull Prosecution.

Meanwhile, preparations for the prosecution of Samuel Insull in the federal courts, continued apace yesterday. Special Assistant United States Attorney Forest A. Harness, and United States Attorney Dwight Green, who will prosecute Samuel Insull, took several witnesses expected to testify against the former utilities magnate, before the federal grand jury.

They said that this was done to get the testimony of these witnesses on record. Then they announced that any federal witness who might seek to avoid appearance in court against Insull would be prosecuted for obstructing justice if it became necessary.

No date for the trial of Samuel Insull has been set, but Prosecutor Green announced that he would request an early trial and protest against any attempt by the defense to delay the case.

'KIDNAPING VICTIM' DIES BY POISON ON WAY TO THE SCENE

Phoenix, Ariz., May 2.—(AP)—Authorities pondered tonight whether the suicide of William Lindstrom as he rode in a sherif's office automobile had sealed his lips against some disclosure.

Lindstrom, 65 year old mining man, came to the sherif's office yesterday with a story he had just been released by abductors who he asserted had kept him in a shack near Coolidge for 20 days.

Officers were taking him to Coolidge to investigate his story when he died. It was established today death had been caused by poison. The deputies said they had stopped at a service station at Lindstrom's request, and he took a drink of water. Two poison capsules were found in his pockets.

NAZIS TO PUNISH CRITICISM WITH DEATH PENALTY

New High Court Created to Crush Opposition.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 2.—A new and powerful instrument to exterminate the last shred of opposition and "treasonable activities" was created by the Nazi government today in the shape of a "people's court," which deprives the Supreme court of the most important part of its work. The People's court is vested with supreme powers.

Only two of its five judges need be lawyers. Three others may be laymen. They are all to be picked by Chancellor Hitler upon the suggestion of the Nazi minister of justice.

Provides Severe Punishment.

New legislation was announced enabling the People's court to mete out more severe punishment than any of its predecessors for "high treason and treasonable activities."

Death sentences are provided not only for high treason but also for attempts "to deprive the president, chancellor, or any other member of the cabinet of his constitutional power or to prevent him from using it."

Death awaits the traitor who seeks in relations with governments of foreign countries to abuse power entrusted to him or who seeks to draw up an organization against the government undermining the morale of the reichswehr [army] or police.

Death for Criticism.

Persons "seeking to influence the masses through writings, gramophone records, or pictures" may also be sentenced to death.

Members of the People's court are to be nominated for five years and their decisions will be final.

The Supreme court at Leipzig will henceforth act only as a Supreme Court of Appeal and a Preliminary court for "state offenses." The Leipzig court incurred the Nazi wrath when, despite pressure, it acquitted the German communist, Ernst Torgler, and three Bulgarian communists of the charge of setting fire to the reichstag building a year ago last February.

The new court will allow an accused person to pick a lawyer who, however, must be approved by the court.

8 Reds Sentenced to Death.

The Hamburg court today sentenced eight communists to death on charges of terrorism during 1932 and 1933.

The state of Mechlenburg arrested 55 men on charges of communistic activities.

In Augsburg, where the huge Singer hall was destroyed by fire yesterday, 73 persons were arrested on charges of plotting to set the fire.

Rumors persist that Torgler, who was held in prison for months despite his acquittal in the reichstag fire case, has been turned over to Russia and that he has been in Moscow for a week. The Russian embassy, as well as German authorities, assert they know nothing about Torgler's transfer.

FORMER MAYOR'S YACHT DAMAGED BY FIRE IN RIVER

Damage estimated at from $5,000 to $10,000 was caused early today by fire, which broke out on the 200 ton steam yacht Doris, the property of former Mayor Thompson, which has been tied up in the Chicago river alongside the Merchandise Mart since October, 1932.

The craft was covered with a large tarpaulin and it is believed that some passerby tossed a cigaret upon this and caused the fire. The upper portion of the boat was destroyed. Harold Hansen, a watchman, was asleep in a stateroom, but awoke in time to escape unharmed. The flames were put out by the fireboats Illinois and Joseph Medill.

EUROPE HEARS U. S. EMPLOYES FACE HUNGER

GENEVA, Switzerland, May 2.—(AP)—Exaggerated reports, some even alleging the American government employes are "facing starvation," are being sent to some European newspapers in consequence of Washington's tardiness in paying exchange allowances to foreign representatives.

Prentiss B. Gilbert, United States consul here, was understood today to have sent a strongly-worded cablegram to Washington concerning the situation with the hope of hastening official action.

Hoping that the allowances, when paid, will be retroactive, several employés of the American consulate in Geneva, including one or two vice consuls, deposited their salary checks at a local bank without cashing them and borrowed against them as collateral.

AN EDITOR ASKS NAZIS FOR MORE FREEDOM; JAILED

BERLIN, May 2.—(AP)—E. H. M. Welk, editor in chief of the Gruene Post, a weekly devoted to agrarian interests, was taken to a concentration camp today because he wrote an editorial considered hostile to the Nazi administration.

He asserted that it was difficult to get to Propaganda Minister Goebbels because of the many satellites surrounding the official. Therefore, Welk added, he had to write a notice in his paper appealing for a greater freedom of the press.

The Gruene Post was recently suspended for three months by order of the propaganda ministry. It was said then that its editor apparently took too literally a remark attributed to Goebbels that constructive criticism instead of monotonous praise was desired of newspapers.

POPE PIUS PLANS TO MOVE FROM VATICAN TO SUMMER VILLA

VATICAN CITY, May 2.—(AP)—Within a few weeks Pope Pius plans to move from the Vatican, sole residence of popes for 64 years, to the papal summer villa at Castle Gandolfo.

Accompanied by a few high churchmen, a detachment of Swiss guards and papal gendarmes, the 77 year old head of the Catholic church will spend two months or more in the rural villa, which he has visited briefly on three occasions since he became pope, it was learned today.

Church officials say that regular audiences will be held at the villa, and that persons visiting the pope will find excellent public transportation facilities for the 17 mile trip through the scenic hill country. The decision to move the papal residence for the hot months was made partly on the advice of the pope's physicians.

Woman Teacher Buys Car; Robbed of It Same Evening

Miss Arline Ilseman, 4759 North Maplewood avenue, a school teacher, purchased a new automobile in Aurora yesterday. To Aurora with her, to get the car, went two other teachers, Miss Agnes Uvick and Dorothy Boyce of 1850 Humboldt boulevard. They returned with it last night, but as Miss Ilseman stopped before the home of the other teachers two armed men appeared on the curb and took the car and the purses of the trio, containing $6.

CALLS PALESTINE ONLY HAVEN FOR NAZI REFUGEES

McDonald Reports on Colonization Plans.

LONDON, May 2.—(AP)—James G. McDonald, high commissioner, told the council of the high commission for refugees today that Palestine offers the only immediate area of colonization for German refugees—who are mostly Jews—as far as operations on an appreciable scale are concerned.

The head of the league of nations' refugee group said that none of the other many proposed schemes is at present practicable. These involved areas in North and South America and the Mediterranean region of Africa. There were openings in these areas, however, he said, for small groups.

Claims Plight Is Desperate.

McDonald said that the total refugees in April were 63,200 in comparison with 59,300 in December. He asserted their plight is desperate since tens of thousands of refugees are "destitute, homeless, and uncertain of tomorrow."

He pleaded for a more practical and sympathetic consideration by various governments in order to permit refugees to travel, work, and live unmolested. He urged national studies of the underlying causes of friction between racial and religious minorities and the prevailing majority.

Exodus Now Orderly.

The high commissioner said the refugee exodus from Germany now moves in an orderly fashion and is no longer panic-stricken but that conditions of admission into adjacent countries for these people were more severe, causing a need for a change in admission regulation.

Referring to the numerous projects for colonization, McDonald reported that lack of financial arrangements at present hinders the carrying out of such schemes. He indicated, however, that there are more immediate possibilities for agricultural and industrial settlements in Argentina.

Find Jobs for 389 Professors.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 2.—The annual report of the academic assistance council of the league of nations, issued tonight, shows that jobs were found during the year for 389 German professors. Of these, 58 were placed in the United States, 178 in the British Isles, 41 in France, 33 in Turkey, and 26 in Holland.

VERDICT ON CROSSING DEATH.

Accidental death was the verdict returned by a coroner's jury yesterday in the death of Mrs. Susie Molitoris, 52 years old, 1064 Linden avenue, Wilmette, who was killed by a North Western train at the Linden avenue crossing in Wilmette.

FEDERAL JOBS SET RECORD SINCE 1920; TOTAL NOW 623,559

Washington, D. C., May 2.—(AP)—The largest number of federal executive department and bureau civil employés since 1920, the far end of world war activities, was reported today by the civil service commission for the month of March.

The total was 623,559 workers, as against the wartime peak of 917,760 on Armistice day, Nov. 11, 1918. In 1920 the total was 691,116 on July 31.

The March, 1934, figures showed the following totals employed by so-called emergency agencies:

Home Owners' Loan corporation, 12,527; public works, 3,435; Tennessee Valley authority, 7,196; National Recovery administration, 2,866; emergency conservation work under agriculture, 12,555; Agricultural Adjustment administration, 4,403; emergency construction work under interior, 4,782; emergency construction work under war, 2,773; Emergency Relief administration, 183; Civil Works administration, 391; Federal Surplus Relief corporation, 185.

March, 1933, had a 566,986 total to compare with this year's 623,559, and March, 1932, 609,488.

KERNER'S FLOOD FUND ACCOUNTING SUIT CONCLUDED

Circuit Judge William V. Brothers took under advisement yesterday arguments on a suit brought by Attorney General Kerner asking an accounting of funds collected by a former Republican mayor for the relief of Mississippi flood victims in 1927. The attorney general charged that of the $139,772 collected by donations from the public only $35,846 was spent in actual relief work.

The suit asks that the former mayor be held liable for approximately $72,794 of the funds which were spent in the activities of the Waterway and Flood Control association, to which the remainder of the funds were transferred. Attorney General Kerner asks that this amount, with $31,131 on deposit in the First National bank, be turned over to the Red Cross.

The action brought by Mr. Kerner follows an unsuccessful effort by Charles S. Smith, one of the donors to the fund, whose suit was dismissed in 1932 on the grounds that only the attorney general's office could file such an action.

JOHN GILBERT'S 4TH WIFE ASKS FOR A DIVORCE

Arrogance and Abuse Are Called Reasons.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 2.—[Special.]—A divorce complaint was filed against John Gilbert, screen lover, by his fourth wife, the former Virginia Bruce of the "Follies," in Superior court today. Mrs. Gilbert charged that her husband, whose name originally was John Pringle, was "arrogant, violent, and abusive" to the extent that it constituted mental cruelty.

Gilbert and his fourth wife were married 20 months ago. Previously three divorces marked his matrimonial career, ending marriage with Olivia Burwell, Leatrice Joy, and Ina Claire in turn.

Mrs. Gilbert states in her formal complaint that during their entire married life the actor repeatedly belittled her intelligence and her ability in the presence of friends and members of her family. Miss Bruce is 23 years old, Gilbert 36.

Insisted She Stay Home.

He insisted, moreover, she declared in her signed complaint, that she should remain at home at all times. If she attended a matinée or other afternoon entertainment he became abusive and violent, she declared.

Her separation came only after Gilbert ordered her on three occasions to leave his home, suggesting she obtain a divorce in Reno. Another item listed by Mrs. Gilbert to support her charge of mental cruelty was that her husband countermanded any orders she might give to their servants.

"I do not expect any sensational case or contest, providing no charges are made that make it necessary to defend my client," said Peyton H. Moore, attorney for Gilbert. "They are not fighting and still talk to each other over the telephone."

Gets $400 a Month.

A property settlement was reported to have been made out of court providing more than $50,000 for Mrs. Gilbert, in addition to $400 a month for three years for her maintenance and $200 for that of their 9 month old daughter, Susan Ann.

Gilbert and Miss Bruce filed notice of intention to wed in Los Angeles Aug. 6, 1932, a few hours after an interlocutory decree of divorce obtained from Gilbert by Miss Claire was made final on Gilbert's application. On Aug. 10, in a ceremony in his studio dressing room, Gilbert and Miss Bruce were wed. The date had been set by Gilbert in a telegram to his fiancée four hours earlier.

The following month Miss Bruce canceled her contract as a featured actress at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film studio, declaring she was retiring to private life to devote herself to Gilbert.

First Wed in 1917.

Gilbert's first marriage to Miss Burwell, an extra girl in Hollywood, was in March, 1917, and was dissolved in 1922. His second wife, Miss Joy, film star, whom he married in March, 1922, obtained a divorce May 28, 1925. She accused him of being too much the "man about town."

The third Mrs. Gilbert, who was the actress, Miss Claire, before their plane trip to Las Vegas, Nev., and subsequent marriage there, on May 9, 1929, charged mental cruelty in her divorce suit.

Corinne Griffith Divorced.

El Paso, Tex., May 2.—(AP)—Corinne Griffith, Hollywood film actress, obtained a divorce from Walter Mitchell Morosco, a screen producer, at Juarez, Mexico, today.

Salvador Franco Urias, Jurez divorce attorney, represented Miss Griffith. He said both parties consented to the divorce. No specific grounds were given. These are not necessary in a mutual consent action.

Morosco was named as Mitchell in the suit. He flew to El Paso from Los Angeles, arriving here early today.

ARTISTS VIE ON NEW PARK SEAL; $100 IS PRIZE

City-Wide Contest Opened by Board.

A contest for the selection of the official seal of the new consolidated Chicago park district was opened yesterday to all artists and designers in the city. The announcement was made by Robert J. Dunham, president of the district, who is offering a $100 prize which he will pay to the winner.

Mr. Dunham conferred with Robert Harshe, director of the Art institute. Mr. Harshe said he would name a committee to carry on the contest and judge the works offered. The entries are to be sent to the Art institute and must be in by May 15.

Only One Rule.

Only one limitation was laid down by Mr. Dunham. This was that the seals offered must contain the Latin phrase, "Hortus in urbe," meaning "Garden in a city." The device thus switches around the motto on the seal, "Urbs in horto," the Latin equivalent of "City in a garden."

It was announced the new park commission will make its present headquarters at the Lincoln park administration building. Mr. Dunham announced, however, meetings of the commission would be held at south and west parks and in some of the smaller districts if public delegations from time to time desire it.

Transact First Business.

The new park board, inducted into office Tuesday, began to transact its first real business yesterday with action on bond obligations falling due. Counter-signatures of the new district were placed on orders authorizing the payment of $227,000 in bond principal and interest of the south park board and $160,000 similar obligations of Lincoln park.

Mr. Dunham and the other commissioners decided definitely to follow a parallel jurisdiction with the old park districts until the validity of the new act has finally been tested by the Illinois Supreme court.

New Finance Plan.

All vouchers and checks of the old park districts, which agree to the plan, will be signed jointly by both the consolidated district and the superseded administration.

Edward N. Heinz, newly elected controler of the Chicago park district, was authorized to send out 50 certified accountants to study the cash position of the former districts and bring their audits up to date. The proceedure was held legal in an opinion by Henry Cutler, legal expert on municipal affairs.

2,134,223 VOTES CAST IN ILLINOIS' APRIL PRIMARY

Final figures on the Illinois primaries of April 10, announced yesterday, gave the total Democratic vote in the state as 1,167,977 and the Republican total was 966,246. The total vote for both parties was 2,134,223.

The figures were made public at Springfield after the canvassing board had reviewed the figures transmitted by the county clerks of the 102 counties. Secretary of State Hughes made the announcement.

Downstate the Democrats cast 587,563 votes, a gain of 276,817 over 1932. The Republican total outside Cook county was 578,473, a loss of 177,661 in comparison with the 1932 vote. Taking the state as a whole, the Democratic increase in the two years was 351,204 and the Republican decrease was 348,999.

Survey Shows Debts Burden Schools in 10 Central States

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

A survey of ten central western states disclosed yesterday that public school systems in other communities are struggling under huge burdens of debt which in many cases are the counterpart of conditions in Chicago and downstate Illinois. The root of the trouble lies almost invariably in noncollection of taxes, according to the reports of education officials.

The unpaid teachers, defaulted bonds, and overdue bills are to be found in school districts ranging from Ohio to Nebraska and from Minnesota to Tennessee, the survey showed. In Chicago the teachers are owed salaries for seven and one-half months, while downstate in poorer districts many teachers have been unpaid for two or three years.

Ohio Faces Deficit.

Ohio's public schools are facing a deficit of $19,000,000, according to Joseph W. Fichter, assistant state director of education. Fichter declared that three alternatives were to close the schools until obligations are paid, to default on obligations, or to obtain revenues from new sources of taxation.

"Obviously boards of education cannot go on indefinitly creating deficits," said Fichter. "The state of Ohio cannot afford any longer to delay meeting the situation. Reports indicate many school districts are paying only the interest on bonds this year."

It was estimated that 382,000 public school children in Ohio will have shortened terms this year because of the financial plight.

Michigan Picture Dismal.

A dismal picture of the dilemma faced by Michigan's schools was painted by Dr. Paul Voelker, head of the department of public instruction of that state. In Michigan the delinquent taxes owed to the schools exceed $50,000,000. There are 3,500 less teachers in the state than in 1921, yet the survivors have taken a cut of $28,000,000 in their salaries from the 1930-'31 level.

Defaulted school bonds in Michigan total $5,000,000, and about the same amount in school funds is tied up in closed banks.

Dr. Voelker said departments eliminated by many schools included kindergarten, art, music, domestic science, manual training, and physical education.

Nebraska Economizes.

In Nebraska the situation appeared almost helpless on the basis of figures produced by Charles W. Taylor, state superintendent of schools. Five hundred of the 7,212 school districts of the state are three to five years behind in the collection of taxes and meeting of obligations.

Drastic economy programs, including pay cuts as high as 50 per cent for teachers, have been adopted in Nebraska. Teachers now receive as low as $25 a month in rural schools and $50 in cities and villages. The school revenue of the state dropped from $33,000,000 in 1928-29 to $23,000,000 for the school year of 1932 and 1933.

Drouth Affects Kansas.

W. T. Markham, superintendent of public instruction for Kansas, reported that despite a reduction of $6,000,000 in budgets below the level of last year the rural schools in some of the drouth stricken areas of the southwestern part of the state would probably not be able to open next fall.

The rural teachers of Kansas are receiving an average of 50 per cent lower salaries than were paid five years ago. In the city and rural districts of the state the tax levy totaled approximately $31,000,000 for the school year of 1932-33 and $25,000,000 for the current year. The amount collected five years ago was $42,000,000.

Minnesota Legislation Sought.

A movement is on foot in Minnesota to obtain emergency legislation for schools. Tax delinquency is estimated at 17 per cent. Carroll R. Reed, superintendent of schools in Minneapolis, said teachers have accepted a pay cut of 20 per cent, and the costs of school operation have been cut 25 per cent.

Cuts in valuation left the Minnesota schools in a financial crisis, it was said. In the city of Minneapolis the estimated income of the school system was placed at $6,614,000 for 1934, or $2,134,000 less than the estimated expenditures.

Money Tied Up in Banks.

In Iowa approximately $12,000,000 was tied up in closed banks.

R. C. Williams, superintendent of research in the Iowa state department of public instruction, declared that public school expenditures have been cut between 25 and 30 per cent in the last two years. Even though teachers' salaries generally have been cut, a number of rural districts have been unable to met pay rolls.

Tennessee Issues Bonds.

School authorities in Tennessee contended that the school systems were not operating at a deficit because a $7,500,000 debt was written off through the flotation of a $10,000,000 bond issue. The 1933 legislature, however, reduced school funds by approximately 25 per cent, the cut being felt mainly in salaries.

Missouri has piled up an estimated school tax delinquency of $15,000,000, according to figures released by Charles A. Lee, state superintendent of schools. The average salary of teachers in this state has decreased 35 per cent since 1931.

Last year $1,000,000 worth of teachers' warants were outstanding in Missouri. The federal government has allotted $750,000 this year to pay teachers in Missouri towns of less than 5,000 population.

Wisconsin Teachers Paid.

The Wisconsin legislature felt the pinch at the last session and cut school aid appropriations by $4,515,000. Gov. A. G. Schmedeman, however, declared that no schools have been closed and the teachers have been paid.

Many Wisconsin school districts have incurred debts for the construction of buildings. Funds from the hard liquor tax of $1 a gallon and from a similar tax on beer were set aside to help needy school districts.

In Indiana also state taxes on beer were used for school districts in need of funds. The state has been forced, however, to adopt many economies and not a few schools have been closed with teachers unpaid.

RENAME SALAT AND SOLOMON TO SCHOOL BOARD

Harry Solomon and Joseph J. Salat yesterday were reappointed members of the board of education. Under suspension of the rules, the city council approved the selections submitted by Mayor Kelly. The two men originally were appointed by the late Mayor Cermak to fill vacancies caused by the resignations of President Lewis E. Meyers and Carter Blatchford.

Mayor Kelly also announced appointment of Capt. Elkan C. Voorsanger, 5229 Drexel avenue, as temporary head of the city bureau of compensation. This action followed resignation of former Ald. Frank H. Landmesser as superintendent of the buerau. Capt. Voorsanger is associate manager of the Fidelity company of West Virginia, an annuity concern. It is his first political appointment.

Boat Held Captive by Ice 65 Hours; Breaks Through

Sault Ste Marie, Mich., May 2.—[Special.]—The steamer Hamonic, held captive in the solid ice of White Fish bay for 65 hours, today smashed through the ice barrier at Iroquois point and this afternoon was reported past White Fish point with clear sailing ahead. The Hamonic is followed by the Assiniboia.

MAYOR PUSHES FUSION TO SAVE ELECTION COSTS

But Parties Can't Agree on Who'll Quit Race.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Mayor Kelly yesterday put new life into the dormant proposal for complete coalition of Democratic and Republican forces for the judicial election of June 4 as a means of saving $150,000 for the taxpayers.

Fusion of the nine state bench places, eight in the Superior court and one in the Circuit court, was established by county conventions held last month. If complete coalition could be arranged, according to estimates of election officials, three-fourths of the polling places could be closed. The saving for each polling place kept closed is estimated at $60. A state law permits such a reduction in the number of precincts in elections which are uncontested.

Two Obstacles to Fusion.

But there were two obstacles. One was the fact that the council had passed an ordinance providing for a referendum June 4 on the question of four year aldermanic terms. The other was that in addition to the nine state judges there are two judges to be elected to vacancies in Municipal courts on the same day.

When committees from the two parties failed to overcome these obstacles Mayor Kelly decided to act. He sent the council a message urging repeal of the ordinance for the referendum and with it sent a proposed substitute ordinance setting the popular vote for the general election of Nov. 6. Action on the new measure was postponed, however, pending solution of the Municipal court problem.

Calls Party Representatives.

Mayor Kelly then called a meeting of representatives of the Republican and Democratic county committees in his office. There it was learned an agreement could be reached concerning the six months city bench vacancy. Either of the nominees, Steven Adamowski, Democrat, or George B. Holmes would withdraw.

But no agreement could be reached about the other Municipal court seat, a two year vacancy. The two nominees are Erwin J. Hasten, Democrat, and William J. Mannion, Republican.

Recall Bar Vote.

The Republicans, with John T. Dempsey as spokesman, argued that Mannion received 1,410 votes in the Chicago Bar association primary and that Hasten received only 507. The Democrats, it was said, had not consulted Hasten. There the matter stopped for the day.

"In other words," said Mayor Kelly, "we are still confronted with the possibility of having to spend $150,000 to elect one Municipal judge for a two year term. The two candidates must consider this fact seriously."

In the meantime, the county board at an afternoon meeting had approved the cutting down of country town precincts under the county clerk from 368 to 34, entailing a saving of $16,700.

County Treasurer Names J. F. Bolton as Attorney

John F. Bolton, 10122 South Wood street, Beverly Hills, an attorney and master in chancery in the Superior court, has been appointed attorney for the county treasurer's office, it was announced yesterday. Mr. Bolton, who will serve at a salary of $8,500 a year, was appointed by the new treasurer, Thomas D. Nash.

French Authorities Seize Four as Agents of Nazi Spy Plot

PARIS, May 2.—(AP)—Police announced today the arrest of a "dangerous spy," who they said bought French defense secrets for Germany through want ads and gained information by communications worded like love letters. Three of his alleged agents, two Germans and a French army officer, have also been taken into custody.

Secret police said the prisoner is Stanislas Krauss, a former Polish army officer, and that his confession of an ingenious espionage system led to the arrest of Capt. Froge of the French army.

One of the two Germans, unidentified, is held at Metz and another, Josef Peter Moeller, has been convicted, sentenced to two years in prison and fined $65.

Confesses Payment.

Krauss confessed, police said, that he paid Froge $6,500 for important military documents which were sent into Germany by the two Germans.

This new case involved no band like the alleged international syndicate with which Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Switz of New York and New Jersey are said to have admitted dealings, authorities said.

Krauss, who is suspected of spying in France the last four years under a variety of names, resorted to want ads when he lost track of Froge, whom he met in 1931, police disclosed.

The Pole was arrested in a Paris street after he had handed a roll of bills to a French officer acting for counter-espionage agents in the famous Tuileries gardens in exchange for official documents. The rendezvous was arranged by means of letters signed "Germaine" in which terms of endearment hid the real meaning.

Krauss had been trailed by secret operatives since February when police investigated classified advertisments in Paris newspapers in which "M. Tworyt" offered to lend money to government workers and army officers on easy terms.

Capt. Froge was said by police to have been arrested at Belfort, a fortified town near the Franco-German frontier, after he had been under suspicion "a long time."

For this reason, authorities declared, the activities of the suspects were "much more dangerous to the French national security" than the alleged gang involving the Switzes and 13 others, who have been in prison since December in connection with charges that they dealt in American, British, and French military secrets for the benefit of Germany and Russia.

The Krauss case was turned over to Judge Andre Benon, the magistrate who has investigated the Switz case during the last several months.

How Krauss Was Arrested.

This version was given today by police of the arrest and activities of Krauss:

A French officer stationed at the Franco-German frontier answered one of the advertisments and learned that the money would be "lent" if he turned over national defense documents to the advertiser.

The officer informed his superiors and then asked for a meeting with the stranger in Paris, receiving in reply his traveling expenses inclosed in a "love letter" which indicated the money was "in repayment" of the man's loan to a woman.

The stranger met the officer in the Tuileries gardens while counter-spies watched from behind trees. The stranger examined the documents and then handed the officer a roll of bank notes. The hidden operatives trailed the stranger to the main boulevards and became convinced that he had no other rendezvous, whereupon they arrested him.

He confessed, police said, that he was Krauss, who, under other names, sent Froge mysterious letters early in 1933. Krauss, who visited many French cities, had passports in various names, authorities declared.

HEFLIN RUNNING 3D IN ALABAMA CONGRESS RACE

Birmingham, Ala., May 2.—(AP)—Former Senator J. Thomas Heflin, apparently out of the running earlier, tonight had an outside chance on official figures to enter the run-off and make an attempt for a "political comeback," on returns from yesterday's Democratic primary which placed former Governor Bibb Graves in a gubernatorial run-off against Frank Nixon, Birmingham attorney. Heflin is in the race for Democratic congressional nominee in the Fifth district.

An unusually heavy vote in Chambers county set the former senator back into the running, but still in third place, with five boxes in the district missing, but only 637 votes behind Maj. Joe Starnes of Guntersville, the runner-up.

A short time before the Chambers vote and three additional boxes from the district were reported, the former senator declared he would be in the run-off and described returns from Tallapoosa county as ridiculous.

The vote, with five boxes missing, was: Miles B. Allgood, incumbent, 13,205; Starnes, 11,035, and Heflin, 10,398.

COUNTY BOARD VOTES TO PAY 90 HIGHWAY POLICE

The county board in a surprise move yesterday voted to pay the back salaries of the 90 county highway policemen who worked the last five months of 1933 without receiving any compensation. The commissioners approved the pay roll, amounting to approximately $100,000, subject to the legal sanction of the state's attorney's office.

Seize Milk Driver; Charge Attacks on Cut Rate Store

William Coddington, 31 years old, 6419 South Bishop street, a driver for the Bowman Dairy company, was arrested last night on complaint of Peter Mangas, operator of the Meadowmoor Cut Rate Milk store at 1438 East 67th street. Mangas, whose windows have been smashed twice in the last month, said that Coddington displayed a brick and threatened to break the windows again. The driver was charged with disorderly conduct and malicious mischief.

VOTE TRUE BILLS NAMING 7 IN 1932 ELECTION FRAUD

Contempt Punishment Is Held Insufficient.

Seven persons, three Republicans and four Democrats, who were judges and clerks in the 41st precinct of the 24th ward during the 1932 presidential election on Nov. 8 that year, were reported named in true bills voted by the grand jury yesterday on charges of conspiracy to violate the election laws.

The defendants are Lina Springer, a Republican judge; William Kohen, a Republican judge; Florence Arlew, a Republican clerk; Joseph Brownstein, a Democratic judge; Morris Gruffman, an assistant Democratic precinct captain; Martha Rabinovitz, a Democratic clerk and Alex Rivlan, a Democartic judge, who is a fugitive. All of these persons were prosecuted for contempt of court by County Judge Jarecki after the frauds were discovered.

Explains Criminal Action.

Assistant State's Attorney James A. Brown, who presented evidence to the grand jury, stated that the punishments imposed by Judge Jarecki for contempt did not preclude prosecution in the Criminal court. He explained that the frauds as disclosed to Judge Jarecki during the recount attendant upon the Samuel Heller-Erwin J. Hastens election contest were so flagrant that the contempt of court action was not considered sufficient punishment for the offenders.

The assistant state's attorney asserted that evidence had been procured which shows that those named in the true bills had altered the tally sheets in the polling place in favor of Democratic candidates. He added that after the polls closed the whole group adjourned to a rear room of the polling place.

"When they emerged," said Brown, "they announced what the vote would be. The ballots were not even sorted at that time. Apparently all they did was to 'weigh' the votes and choose their own count. I am told that certain Republican candidates were favored in the final tally as produced by the outfit."

Rivlan Not Jailed.

All the defendants except Rivlan were given jail sentences by Judge Jarecki, the prosecutor disclosed.

During the Heller-Hastens recount more than 80 persons became involved in fraud charges in the county courts. Assistant State's Attorney Brown said that others among this group may be prosecuted in the Criminal courts.

HOUSE REPORTS ON WIRT INQUIRY AT DIRECT ODDS

'Whitewash,' Says One; 'No Plot,' Avers Other.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—Congress' inquiry into Dr. William A. Wirt's recent charges against the Roosevelt brain trust was concluded today with the submission of widely differing reports by the Democratic majority and the Republican minority of the investigating committee.

From Representatives Harold McGugin of Kansas and Frederick Lehlbach of New Jersey, the minority members, came a blunt assertion that their erstwhile Democratic colleagues on the committee had conspired to suppress a thorough investigation of the aims and purposes of the radical influences within the administration.

From the majority members, headed by Chairman Alfred Bulwinkle [Dem., N. C.], on the other hand, came the equally blunt declaration that the charges leveled at the brain trust by Dr. Wirt were completely unsupported by the evidence presented at his hearing before the committee.

No "Overthrow Plot" Shown.

"From all of the evidence presented to the committee," said the majority report, "there was none whatever showing that there was any person or group in the government service planning 'to overthrow the existing social order' or planning or doing any of the things mentioned in Dr. Wirt's statement. In view of the findings herein set forth the committee is of the opinion that no further action be taken in the matter and therefore reports without recommendation."

"While the names of Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace, Assistant Secretary Rexford G. Tugwell, Frederick C. Howe, consumers' counsel, and other persons were named during the course of the hearing by Dr. Wirt, and by members of the committee," said the majority report, "Dr. Wirt testified that he had not spoken to any of those named and that he had given to the committee the names of all the persons with whom he had spoken and the substance of all conversation he had with them."

No Need of Further Quiz.

"The committee decided that it was unnecessary to examine any other witnesses than those who were present at the dinner, as alleged by Dr. Wirt, as a source of information from such witnesses. Upon the evidence both of Dr. Wirt and of the witnesses examined the committee is of the opinion and reports to the house that the testimony at the hearing and all facts and circumstances connected therewith clearly shows the statements made by Dr. Wirt in the manuscript which was quoted by James H. Rand Jr. before the committee on interstate and foreign commerce were not true."

"Sidesteps Responsibility."

The report filed by the Republican minority was divided into two parts—the first a detailed résumé of the entire Wirt episode, written by Representative McGugin; the second, a concise statement of what the Republicans conceived the Wirt charges to be, written by Representative Lehlbach.

"We cannot join in the majority report," wrote McGugin. "The committee has not met its responsibility as directed by the house. On the contrary, we report that the committee by a studied effort has deliberately refrained from obtaining the information which it was directed to obtain by such resolution. We further report that the committee has not only deliberately refrained from obtaining such information, but has deliberately suppressed the obtaining of such information."

McGugin related that the Democratic leader of the house, Representative Joseph Byrns of Tennessee, had promised on the floor that the resolution, as drafted, would be construed to provide for a thorough investigation. Despite this promise, Mr. McGugin declared, the Democratic majority on the committee wriggled out of their duty by asserting that their authority under the resolution did not go beyond the mere summoning of Dr. Wirt and any person who might have made radical statements to him directly.

Mr. McGugin mentioned in the report that Dr. Wirt had quoted Gen. W. I. Westervelt as accusing Dr. Frederick Howe, consumers' counsel at AAA, as desiring to curtail relief activities of the New Deal so as to hasten the day of violent revolution.

The majority refused to summon Westervelt on the ground that he was not a government employé at the time he made the statement to Dr. Wirt.

"The conclusion is," asserted McGugin, "that they [the Democratic majority] were fearful or believed that the complete truth of this statement would be established."

Representative Lehlbach, concluding for the minority, declared:

"This was an utterly futile proceeding. Every well informed person knows from the speeches, published writings, and radio addresses of government officials constituting what is commonly known as the 'brain trust' that their political, economic, and social philosophy is substantially as set forth by Dr. Wirt.

"Unfortunately the committee booted away its opportunity.

"We, therefore, take the position that the committee has not performed its duties under the resolution and that the committee should be directed by the house to proceed to complete its duties under the resolution."

MRS. WHITELAW REID'S FURNISHINGS ARE SOLD AT NEW YORK AUCTION

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—The second floor drawing room of the late Mrs. Whitelaw Reid was converted into a temporary auction gallery today for the sale of her paintings, Chinese porcelains, silver, rugs and other furnishings.

Many of the crowd came not only to buy but to see the interior, designed by Stanford White. The late Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid occupied the south wing of the large structure, which takes up the entire Madison avenue frontage of the block directly behind St. Patrick's cathedral.

Today's highest price was $5,100, paid by an agent for a private buyer, for Gainsborough's oval portrait of Frederick Howard, fifth earl of Carlisle, depicted as a youth in a landscape. The two sessions brought a total of $81,415.

NEW YORK BARS MOST PARADES ON BUSY STREETS

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—Police Commissioner John F. O'Ryan announced today that the police department hereafter would assign routes for most parades to keep the marching columns and crowds of spectators out of the business districts.

Mr. O'Ryan spoke after Capt. William J. Pedrick of the Fifth Avenue station had prepared a vigorous protest against the parade yesterday in which thousands of communists and socialists caused a blockade of business in the midtown district.

The commissioner's assurance was that only parades of paramount public interest will be permitted in the midtown district.

Thomas Hall, Sleuth, Is Held on CWA Complaint

Thomas Hall, 26 years old, an amateur sleuth, who has several times conducted what he described as investigations of the Civil Works administration, was arrested at his home at 720 Rush street last night on a warant signed by Carl B. Finan, department manager of the CWA. The warant charged Hall with copying the names and salaries of CWA employés and the names of contractors from the records in violation of a state statute. He was held at the detective bureau when he was unable to post a $1,500 bond.

Condition of Notre Dame President "Very Critical"

South Bend, Ind., May 2.—[Special.]—The condition of the Rev. Charles O'Donnell, C. S. C., president of the University of Notre Dame, was described late tonight as "very critical" at St. Joseph's hospital here. Hopes for the recovery of Father O'Donnell, paralyzed from the waist down from the ravages of a throat and lung infection he has suffered for more than a year, has been abandoned by physicians.

50 MEN BATTLE FOREST FIRE IN MINNESOTA

Milaca, Minn., May 2.—(AP)—More than 50 men today battled a forest and brush fire 12 miles northwest of here which was burning over 12,000 acres.

The fire was fanned by a 30 mile an hour northwest wind, according to Gilbert Martinson, Onamia, forest fire patrolman for the district.

Martinson said the flames were being blown toward Onamia, and that the northernmost tip of the fire was six miles from the village. No buildings had been destroyed tonight by the flames.

CALL TRUCE OF WEEK IN FIGHT FOR STATE NRA

Backers Give Up Efforts After Two Failures.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 2.—[Special.]—Democratic proponents of the NRA bill in the Illinois house gave up the fight today until Tuesday. Faced with an unvarying shortage of three or four votes, they decided to adjourn until next week. Then will come the battle royal.

The governor turned then to the senate. He sought to have a similar bill introduced there and, since the Democratic majority is larger in that chamber, the theory was that it could be passed and sent back to the house with the toga of approval from the house of lords.

But the Plan Fails.

But even that plan failed, for Republicans in the senate raised a point of no quorum and Louis O. Williams [Dem., Clinton], who was prepared to introduce the bill, was blocked. Only 20 senators were present. A quorum is 26.

This was the second day that Gov. Horner's adherents found themselves helpless to gather 77 votes for the bill sent here from the Washington brain trusters. Yesterday they called the roll "just to put the boys on record," as one man said today, and found themselves twelve votes shy. Almost to a man the Republicans stood in their path and rolled up 45 votes on their side.

So today was to have been the day of victory. The governor's leaders worked hard last night and hoped that they would be successful, but they were doomed to disappointment.

Hold House All Day.

The house was held all day in the hopes that hard riding Democrats would reach the capitol—dusty and travel worn—in time to succor the measure. Reports that this or that representative would arrive any minute surged and flowed about the chamber, but in each case died for want of verity. The votes just weren't there. How many present would have supported the bill was not made known because of the lack of a roll call. But the governor's nose counters believed they could have tallied at least 73 votes had the roll call been resumed. It was the closest shave for years and the Democrats dared not take the chance.

The senate worked along in a desultory fashion. It passed a bill guaranteeing the 15 per cent cut in tax valuations to those who did not protest their 1931 assessments before Judge Jarecki, then fiddled until the house had made up its mind on the NRA bill.

Senator Noah M. Mason [Rep., Oglesby] created the sensation of the day by bringing to a focus reports that members of the house were being urged by promises of patronage to vote for the NRA bill.

Urges Drastic Penalties.

Mason introduced a measure, which went to second reading, providing that any person who influenced or attempted to influence the passage of the legislation in return for the giving or offering of jobs could be sentenced to serve not more than five years in a penitentiary and fined $5,000. The last sentence of the bill read as follows: "Any constitutional officer violating the provisions of this act, upon conviction, in addition to the penalty herein imposed, shall be subject to impeachment."

For several days, ever since the NRA became a real political issue, there have been rumors that various Republican members had been offered jobs if they would vote for the bill.

Today, once Mason's bill was introduced, it was reported that one northern Illinois Republican, John L. Walker of Joliet, had two minor positions on the state pay roll taken from him because he would not support the state NRA. Walker refused to discuss the matter.

Ready at 10 O'Clock.

The house was ready to convene as early as 10 a. m. More Democrats than Republicans were present, but unofficial counters could not find more than 70 Democrats in the chamber.

The hours dragged on until almost 1 p. m., when Speaker Roe convened the house and the roll was called. Seventy Democrats and thirty-four Republicans were registered. Then after more waiting a recess was taken until midafternoon. Still the Democrats were shy and finally Minority Leader Elmer J. Schnackenberg of Chicago attempted to introduce a resolution calling for sine die adjournment. Roe refused to recognize him.

"That's a silly resolution," commented Thomas P. Sinnett of Rock Island, Gov. Horner's floor leader.

"This is gag rule," Schnackenberger declared, when he saw that Roe was refusing to recognize him. "You won't recognize a member who has anything you don't want."

Roe was adamant and the resolution was not introduced. Actually the adjournment was only until tomorrow, but both sides agreed that it would be a perfunctory session and that no real business would be transacted until Tuesday.

PASTORS PREFER U. S. CO-OP SYSTEM TO A CAPITALISTIC REGIME

New York, May 2.—(AP)—A coöperative commonwealth is preferred to capitalism by 18,324 ministers out of some 20,000 queried by Kirby Page, editor and author, in a questionnaire on politics and economics.

In the questionnaire, made public today, capitalism was defined as "rugged individualism" as in the United States prior to 1929.

The ministers expressing their desire for a coöperative commonwealth were asked:

"Which political system seems to you to offer the most effective method of achieving this end?"

Their answers: A drastically reformed capitalism, 10,691; Fascism, as in Italy, 111; communism, as in Soviet Russia, and as represented by the Communist party of the United States, 123; Socialism, as represented by the Socialist party of America or by a new and more inclusive socialistic alignment in which the present Socialist party would be included, 5,879; some other political system, 1,695.

STRIKE THREAT HANGING OVER COASTAL TRADE

New York Dockers Want Union Sanctioned.

New York, May 3.—[Special.]—Claiming that the 5,000 longshoremen of this port are 75 per cent organized since the establishment of the NRA, Joseph P. Ryan, their international president, predicted today they would strike against coastwise shipping. The strike, already effective at some southern ports, would spread along the entire Atlantic coast, he indicated.

The strike, he forecast as "almost inevitable," would be to enforce recognition of the International Longshoremen's association.

Under the present contract the men receive 85 cents an hour here for a 44 hour week and $1.20 an hour for overtime. The men here are linked with the New York Transportation Trades council, which includes teamsters, motor truck men, and others.

Oil Station Strike Continues.

Cleveland, O., May 2.—[Special.]—Union filling station agents of 12 oil companies still were on strike today following refusal of those concerns to accept a settlement suggested by W. M. Leiserson of the petroleum labor policy board. The companies indicated they do not want a settlement on the basis only of recognizing a labor union.

Strikers at the Ravenna plant of the Cleveland Worsted mills voted to return to work. Another election of that company's employés was stopped when a box with sealed ballots was stolen.

Employés of the Yellow Cab company have threatened to strike to get recognition of the union. That was granted by a competing company.

Sinclair Strike Threatens.

Seminole, Okla., May 2.—[Special.]—Six hundred employés of the Sinclair Prairie Oil company, have threatened to strike tomorrow for union recognition and a closed shop, with the reinstatement of six men discharged last Saturday.

Picket Texas Docks.

Houston, Tex., May 2.—(AP)—Longshoremen picketing docks at Texas ports in their strike for higher wages made it clear today that they would exert every effort to prevent the loading of ships until their demands have been met by steamship operators.

At a Beaumont wharf M. F. Schwartz, official of the Red River Barge line, was knocked down by a blow in the face when he started preparations to unload a barge. The attack was the first act of violence at a Texas gulf port since the walkout became effective at midnight Monday.

Hopeful At Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., May 2.—(AP)—The settlement of a three weeks old strike in the tool and die industry and reliable reports of an impending settlement of strikes in the Fisher Body corporation plants in eight cities, threw a more hopeful light on the labor situation as the automobile labor board, employers and employés continued their conferences tonight.

Paper Mill Strikes.

FORT FRANCIS, Ont., May 2.—[Special.]—Demanding higher wages and a 36 hour week, 3,000 pulp and paper mill workers are out here and at International Falls.

2 Relief Workers Locked in Jail on Theft Charges

Embezzlement warrants against Stephen Cooney, 50 years old, 8036 South May street, and David H. James, 44 years old, 822 East 74th street, former relief commission employés charged with stealing $8,700 of relief funds, were issued yesterday by Municipal Judge Howard Hayes in the Felony court. The two men were seized by state's attorney's representatives several days ago. Yesterday, after the warrants were issued, the two were locked in the county jail. Bonds were set at $5,000 each.

BUTTON PLANT CHIEFS AWAIT MORE DATA ON WAGE DISPUTES

Muscatine, Ia., May 2.—[Special.]—Muscatine button manufacturers will delay standardizing that industry's methods of wage computation until the making of "certain reports," according to their chairman, Fred C. Vetter.

That announcement was made today after a meeting at which Vetter said no action was taken regarding charges of NRA violations. The meeting was attended by Mayor Herman Lord.

It was reported that the manufacturers want Gov. Clyde Herring to send them a copy of the petition their employés gave him in Des Moines last Saturday. It was said they lack a copy. When they get a copy they will meet again.

Employés have charged the button factory managements manipulate piece work so that only most efficient receive the minimum wage. They also say fifty per cent of the workers receive less than $14 a week, while three hundred have been discharged in the last six weeks for inability to earn the $13 which is minimum code salary. It further is asserted that discharged employés are blacklisted by other manufacturers.

Manufacturers argue that there is a surplus of buttons on the market and their industry, making buttons from shells of river mussels, is caught between lower priced artificial buttons and higher priced ocean shell pearl button industries.

NRA BILL PUTS MRS. ICKES ON A POLITICAL SPOT

What to Do About Vote Is Her Worry.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—The Illinois state NRA bill today had Mrs. Ickes between a political devil and a personal deep blue sea.

She's a Republican member of the legislature at Springfield, where the New Deal legislation is now a burning partisan issue, and she has a record for standing loyally with her party in such a crisis.

But she's also the wife of Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, a New Dealer as ardent as he is prominent, who naturally would like to see the state bill enacted into law.

Thus far, the solution has been quite easy, said Mrs. Ickes at her home today. It was and it still is "absolutely impossible" for her to leave Washington this week. She just simply couldn't get to Springfield to vote on the bill had she wanted to. She may be able to leave next week, when the measure is due for another test in the house, but she is by no means certain.

In any event, she said, she will not be able to forecast her vote. She must first canvass the situation very carefully, study the bill very thoroughly, and then make up her mind.

"It is very puzzling," she admitted. "I really don't know what to do. Although I am a Republican, it's true I am very enthusiastic about the federal NRA and I wouldn't do anything to impede its success."

Democratic chieftains at Springfield, Mrs. Ickes indicated, are pretty confident that she will bolt on the NRA measure that has so strong an appeal for her husband. They have been no end persistent in their importunings, she said.

"The Democrats have been calling me long distance so much I've actually started to dodge telephone calls," was the way she put it.

Starts to Perform Autopsy, Finds Victim Is His Aid

New York, May 2.—(AP)—In preparation for a routine autopsy, Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner, today unwound the bandages on the head of a body in the morgue. When the face was revealed, Dr. Norris recognized it as that of Dr. Ladislaus Michael Schwarz, a German pathologist, who only six weeks ago was appointed his assistant. Schwarz was killed by an automobile Monday night.

EX-TERRE HAUTE MAYOR INDICTED ON NRA CHARGE

Accused of Violating Oil Code; Freed on Bond.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 2.—[Special]—NRA code violators and observers alike turned their eyes toward Indianapolis tonight to await outcome of one of the first federal criminal prosecutions for code violations instituted since the National Recovery act became effective.

The defendant, Donn M. Roberts, long active in Democratic politics and former mayor of Terre Haute, was indicted by a federal grand jury on a charge of violating the petroleum code in connection with the operation of his chain of filling stations at Terre Haute. Roberts was released under $1,000 bond to appear tomorrow in Federal court here for arraignment.

Charge He Failed to Pay Tax.

Roberts is charged with failure to pay the state 4 cent gallonage tax on about 100,000 gallons of gasoline transported to Terre Haute in interstate commerce from Illinois, Missouri and Texas, from September, 1933, through January, 1934. Rule 24 of the code of fair competition for the petroleum industry provides that it shall be an unfair practice to evade payment of taxes.

Nearly 20 years ago Roberts and 125 other persons were in federal court here for violation of election fraud laws in the general election of Nov. 3, 1914, before Judge Albert B. Anderson. He was convicted and sentenced to serve six years in prison and pay a $2,000 fine. The conviction was affirmed by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago. He served about a year as mayor prior to his conviction.

After completion of the prison sentence, Roberts returned to Terre Haute, where he has been a candidate for office several times. He was a candidate for mayor in the 1929 primary and was defeated.

A maximum fine of $500 can be imposed for each NRA violation, federal officials said, with each day a separate offense.

Act to Settle Knitters' Strike.

H. A. Donoghue, mediator for the national labor board, was ordered here tonight in an attempt to settle the strike of knitters at the Real Silk, Fulton and National Hosiery mills.

All special armed guards employed by Real Silk were dismissed tonight following considerable indignation by citizens, and henceforth the Indianapolis police department will have full charge of maintaining order.

The national labor board ordered Donoghue to coöperate with the regional federal labor board. The strike has been in progress more than three weeks.

Admits Code Violations.

New York, April 2.—[Special.]—Gottel Radish, a lumber merchant who has been in business on Staten Iland for more than 25 years, pleaded guilty today in the Court of Special Sessions at St. George, S. I., to four charges of violating the NRA lumber code. On recommendation of code authorities, Justices Kernochan, McInerney and Herbert suspended the execution of a 30 day sentence, but warned the defendant that if he violated the code again he would be sentenced to prison without trial.

WALLACE SAYS COTTON SHARE FARMERS SUFFER

Some Lose Homes in AAA Drive.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace today frankly admitted that the elimination of millions of cotton acres from production under the AAA has created a serious social problem in the south.

Thousands of tenant farmers and "share croppers" are being deprived of their livelihood, Mr. Wallace said, when the acres they once worked are abandoned by the land owner under the terms of his reduction contract with the government. Relief rolls in the cotton belt have shown a marked increase since the inauguration of the acreage reduction campaign, it was said.

Shows Results of Study.

Mr. Wallace made public the results of a study of the situation undertaken by Calvin B. Hoover, AAA economic adviser and a professor at Duke university. It admitted the serious nature of the dilemma, but attributed much of the difficulty to labor conditions peculiar to the south.

In an effort to halt the displacement of the tenants and share croppers, Mr. Wallace announced, he has summoned all southern county extension agents to Washington for a conference.

Measures to enforce the AAA cotton contract, which prohibits land owners from depriving tenants and share workers of their homes, will be devised at the meeting, the secretary stated.

The social consequences of the government acreage reduction program in the cotton belt have been subjected to widespread criticism. Today's announcement was the AAA's first indication that it had taken cognizance of the situation.

To Enforce Contract.

"The sign up campaign for the 1934 cotton adjustment program has been completed," said Mr. Wallace. "The time has now come when it is the duty of the administration to work out a definite policy of enforcement of the provisions of this contract. We have received a considerable number of complaints of displacement of tenant farmers in violation of the spirit of the contract. The number so dispossessed is not subject to precise determination."

The secretary said, however, that the number of complaints thus far received made it "desirable" for the AAA to work out a mechanism for preventing violation of the reduction contract. He emphasized that there was no disposition on the part of the government to "interfere with the usual and normal rental arrangement between land owners or landlords and their tenants."

May Hold Back Benefits.

As one possible method of forcing land owners to refrain from evicting the poorer farmers from abandoned cotton acres, Mr. Wallace suggested that the AAA might refuse to pay the benefit payments called for under the reduction contract since ejection of the tenants or share croppers would constitute a violation of the contract.

Judge Directs That Trial of Bauler Begin Tomorrow

The trial of Ald. Mathias (Paddy) Bauler [43d] on a charge of assault with intent to kill growing out of the wounding of Policeman John J. Ahern last Dec. 19, was continued for the sixth time yesterday by Judge Donald S. McKinlay in the Criminal court. The judge announced, however, that he would insist that the trial begin tomorrow and warned attorneys for the state and for Bauler to be prepared at that time.

WEIRTON DENIAL OF GIVING PARTY READ TO COURT

Stronger Hint of Code Test Is Made.

Wilmington, Del., May 2.—(AP)—A pre-election party last fall attended by women employés of the Weirton Steel company was organized by the women themselves and their employers bore no part of the expense, company counsel declared today in United States District court.

The statement was made as part of a sweeping denial of federal government charges that the company offered "special inducements" to influence employés to vote for collective bargaining representatives who were favorable to the management.

Denies Strong Liquor Story.

Earl F. Reed, Weirton counsel, offered affidavits that government charges that two women at the party "passed out" from the effects of liquor were false. Reed contended, on the basis of affidavits he presented, that nothing stronger than "soda and beer" were consumed.

It was the third day of argument in the government's suit for an injunction to prevent the Weirton company from interfering with the election by its workers, with the defendant indicating preparedness to challenge the constitutionality of the Recovery act and the steel industry code as it affects collective bargaining between employer and employé. The company contends its election took place before the national labor board became official.

Caleb S. Layton, of Wilmington, argued points of law for the Weirton company for half an hour today after Reed concluded discussion of the factual issues.

Government Plans Rebuttal.

The government has already presented its case and will make its rebuttal argument when Mr. Layton concludes.

Mr. Reed said his affidavits wholly contradict the government's accounts of the country club party immediately preceding the Weirton balloting.

One company affidavit stated that one of the women who is alleged to have "passed out" after drinking liquor had "a bad heart and the least bit of excitement caused her to faint."

An affidavit read denied the company tried to dictate the way to vote.

Tells Weir Memorandum.

Mr. Reed said Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the board of the company, agreed to recommend to the employés that they amend the by-laws in order to allow the election of representatives who were not Weirton workers. He insisted this was merely a "memorandum," however, and not an agreement.

HOLC ADVISORY BOARD IN CALIFORNIA QUITS WITH HINT AT GRAFT

Los Angeles, May 2.—(AP)—All five members of the California advisory board of the Federal Home Owners Loan corporation have submitted their resignations, Chairman R. V. Morrison disclosed today.

Morrison said he preferred to have John H. Fahey, chairman of the Home Loan bank board in Washington, make public the reasons for the resignations. He said, however, that during the last three or four weeks "certain parties transacting business with the corporation have been attempting to increase their charges over and above the rates specified in contracts they had with the corporation."

He said the board felt the parties were not entitled to the increases.

CASSIDY NAMES 15 ILLINOISANS AS ADVISERS

John E. Cassidy, state director of the national recovery act's organization, yesterday announced the names of fifteen Illinoisans to an advisory committee. All have accepted, he said, and a meeting of the committee is to be held sometime next week.

The committee members are: Col. A. A. Sprague, Richard J. Collins, president of the city's civil service commission; Willoughby Walling, former president of the City club; John F. Roche; Mrs. J. MacMahon, Chicago clubwoman; R. G. Soderstrom, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor; H. H. Ferguson of Alton; F. D. E. Babcock of Bloomington; Robert B. Irwin of Springfield; former Lieut. Gov. John G. Oglesby of Elkhart, Harry J. Newmiller of Peoria, A. H. Mauerman Jr. of Danville, State Treasurer John Martin, Leonard J. Condon of Rockford, and Stewart Duncan of La Salle.

CONG. J. M. BECK TO GIVE PUBLIC SPEECH TONIGHT

Congressman James M. Beck, noted constitutional lawyer of Philadelphia, will speak on "The Future of the Constitution" in Orchestra Hall tonight. He will discuss the problem of preserving constitutional government in the nation in the face of economic crisis and Washington "brain trust" legislation.

The speaker will be introduced by Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago crime commission. The lecture is sponsored by a committee including Mr. Loesch, Benjamin F. Affleck, Harry A. Bigelow, John D. Black, Bertram J. Cahn, Charles S. Cutting, Charles S. Deneen, Otis F. Glenn, Sidney S. Gorham, Col. Robert R. McCormick, Silas Strawn, Roy O. West, John H. Wigmore, and John P. Wilson.

The lecture will be open to the public. Representative Beck, who is a former United States solicitor general, spoke Tuesday night before the Illinois Manufacturers' Cost association. Yesterday noon he talked at a meeting of the English Speaking union at the La Salle hotel.

ALICE MOCKS THE MOCK TURTLE

"We've had a lot of arithmetic," said the Mock Turtle. "But we can't figure out how anyone can go to Europe this year."

"Why, that's simple," said Alice. "You just send your baggage down to the pier and go aboard a steamship."

"But, Exchange Rates," shouted the other two in chorus.

Alice looked blank. "So what?" she said. "Just what have exchange rates to do with a round-trip steamship passage from New York?"

Any way you figure it, steamship passage is the biggest item in a European tour. Yet a room with bath, First Class, in the Aquitania now costs 37% less than in 1926, President Roosevelt's "Year of Normalcy" . . . and the average minimum First Class rate is down by 20%. Cabin Class rates are as low as $234 Round Trip; Tourist Class $188.

And in Europe, railroad rates are reduced 20% to 50%, and hotel rates by an average of 36%. Exchange rates would have to climb very high indeed to offset these advantages. Ask your local agent or write us for folder proving European travel cheaper in 1934 than in 1926.

LEAGUE REPORT CONDEMNS JAP TRADE TACTICS

Hits at Low Wages and Bad Labor Conditions.

GENEVA, Switzerland, May 2.—(AP)—A report by Harold B. Butler, American director of the international labor conference committee, on Japan's labor and monetary conditions aroused such resentment in Japanese circles here tonight that they threatened to bolt the organization.

"Japanese industry, organized on modern lines, has become the most formidable competitor in the world's markets," Butler said in his survey to be presented at a coming labor convention.

"The comparative reduction of Japanese wages in terms of other currencies is so considerable as to give a decisive advantage to Japanese industry in the international market.

"The case of Japan affords a striking illustration of the disturbing effect on international commercial relations of exchange instability."

Condemns Labor Conditions.

The principal factor in Japan's advance after an increase in production, Butler added, is currency depreciation, which reduced Japan's overhead and labor costs from one-half to two-thirds in relation to its main competitors.

The report hinted that the successful Japanese invasion of foreign markets, "commonly called a form of social dumping, is due to excessively low wages and bad labor conditions."

Grave tensions and antagonisms between nations have resulted from economic nationalism, the bureau warned through Butler's report.

He said this new source of apprehension reinforces fears "which internal revolutions and warlike rumblings have already produced."

Butler added that both political upheavals and aggressive nationalism were likely to provoke international conflict unless "the economic fever which caused them can be allayed."

He urged immediate coördination of the world's economic life.

CHINA SETS PEACE TERMS

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, May 2.—The Chinese government is prepared to enter into direct negotiations with Japan immediately for a settlement of such outstanding differences as the Manchurian issue, but subject to two definite conditions:

FIRST—All powers signatory to the nine power treaty must be informed prior to, during, and following the conclusion of the conference, because China is a signatory of the treaty and hence bound to observe its terms along with Japan.

SECOND—China requires Japan's official admission that Manchuria is a definite part of the Chinese national domain, an agreement to abolish the "Pu-yi puppet show at Hsinking and reëstablishment of complete Chinese authority throughout the four northeastern provinces."

The foregoing information was obtained from responsible Chinese authorities. They admitted considerable doubt that Japan would accept the second condition immediately, but thought it would ultimately.

Regarding the first condition, it was stated that Japan is obligated to consent in view of recent international developments which resulted in Japan's decision to observe the conditions of the nine power treaty.

Chinese Criticize British Stand.

LONDON, May 2.—(AP)—An official Chinese spokesman described as "unfortunate" today the statement of Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon that Japan's "special rights in China are recognized by other powers."

Although Chinese statesmen were assured by Great Britain that Sir John's remark—made before the house of commons in a speech reviewing exchanges about Japan's restated Chinese policy—was given with China's interest uppermost, the spokesman said it tended to strengthen Tokio's hand in the far east.

Authoritative British quarters said Japan's special rights to police land along the South Manchurian railway and to lease land and engage in business in southern Manchuria "were recognized universally." China, it was said, has granted Japan the right to control Kwantung and have extraterritorial rights in parts of Hankow and Tientsin. Sir John's statement was intended to distinguish between these special rights and others, it was said.

With this viewpoint, however, the Chinese spokesman disagreed.

"Japanese control of those areas is an accomplished fact not recognized as special rights by China, nor is the 1905 treaty granting them," he said.

ASKS INJUNCTION AGAINST CUTTING OF HITLER MOVIE

A petition for an injunction to restrain Mayor Kelly, Police Commissioner Allman, and the city of Chicago from interfering with the showing of the movie "Hitler's Reign of Terror" was filed yesterday in the Circuit court.

Samuel Cummins, motion picture exhibitor filing the petition, declared that Commissioner Allman had arbitrarily stopped the showing of the picture on April 23 despite the fact that a permit had been issued.

The showing of the film was revived on April 25, the bill says, but only after certain deletions were made. Cummins asks that the deleted scenes be restored.

RUSSIA RELEASES STARVING BISHOP IN EXILE 5 YEARS

Cleric, Clad in Rags, Reaches Poland.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, May 2.—After several years of negotiations with soviet authorities, the Polish government has obtained freedom for Anton Malecki, Catholic bishop of Mogilev diocese. He arrived in Warsaw yesterday from Moscow, accompanied by a member of the Polish representation.

Clad in the ragged suit of a Siberian peasant, with his toes protruding from both shoes, the 73 year old priest was embraced at the station by the papal nuncio, Msgr. Francesco Marmaggi.

Malecki was taken to the hospital of the Elizabethan Sisters. There he was bathed, fed, and put to bed for a long rest after examination by physicians, who reported him to be in a dangerous condition from exposure and starvation.

The bishop was one of the Catholic prelates who were sentenced to long terms of imprisonment in the famous trial of the late Archbishop Cieplak in Moscow, and for the last five years has lived with the primitive Buriats at the village of Taiga in the wilds of Siberia, completely shut off from the world.

With 80 other Polish priests suffering in bolshevik prisons or in exile, the Polish press has urgently petitioned the nuncio for a chance to interview Malecki. The nuncio has refused, stating that the old man is both physically and mentally shattered by the ordeal and is now living in a trance, unable to realize that he is free.

Heartened by the release of the bishop the Polish foreign office is continuing to make strong representations at Moscow for the release of the remaining imprisoned Polish clerics.

LEWIS CALLS ON SENATE TO BACK STAND ON JAPAN

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—In a speech upon the senate floor today Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, Democratic whip, called upon his colleagues to stand behind Secretary of State Hull and the administration in their warning to Japan, insisting upon the maintenance of the open door in China.

"Let us let Japan and other countries understand," he said, "that this declaration by the secretary of state is the declaration of America, not of any political party, and that it has the unanimous approval of this body."

Senator Lewis noted that England, through Sir John Simon, had professed satisfaction with Japan's explanation of her position. That merely served to show, said the Illinois senator, that England had been granted some secret favor by Japan.

"That is the privilege of England and Japan," said the senator, "but if the United States in her relations with Japan is to be treated hereafter as secondary to England we would like to know it."

WARNS BRITAIN MUST BUILD UP NAVAL DEFENSE

Fleet Admiral Calls London Treaty "a Folly."

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 2.—A stinging attack on the London naval treaty, coupled with a warning that the British empire can be maintained only by a proper imperial national defense, was uttered last night by Admiral of the Fleet Sir Roger Keyes, England's fighting admiral, in an address to the city of London Conservative Unionist association.

The London treaty, Sir Roger declared, "is the greatest folly ever perpetrated" and sweeps away all safeguards insured at the previous Washington naval conference.

"Japan Untouchable."

England has made sacrifices regarding naval limitations but other nations have not and are not prepared to do so, he said.

Japan, he continued, attended the naval conferences "tongue in cheek."

"I tell you as a naval man that Japan is untouchable," he asserted. "We must have a base at Singapore to protect New Zealand and Australia. We must have a naval base overseas capable of docking and maintaining ships. Thank God, in two years or so we shall have it."

Parley Bound to Fail.

Predicting that the next disarmament conference is bound to fail because no nation is ready to make sacrifices, he insisted that Britain's air force, army, and navy must be increased as the best method of maintaining peace.

DEMAND SENATE EXPEL OVERTON AND HUEY LONG

Louisiana Women Urge Ouster of Both.

tor Edwin S. Broussard, Gen. Ansell said. He would seek to show, said the general, that Long, personally and in conspiracy with others, had used "corrupt and fraudulent methods" to bring about Overton's victory in the primary.

Mrs. Hammond at Hearing.

Mrs. Hammond sat beside the counsel for her committee as he presented the case. Slight, dressed in a plainly cut blue suit, she kept a businesslike pencil at work taking notes. Documents were piled in her lap. Now and again she flashed a very determined glance toward the end of the committee table where Senator Overton sat, rolling his eyes ceilingward in amused derision at Gen. Ansell's allegations. Senator Long was absent, but is scheduled to be on hand tomorrow, when he and Overton are to be given a chance to be heard.

By taking the tack he did Gen. Ansell ran immediately into the traditional controversy concerning the right of the senate to investigate primaries. He admitted that the senate had no right to investigate the Louisiana primary as such, but that it did possess the right to determine whether Overton and Long were guilty of acts in the primary which would "taint their right to a seat in the senate."

Reviews Findings of Committee.

He reviewed at length the findings of the special campaign committee and its condemnation of the use of "dummy candidates" by the Long machine, the enforced assessment of state employés for contributions to the Long campaign chest, and the intimidation of witnesses. The use of "dummy candidates" [a device to get friendly persons chosen as local election commissioners] in the 1932 primary "surpassed anything ever seen in the history of Louisiana," Gen. Ansell declared.

"And I do not believe it the sole duty of the people of my state to correct the evil," he went on. "As I see it—and precedents bear me out—the senate has a duty."

"Do you mean that there are precedents showing that the senate has concerned itself in the election machinery of a state?" inquired Senator F. Ryan Duffy [Dem., Wis.].

"Yes," replied the counsel, "when fraud, entering into the machinery, has affected the election of a senator."

"The senate has not acted because of any law in a state," interjected Senator George [Dem., Ga.]. "But if a senator's personal conduct has made him guilty of fraud, then the senate has acted."

"I am sure," maintained Gen. Ansell, "that we can produce precedents which will warrant senate action in a case where a senator is tarred and tainted with fraud in the primary."

Charges Fraud Hides Result.

The fraud in the Louisiana primary was so general, said the attorney, answering a question by Senator Warren R. Austin [Dem., Vt.] that by no mathematical rule would it be possible to determine what the election result would have been had fraud not been perpetrated.

"There is no formula by which we can excise the putrid part and keep only the pure," said Gen. Ansell.

He described at length the domination of the primary and the political machinery of the state by the Long machine, quoting at length from the special campaign committee report and the senate speech of Senator Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.], the committee's chairman.

"If that doesn't support my predicate that there is no republican form of government in Louisiana, then my ideas concerning a republican form of government are all wrong," he declared.

BATTLE ON RULE TO OUST CANNON IS NOW CERTAIN

Jackson, Miss., May 2.—(AP)—Foundations for mighty conflicts were laid today in the quadrennial general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, as the conference set up its new judicial council to pass on the constitutionality of church law and ordered balloting on momentous questions affecting the 11 active members of the college of bishops.

Under two special orders of business, the hundreds of delegates will vote tomorrow on the question of limiting the tenure in office of the bishops who now are elected virtually for life, and on a proposal to place on the retirement list any bishop who is found to be "so unacceptable, inefficient, or secular as to be no longer useful in his work."

The committee on episcopacy recommended that the retirement age of 72 years, now in force, be retained with provision for retirement of a bishop earlier for inacceptability or inefficiency.

If the latter proposal passes, it was predicted by delegates favoring the retirement of Bishop James Cannon Jr., Richmond, Va., that it would furnish a new rule under which the Cannon case could be brought to the floor.

The committee on Episcopacy is expected this week to report to the conference their recommendation that the 69 year old Bishop Cannon be retired against his consent.

FILE BANKRUPTCY PLEA AS RESULT OF BANK CRASH

A petition in voluntary bankruptcy was filed in the federal court yesterday in behalf of Kenneth and Frances Barnard of 2680 Orrington avenue, Evanston. Mr. Barnard is manager of the Better Business bureau of Chicago.

The petition, filed by the law firm of Kelly and Pratt, listed liabilities of $64,802 and assets of $447.

It was explained that there were no liabilities in Chicago or in Illinois, and that all liabilities were the result of the failure in 1931 of the Ohio Savings Bank and Trust company, of Toledo, O., of which Mrs. Barnard's father had been the second largest stockholder.

The father, Frank Chapin, died in 1929. Mrs. Barnard was the principal legatee, and Mr. Barnard was executor of his estate. With the failure of the bank, Mr. Barnard said he found himself forced to shoulder the impossible burden of stockholders' and other liabilities.

The bankruptcy proceeding was solely to rid the Barnards of this liability, Mr. Barnard said.

DARROW'S FIGHT ON NRA CODES SPLITS HIS BOARD

His Report Says Small Business Suffers.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—A doughty old warrior, Clarence S. Darrow of Chicago, was involved today in an uproar involving the practices of the National Recovery act which promised to attract national attention.

Several weeks ago the veteran lawyer, who celebrated his 77th birthday recently, was appointed chairman of the National Recovery review board, which was to make an investigation of the codes of fair competition formulated under the NRA. The primary object of the board, according to President Roosevelt's order, was to determine if small enterprises were given a fair deal in comparison to bigh business under the various codes.

The other members of the board were W. W. Neal, a North Carolina manufacturer; Fred P. Mann Sr., a North Dakota wholesale grocer; John F. Sinclair, a New York financial writer, and W. O. Thompson, a lawyer of New York and Chicago.

Disputes Start Early.

Almost from the first, it was revealed today, there was dissension between Chairman Darrow and the other members of the board. Headquarters were established here in an office building and a large office set aside for the chairman. He, however, established his own quarters in the Willard hotel with a secretary and several assistants. He proceeded to make his own inquiry while the other members of the board held hearings of their own.

After a few weeks, according to reports, all the members of the board, including Darrow, were in agreement that the small business man was victimized by the workings of the NRA. The trouble arose over the drafting of a report to this effect which was to be submitted to the President.

Darrow Attacks NRA.

Without much consultation with the other board members, Darrow drafted a report which set forth in stinging language a devastating criticism of the NRA and its effect upon the little business man, it was learned. The recovery administration was denounced as having permitted big corporations to create monopolies and fix prices. The Darrow eloquence was used to depict the plight of the "little fellow" being ground under the heel of big business with the aid of the NRA.

While assenting to the general tenor of the report, the remaining members of the board resented the chairman's failure to consult them, it was said. They also felt the report to the President concerning one of the administration's pet scheme should be couched in more diplomatic language.

An admission at the White House today that there was a "row" between members of the board sent reporters scurrying to interview them. A noncommittal attitude was maintained by all. It was discovered, however, that one member, Sinclair, had become so disgusted over the controversy that he had returned to New York, and, in effect, washed his hands of the entire matter.

Another member was reported to be siding with Darrow on the question of a strong report, while the remaining two were insisting upon a redrafting of the report.

Administrator Hugh Johnson of the NRA, as bellicose in his own way as Darrow, was reported to have expressed much irritation over certain pungent phrases in the Darrow report.

OLD CATHEDRAL SHELTER HOUSE WILL BE MOVED

Merger with Chase Unit Indicated.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The famous Cathedral shelter directed by Canon David E. Gibson, where more than a million persons have been aided in the past 13 years, is to be removed from its present site of the old Cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul, Washington and Peoria streets. It probably will be merged with Chase house and the Church of the Epiphany, Ashland avenue and Adams street.

This was disclosed yesterday when Bishop George Craig Stewart, of the Episcopal Diocese of Chicago, announced the election of John D. Allen of Glencoe as president of the Cathedral shelter board. Mr. Allen is also president of the Chase house directors. When asked yesterday about the possible merger of the two leading Episcopal welfare institutions, Mr. Allen said a special committee is at work on merger plans and that the consolidation would be attempted.

Has Historic Background.

Canon Gibson developed the work of the Cathedral shelter in the units of the old cathedral establishment to survive the fire which destroyed the cathedral in 1921.

The Cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul is said to have been built on the first site in America to be permanently set aside for cathedral purposes.

The Cathedral chapter of the local diocese, in control of the property, has not disclosed what disposition will be made of the site, although it is said the property will be offered for sale after Canon Gibson vacates the buildings. Bishop Stewart has stated that legal barriers against the sale of the historic properties have been razed.

Wide Variety of Aid.

Canon Gibson yesterday explained his work has now expanded beyond the capacity of his present equipment. It is estimated that Sunday congregations in the old Sumner chapel of the cathedral, on the average, are as large, if not larger, than those found in any other Episcopal church within the city limits. Last year Canon Gibson reported 351 baptisms, or more than 200 in excess of those reported by any other Episcopal church in the diocese.

The national fame of the shelter, however, arose from the wide variety of aid given needy persons. Last year the shelter's report showed that more than 100,000 persons received direct emergency aid of various sorts. During the period of Canon Gibson's leadership he has received in excess of $400,000 in free will offerings for carrying on his work.

69,000 Meals Served.

A few items from Canon Gibson's annual report, which he made public yesterday, show that during the year there were 69,000 meals served of which all but 1,164 were free. More than 32,000 were lodged in shelter dormitories, 21,000 pieces of clothing were dispensed to more than 10,000 applicants, 6,500 persons were given financial aid, carfares to 7,687, office interviews 17,000, and more than 10,000 letters were written in behalf of unfortunates. Fifteen thousand medical prescriptions were dispensed to sick persons.

In disclosing the proposed merger plans, Mr. Allen said his principal objective is to relieve Canon Gibson of lesser details which others could manage and "to give Canon Gibson freedom to expand his ministries and to act with fewer restraints in work he can do better than any other priest in the Episcopal church."

Want State to Restore Abe Lincoln Courthouse

MRS. WILLETT, IN PENTHOUSE, ASKS SUPPORT

Seeks Money to Pay Bills; Court Calls Husband.

Although she still lives in her luxurious penthouse on Lincoln Park West, Mrs. Grace Williamson Willett declares that she hasn't enough money to pay her grocery bill, that the telephone company is threatening to discontinue her service, and she has to borrow money from friends to provide food and carfare.

Consequently Mrs. Willett and her attorneys, Benjamin B. Davis and Nicholas Socrates, appeared in the court of Judge Rudolph Desort yesterday ready to demand that Howard L. Willett, trucking company head, pay over some money pending settlement of the long deferred financial agreement.

Maintenance Bill Pending.

Mrs. Willett has a separate maintenance bill pending, but action on it was stopped last March 10 when the court was told that an out-of-court settlement by which Mrs. Willett was to receive $17,500 a year for five years, followed by the establishment of a trust fund for her, was about to be signed.

Disagreement about details has held up the final settlement, according to Mrs. Willett's lawyers.

In the meantime, Mr. Davis says, Mrs. Willett is hard pressed to keep the proverbial wolf from eating the knob off the penthouse door. Mr. Davis presented a petition to Judge Desort demanding that Mr. Willett make some payment at once.

Objects to Petition.

Attorney John B. Martineau, representing Willett, objected to the filing of the petition, declaring it would be a "gross breach of negotiations."

Judge Desort asked Mrs. Willett's lawyers to withhold filing the petition for another week. At the same time he instructed Attorney Martineau to have his client in court today to make some arrangement which would alleviate Mrs. Willett's financial distress.

In the corridor outside the courtroom Mr. Davis had to face the attorney for the apartment at 2130 Lincoln Park West where Mrs. Willett lives. He promised the financial settlement with Mr. Willett was only a matter of a week or so, and that then the rent could be paid.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER SECLUDES HIMSELF ON FLORIDA ESTATE

Ormond Beach, Fla., May 2.—(AP)—John D. Rockefeller Sr. has gone even further into seclusion than his winter estate here previously afforded.

The 94 year old philanthropist this season has foregone all public contact, not even going to church services on Sunday, since his recent illness. Today the road passing behind the Casements, his home here, was ordered closed to trafic at the request of "Neighbor John." The single family living on the street will be furnished a key to the gate that will be erected on the thoroughfare. It is a dead-end street with only one entrance.

The closing of the street and building of the gate at its entrance will give Mr. Rockefeller all the room he wishes to promenade about his estate, protected from the eyes of the public. That is his only form of exercise since he gave up his daily round of golf following his illness last fall.

Strike Paralyzes Havana Transportation; Many Hurt

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, May 2.—Havana trafic was tied up for an hour today when street car motormen and bus drivers without notice left their conveyances in the streets in a demonstration growing out of yesterday's May day rioting. Ten persons were shot, 19 others suffered injuries, and scores of tear gas victims were treated as a result of general fights between police and strikers.

POLICE BEAT US, 30 MICHIGAN U. RADICALS CLAIM

May Day Demonstrators Routed in Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., May 2.—(AP)—Thirty-eight University of Michigan students who said they sought scientific data on the extent to which violence is used to "suppress minorities" protested today against the treatment accorded them by police as participants in a May day labor demonstration in downtown Detroit.

Back in Ann Arbor, they said they would carry their complaints to Mayor Frank Couzens of Detroit, charging that two of their number were struck with blackjacks and a young woman forced to jump from their banner-decorated truck, spraining her ankle.

Sing "Internationale."

In Detroit, Police Commissioner Heinrich A. Pickert said he planned no investigation unless some apparently well founded complaint is received. He added that after questioning his men, "I believe reports of beatings and obscene language are exaggerated."

University officials professed little interest in the incident. President Alexander G. Ruthven said that the communist group at the university is "very small," and that "when university students create a disturbance they must take the consequences."

Creating a disturbance is just what Detroit police claim the student group did, circling Grand Circus park, where May day demonstrations had been prohibited, singing the "Internationale" and shouting to bystanders.

Police Surround Truck.

Two hundred policemen were stationed in and near the park, and the truckload of students was quickly surrounded by motorcycle patrolmen. The students claim they were taken to a dead-end street, forced to alight and blackjacks wielded on two of them.

The Rev. A. Lee Klaer, associate pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Ann Arbor, was the driver of the truck. He said the students were "treated roughly, forced to leave the truck, were searched and thrown about."

The truck was rented by the National Student League for Michigan. The party included one instructor, Charles A. Orr, teaching fellow in the university department of economics, and Kendall Wood, son of Dr. Arthur Wood of the sociology department. Orr and Wood were struck with blackjacks, they claim.

A continuance until May 21 was granted yesterday by Judge Peter M. Schwaba in the $10,000 suit of Mrs. Gladys Oser against Ralph O'Hara of the Motion Picture Operators' union, who shot and killed Mrs. Oser's husband, Fred, a rebel operator, on March 24, 1933, in the offices of the union. Judge Schwaba was told that Attorney Michael Ahern, counsel for O'Hara, is engaged in another trial. O'Hara was freed by a coroner's jury on the ground that he shot Oser in self-defense.

LAWYER REPLIES TO CHARGES BY BENNETT'S WIFE

Los Angeles, Cal., May 2.—(AP)—Richard Bennett of the stage and screen was reported today to be preparing a complaint of his own, or at least an answer to his wife's separate maintenance suit, which charges him with beating, threatening, and injuring her.

His attorney, Neil McCarthy, said Mrs. Angela Raisch Bennett's statements were "exaggerated."

"Stupidly absurd" was McCarthy's term for Mrs. Bennett's charge she found the actor-father of Constance, Joan and Barbara Bennett of the screen, clad only in his bathrobe in a bedroom with his woman secretary last March.

The lawyer said the secretary, "an elderly woman, has been in the employ of both the Bennetts for more than a year."

As for the couple's community property, McCarthy said Mrs. Bennett's "own father, an attorney, examined the documents in my office and every dollar of the community property is accounted for."

McCarthy said she refused Bennett's offer of one-half of the property.

Bennett's first wife was Adrienne Morrison, actress. He and the present Mrs. Bennett were married July 11, 1927.

GENERAL'S TALK OF DICTATORSHIP STIRS UP GREEKS

War Minister Condylis Is Mentioned for Post.

ATHENS, May 2.—(AP)—The streets and coffee shops of Athens hummed today with talk of a dictatorship as the result of stiff political opposition the government faces on the matter of international and domestic policy.

It is an open secret that one cabinet member, picturesque Gen. George Condylis, the minister of war, favors such a form of government. In the event of a dictatorship it is rumored he would get the call to assume power.

The general, one of Greece's "strong men" and extremely popular with the army, declared in an interview that "nowadays dictatorship is the normal condition of a state." This statement touched off a round of speculation. Peace table conferences between administration representatives and the political opposition has allayed it but little.

Government Control Weak.

It has been reported that the government, faced with strong opposition, met and discussed the possible establishment of some form of dictatorship as the best means of insuring its existence. In some official quarters this report was promptly denied.

In many informed circles, too, the setting up of a dictatorship is considered unlikely, but this belief is balanced by the feeling that the government does not regard its control sufficiently strong and is laying plans to consolidate its position.

The government's apprehensions are said to arise largely from differences over the Balkan nonaggression pact which, although signed and ratified, still furnishes the basis of considerable party rancor.

Rally Around Venizelos.

The opposition, rallying under the stern leadership of Eleutherios Venizelos, the "grand old man of Greece," maintains the agreement entails some danger to this country through the possibility of war with a larger power.

The forthcoming presidential election forms another matter of concern to the government, but indications are that a compromise has been reached.

Under the constitution the president is elected every five years by the senate and chamber. The Venizelists are in the majority in the senate. Recent negotiations between administration heads and intermediaries for the opposition are understood to have resulted in an agreement whereby Alexander Zaimis will remain as president of the republic.

President Getting Old.

Some politicians, meanwhile, fear M. Zaimis may not be able to assume the post a second time. He is 76 and there are recurrent reports that his health is not good.

Opposition leaders have suggested that the senate and chamber sit jointly. The government vigorously opposes such a plan—the rub lying in the fact that the Venizelist majority in the senate outnumbers the slim numerical advantage of the government in the chamber.

The army's yearly register, upon which promotion in the ranks is based, is another bone of contention. The government favors those who have shown the greatest loyalty to the present régime. The Venizelists wish to favor those who exhibited loyalty to the Venizelos cause.

ROOSEVELT DOUBTS IF LIQUOR TAX WILL BE CUT AT THIS SESSION

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt believes there will be no reduction of the taxes on liquor at this session of congress, nor does he think it now lawful to lower the tariff on liquor imports. Both plans had been proposed by Joseph H. Choate Jr., federal alcohol control administrator, as means to fight the bootlegger.

Although the President has not discussed the subject with Mr. Choate, Mr. Roosevelt hopes that continued loosening of the quota restrictions in the next two months will do much to correct the situation. All foreign liquor that can be imported will be.

Congressional opinion holds that with passage of the reciprocal tariff legislation, President Roosevelt will have an effective new method to halt bootlegging activities.

Mr. Choate's request for lower taxes on legal liquor stirred Senator Borah to make a speech in the senate today. He insisted that before taxes were reduced Mr. Choate should supply figures on the "huge unconscionable" income of the legal liquor industry which Mr. Choate described as the single "profitable" one in the nation today.

Promises that the saloon would not return had been followed by drinking places "much worse than the saloon," Senator Borah declared, adding that code enforcement, placed "in sordid hands" had resulted in a protection to "the most heinous form of crime and immorality that can be conceived."

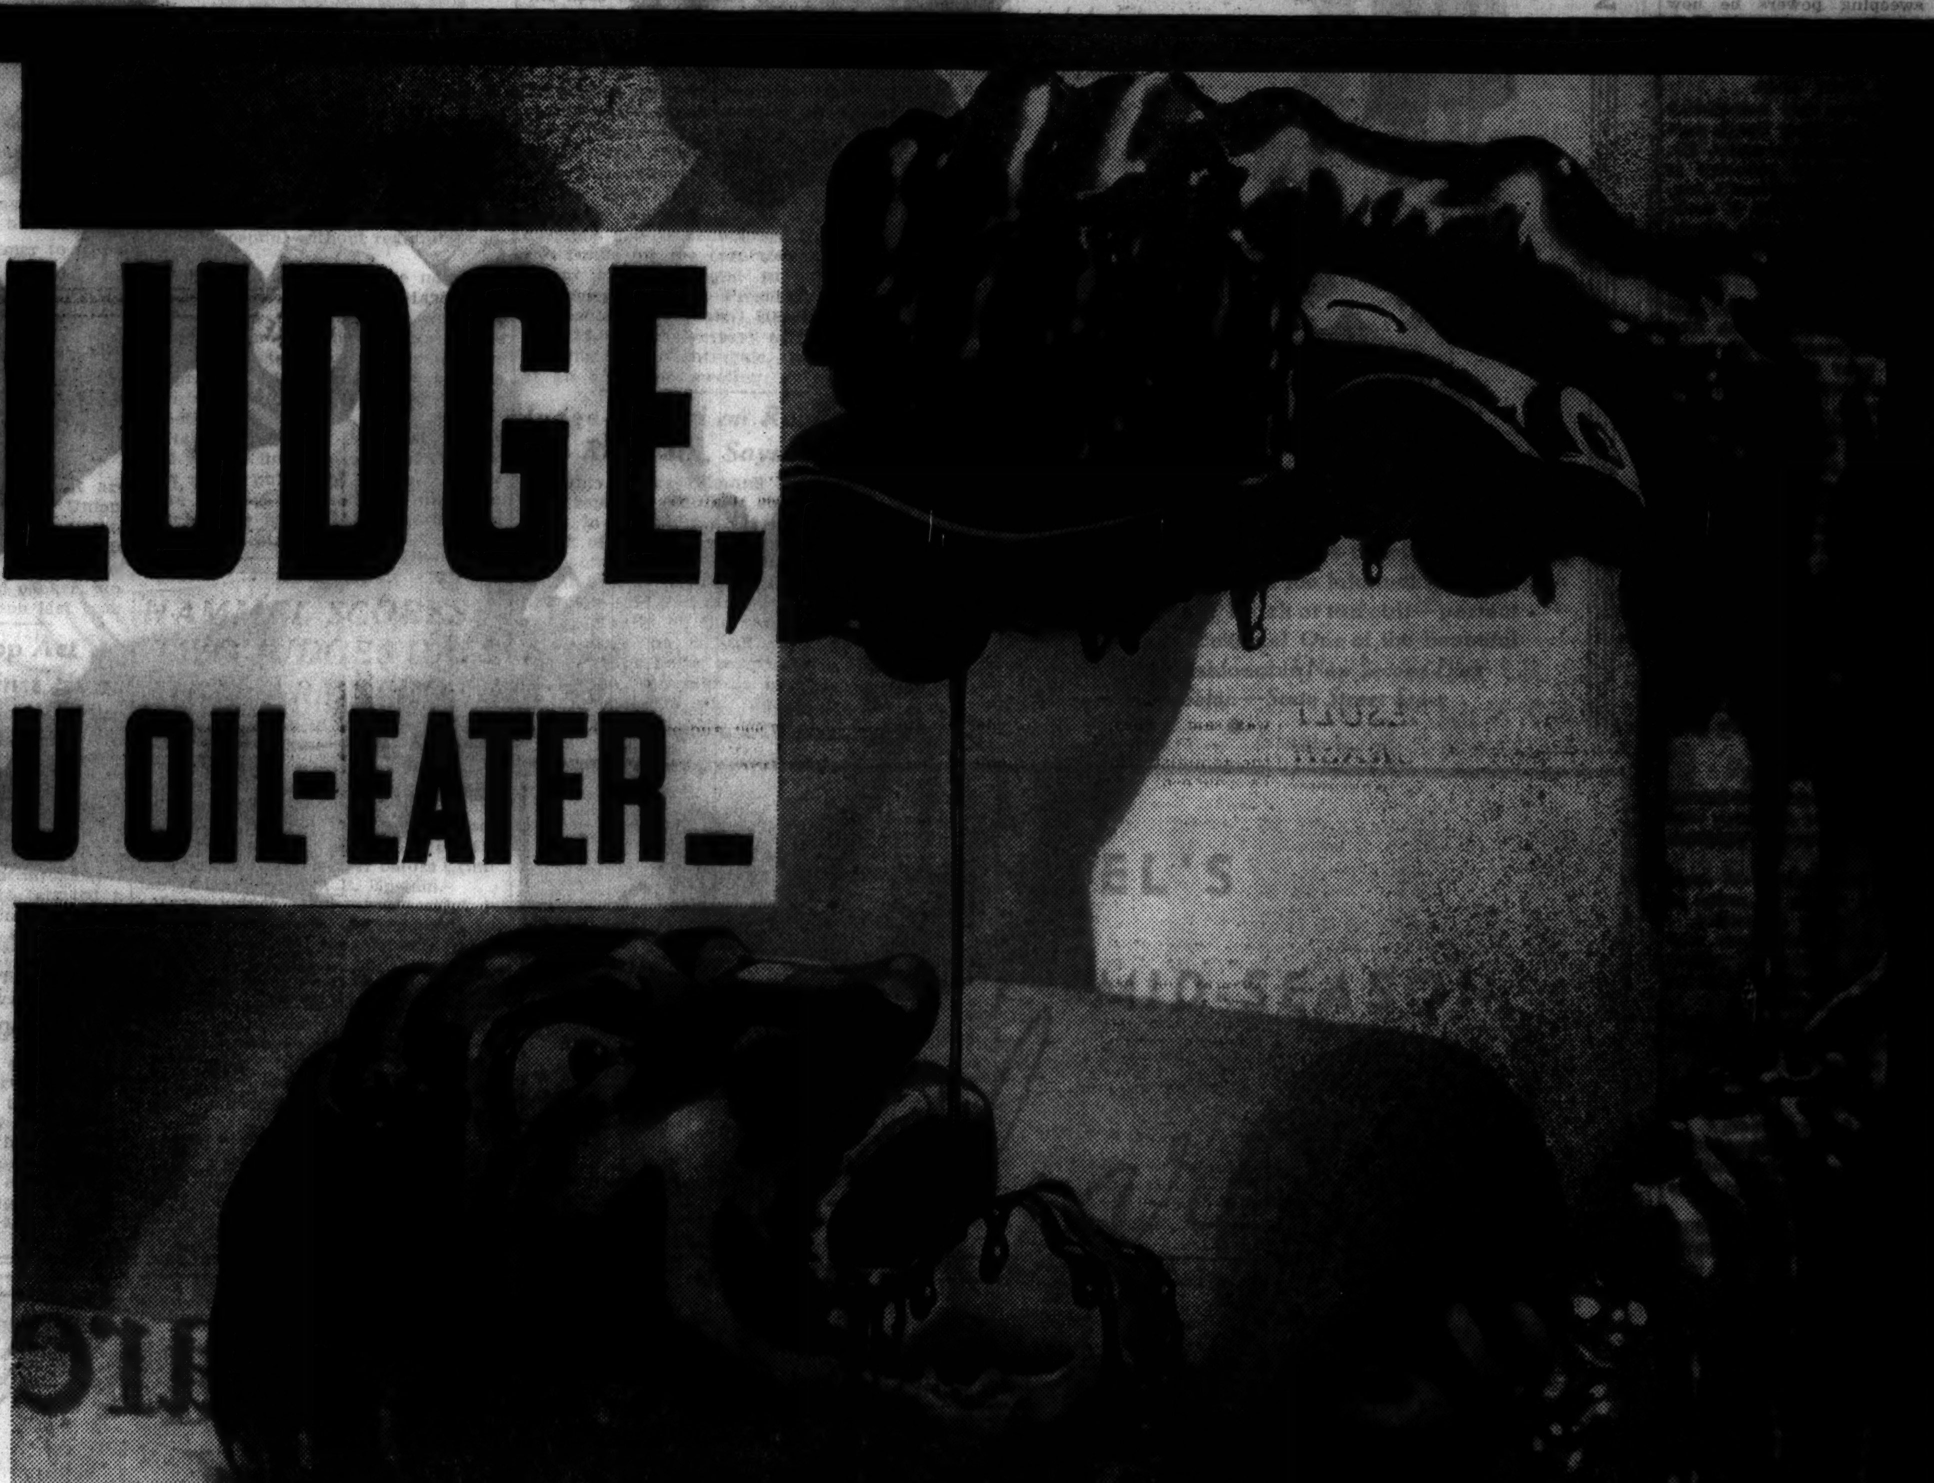
SLUDGE, YOU OIL-EATER—



GET OUT!

WITH higher temperatures here to stay, for economy's sake, don't delay changing to a heavier motor oil. Light oil, while desirable for quick starting in cold weather, is subject to higher consumption in warmer weather.

Futhermore, if you drove with ordinary oil during the winter, the chances are that right now there's an accumulation in your crankcase of that thick, gritty compound of dirt, moisture and broken-down oil, known as sludge.

Sludge is a fuel-waster and oil-eater. It causes piston rings to stick so that they pump oil; it slows down valve-action so that you lose gasoline power.

Getting rid of Sludge permanently is not hard.

Just have your crankcase drained—then refilled with ISO=VIS "D", the Anti-Sludge motor oil. It will keep your motor clean, lively and efficient—requiring far less oil between drains.

To make sure that you get the right grade of oil, the Standard Servisman takes three factors into consideration: (1) the weather, present and prospective, according to U. S. Weather Bureau records; (2) your make of car; and (3) the kind of driving you do. Nothing, you see, is left to chance.

WEATHER MAN SAYS: "Don't Put Off Changing Oil Any Longer!"

8 Short Minutes to Drain and Change

It takes no more than 8 minutes to drain off your worn out winter oil and refill with the proper grade of Iso=Vis "D" at Standard Oil Stations. Then you will be rid of sludge and you'll keep your oil cost to the minimum.

It's Change Time, Too, For Differential and Transmission Lubricants

Spring-time is the time to heavy-up on lubricants that protect your differential and transmission gears. Standard Stations have correct lubricants for this very purpose. And Standard Servismen are expert in the complete lubrication of any make of car. A Standard Specified Lubrication job means correct lubrication at every point.

plenty. But there are more coming as the controversy grows more acute. Both sides are beating the big bass drum and arguing their side of the matter. That means more pop bottles, more dead cats."

Bending over, the general picked up a note. He found it, he said, when he took his seat at the speaker's table, and he wanted his audience to hear it.

"If Johnson doesn't show up and you want a pinch hitter," he read, "the gentleman whose name is on the other side will be glad to fill in."

"The gentleman," said the general, "is Fred P. Mann, a member of the Darrow board. I'm glad I came."

Asks Rail Regulation.

Meanwhile at another dinner under the auspices of the chamber of commerce Joseph B. Eastman, federal coördinator of transportation, declared that federal regulation of all transportation was the only alternative to turning the railroads loose from the interstate commerce commission and permitting "a free for all" between the railroads and their water, air, and highway competitors.

Earlier the business leaders heard Henry I. Harriman, president of the National Chamber of Commerce, declare in an open address that President Roosevelt must give up the punitive and sweeping powers he now holds over business if the NRA is to become a permanent addition to American life.

Survey First Year.

Opening the three day convention with a survey of the New Deal's past and future plans for the country, Mr. Harriman declared that industry is willing to accept the President's suggestion of a permanent NRA if modifications and restrictions are placed on the broad authority granted Mr. Roosevelt during the emergency last year.

During a series of general and special discussions throughout the first day, American business men surveyed what the first year under the New Deal's régime had brought them. Generally, they agreed, the first year's harvest had brought economic improvement. But it had also brought, they added, grave forebodings about the government's plans for the future.

That business wants no revolution in the American social or political order such as the brain trust is reputed to be planning was reiterated over and over again as the three dozen odd speakers expounded their points of view to the convention.

Business is also nervous over the working of many of the New Deal's more drastic laws, some of which appear to be in open conflict with other points in President Roosevelt's program, the speakers revealed.

List Recovery Needs.

Among some of the points for future government policies the speakers said would speed the recovery program were:

Another 2 billion dollars of easy money for public works in order to help the laggard heavy industries.

Coördination of all land, water, and air transportation under a federal commission and a cessation of federal subsidies for inland waterways.

Relaxation of the present rigid security act and a softening of the pending stock exchange bill.

Approval by congress of the President's tariff bargaining plans as a means to reviving foreign trade.

Abandonment by the administration of its demand that industry cut its working hours 10 per cent and raise its pay rolls 10 per cent, and

"Codes Must Continue."

President Harriman in his opening address explained that industry was ready to accept the continuance of Blue Eagle codes provided that the NRA law is limited at certain points. He said that the codes must continue or business chaos will return.

"If I rightly sense the judgment of business men," Mr. Harriman said, "on the workings of the industrial recovery act, it is that the law has done much good; that many undesirable business practices have been eliminated and that the foundations have been laid for the orderly conduct of business. But I also sense a very widespread fear that an act based on the self-regulation of business, with government approval of such regulations, may become an autocratic act, for the regimentation of business by the government. There is a feeling that too many codes have been adopted and that the entire codification of business is unnecessary and undesirable; that the codes have endeavored to regulate too minutely the functions of business; that in the endeavor to raise wages promptly costs have been increased faster than the consuming power of the country, with resulting curtailment of business activity and a lessening of employment.

Emergency Powers Only.

"I further feel it is neither legal nor desirable that the President be empowered to license minorities or to impose codes. These are emergency powers which may well give place to more orderly court enforcement, with the advent of a more orderly business situation. It is also quite possible that the recovery act transfers powers to the President in too general language and that any permanent law must define more clearly and precisely the limits within which he must act. But I am sure that in basic industries codes of fair practices are essential, that the chaos of unbridled competition cannot be permitted to return and that some federal agencies coöperating with business must continue to carry out the major functions exercised by NRA and AAA.

"This does not mean a régime of burocratic control, but rather a régime of orderly economic freedom in which the industries themselves play their responsible part."

GOV. J. B. ELY FAVORS NEW DEAL CHANGES BEFORE BOND CLUB

New York, May 2.—(AP)—Gov. Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts spoke before the Bond club of New York today.

"If the policy of the national administration," he said, "were shaped toward the abandonment of those measures which are having such an unsettling effect on business, there is no doubt in my mind that industry would begin to pick up.

"No patriotic American can protest spending government money for relief purposes in an emergency such as now confronts us. But at the same time business is entitled to assurance that a limit will be placed on taxation and that additional taxes will not be levied for the mere purpose of spending government funds."

ROOSEVELT WILL ASK AUTHORITY ON HOUSING PLAN

To Request Congress for New Powers.

Washington, D. C., May 2.—(AP)—Authority to start a governmentally directed program for building new homes and making old houses like new will be asked of congress by President Roosevelt.

The President's decision to request congress for power to open this program is the result of a three months' study by the administration of housing conditions. The survey disclosed, among other things, that only half of the 54,300 home structures in a selected group of cities studied contained baths.

The reason for the plan is two-fold. Its proponents say that in the first instance it will better living conditions, and in the second will add to the work available both through the actual construction and by increasing the demand for the materials going into the houses.

No Appropriation Needed.

The legislation which Mr. Roosevelt is expected to ask in the next two or three days will simply give him authority to carry out the program. It is understood that no appropriation would be needed, other than for administrative purposes.

When the survey of housing needs was started by Frank C. Walker, executive director of the emergency council, early in February, three points were set up as objectives: Modernization of homes, construction of new private dwellings and apartments, and slum clearance and rehabilitation.

One factor contributing to the desire to build new homes was found by some in reports of returning prosperity. Where families had "doubled up" through the depression, those studying the question said incomes had increased to the point where individual homes were now possible.

Financing a Private Affair.

The financing of the program under the plan contemplated would be strictly a private affair, with 30 billion dollars or 40 billion dollars invested. The argument has been advanced that it would offer a good field for the investment of idle private capital.

In an already established phase of government help for house owners, the Home Owners' Loan corporation reported tonight that it had refinanced distress mortgages totaling $622,000,000 at the close of business last Saturday.

BRITISH APPEASED BY 'SATISFACTORY' REPORT ON BRITTEN'S SPEECH

LONDON, May 2.—(AP)—What was termed a "satisfactory" report on the recent speech of Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.], assailing Maj. Gerald Campbell, British consul general in New York, has been received by the foreign office from the British embassy at Washington.

(On the floor of the house of representatives, Britten demanded the recall of Maj. Campbell, on the ground that he had opposed American naval expansion.)

It was stated in official circles that "whatever imaginings Britten had" concerning Maj. Campbell will not affect the latter's position in the foreign service in any way.

The British government, it was intimated, will not protest the incident, but will leave it to the United States government or congress to take any action deemed necessary.

RACKET TRIAL DUE TO REACH JURY TONIGHT

Longest Case in History of Chicago Courts.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

The racket conspiracy case, which has been on trial before Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court since Jan. 4, is expected to reach the jury this evening. The trial is the longest in the history of the Cook county courts.

Final arguments in behalf of the 17 defendants will be completed this morning, after which Special Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Raber, who is in charge of the prosecution, will make his closing address to the jury. He is expected to talk for three or four hours. This will be followed by Judge Finnegan's instructions to the jury. When he concludes the jury will begin its deliberations.

Jury Locked Up Four Months.

During the four months the trial has been in progress the 12 jurors, one of whom is a bridegroom, have been locked up in the jury quarters in the administration building of the jail, except for the time spent in the courtroom. They appear to have come through the ordeal in good shape physically, and several of them are reported to have put on weight. Their only diversion has been a nightly card game, usually poker, for small stakes.

On one occasion a soft ball game was organized in the jail yard to provide outdoor exercise for the jurors. The next day all of them were limping when they entered the courtroom and one had adhesive tape over a badly discolored eye. The bailifs explained to the court that the juror had been injured when he misjudged a fly ball. Since then the exercise has been of milder form.

Two Defense Lawyers Taken Ill.

At no time has the trial been delayed because of the indisposition of a juror. However, two defense lawyers have become ill. Attorney James E. McShane, who represented Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, University of Chicago economist, one of the principal defendants, suffered a breakdown in the middle of the trial and has since undergone an operation for a brain tumor. Attorney W. E. Rodriguez, who represented several labor leaders who are defendants, is reported ill of malaria.

The final defense argument was begun yesterday by Attorney Floyd Thompson, present counsel for Dr. Squires, former czar of the cleaning and dyeing industry. Attorney Thompson did not confine his arguments entirely to his client, but spoke on behalf of all the defendants, inasmuch as this represents the last opportunity the defense has to address the jury. Mr. Thompson will conclude his arguments this morning.

Recalls Freeing of Nelson.

At the beginning of his argument Attorney Thompson spoke of the discharge of Ald. Oscar Nelson of the 46th ward, who was a defendant in the case until last week when he was freed by Judge Finnegan on a directed verdict of not guilty.

"The judge found, of course, that no evidence existed against Ald. Nelson," Attorney Thompson said. "By that decision the judge did not hold that he has any opinion of the guilt or innocence of the other defendants. That is a matter for you jurors to determine."

Mr. Thompson then went into a discussion of why the prosecution brought the names of Al Capone, gangster, and Murray Humphries, his chief lieutenant, into the indictment. Neither man is on trial. Capone is in the federal penitentiary in Atlanta and Humphries is a fugitive.

"If Capone Were on Trial."

"If Capone were on trial you would have to return a not guilty verdict in his case because the state has not produced any proof against him," Attorney Thompson said. "True, there is proof here that he tried to chisel into one of these industries, but the evidence shows he did not get in.

"Now why was his name put in this indictment? It was because the state knows that you men know Capone was the arch criminal of the country. They thought you would be prejudiced against these defendants by hearing a constant repetition of Capone's name.

"The prosecution tried to draw an evil inference from every act of each defendant," Attorney Thompson continued. "The law, or at least most of it, is ordinary common horse sense. It is your duty to try to reconcile the various inferences in this case with innocence and not with guilt, as the state has been doing for months."

23 Counts in Indictment.

The indictment which Attorney Thompson attacked, contains 23 counts, naming the defendants in a general conspiracy to maintain a boycott and monopoly, by means of bombings, sluggings and other forms of violence, in four industries: The linen supply, cleaning and dyeing, laundry, and carbonated beverage. The defendants include lawyers, business men and labor leaders.

In explaining the conspiracy law Attorney Thompson told the jury that unless the state proves that all the defendants acted as a unit in a single conspiracy in all four industries, then a not guilty verdict must be returned regardless of the individual acts of any defendant.

"The defendants are not responsible if the state attempted to build a thing which did not exist," he said. "It is ridiculous to try to connect the defendants in the various widely separated industries, which are in no way related."

Some amusement was caused by the constant interruptions of the four state prosecutors, who charged that Attorney Thompson was "misstating the law." Defense Attorney Benedict J Short cut in to inform the prosecutors that Attorney Thompson ought to know what he is talking about inasmuch as he wrote opinions on which the law is based when he was a state Supreme court justice.

Defends Squires' Rule.

Dr. Squires, according to Mr. Thompson, did not seek the job as head of the cleaning and dyeing industry but the job sought him. He did the best he could, he said, to straighten out in a legal way the chaotic condition in the industry. He characterized as "silly and ridiculous" the thought that Dr. Squires would connive at racketeering with hoodlums or even business men. The Squires contract, which made the university professor czar of the cleaning and dyeing industry, was legal, the attorney added.

Any manner of a guilty verdict would mean professional "death" to Dr. Squires, the defense attorney said. This would mean more to him than a possible 1 to 5 year sentence in the penitentiary, he said.

Sapiro Asks Acquittal.

Earlier in the day Attorney Aaron Sapiro, nationally known coöperative market expert who is a defendant, concluded his own closing argument by asking the jurors to restore to him his "good name." He denied that the laundry industry, under his guidance as counselor, was a monopoly or in restraint of trade, as charged by the state. He said it simply was coördinating conflicting interests in the industry.

Attorney Sapiro challenged the charge of the prosecution that since the present indictment bombings and violence have stopped in Chicago. He read from police statistics to show that 52 bombings have occurred between July, 1933, when the indictments were voted, and April 27, 1934.

Pupils of Suburban School Go on Brief Strike

Protest Dismissal

Five hundred pupils went on an hour and a half strike at the Hinsdale Township High school yesterday, parading the streets of the suburb on foot and in automobiles in protest against the expected dismissal of Vice Principal Lydia Brickbauer.

From 10 o'clock, after the regular assembly period, until the 11:30 classes convened, the students staged their demonstration with honking horns, and the shouted slogan of:

"We want Brickie."

According to M. B. Travis, principal of the school, Miss Brickbauer was told last week by Mrs. Theodore Browne, chairman of the teachers' committee of the school board, that her contract would not be renewed for the coming year.

Hearing of this, the pupils circulated a petition which was signed by about 400 of the 640 pupils in the school. The petition was presented to the board meeting Tuesday night.

By the petition, and by the presence of a number of pupils and their parents at the board meeting, the demand was made that Miss Brickbauer's contract be renewed, but the board refused to consider such action.

Yesterday's "strike" was the second move of the pupils, but Attorney Charles Cobb, president of the school board, gave no indication that the board would heed the demand for Miss Brickbauer's reëmployment.

Miss Brickbauer has been connected with the school for the last 20 years.

TWO ARE JAILED AS HARBORERS OF NORVELL, PAL

Murphysboro, Ill., May 2.—[Special.]—Sherifs' posses with bloodhounds continued today the hunt for Randol Eugene Norvell and James O'Connell, escaped convicts from the prison at Chester, Ill. Meanwhile, Frank Cowell and his step-son, Claud Childers, were in jail as harborers of escaped felons.

Sherifs' deputies said a letter addressed to Norvell was found on a window sill in the Cowell home. It was said a letter from Norvell to a St. Louis gangster, asking for a shipment of machine guns, had been obtained from a young farmer to whom it had been given to be mailed.

Hunting as a posseman along the bluffs near the Mississippi in Jackson county today, Ray Worthen of Murphysboro fell nearly 50 feet and broke a leg. It was reported first that he almost fell on Norvell and O'Connell, who fled. Later that was modified to say the chase was growing hotter.

Engaged in today's man hunt are deputy sherifs from Jackson, Union, and Franklin counties as well as state police. Norvell was serving a life term as leader in the kidnaping of August Luer, banker and packer, stolen from his home at Alton last year.

Invokes Dram Shop Act in Suit Against Hotel

Invoking the dram shop law, which makes a seller of liquor responsible for the acts of any one on his premises, Mrs. Gertrude Green, 1014 Hinman avenue, Evanston, brought suit for $25,000 yesterday against the Edgewater Beach hotel. She alleged that, while having supper at the hotel on New Year's eve, a party of intoxicated men at an adjoining table started a fight, and that she was injured when she was pinned between a table and a radiator.

Alleged Robber Is Held to Jury in $30,000 Bonds

Leo Zojac, 31 years old, one of three men arrested in a resort near Fox Lake last week, was held to the grand jury in bonds of $30,000 by Judge Howard Hayes yesterday on three charges of robbery. James Patton, who was arrested with Zojac, has confessed to participation in a holdup which resulted in the slaying of Morris Krinsky, a laundry driver.

ADMITS HE KILLED YOUTH OF 16 WHILE SHOOTING AT RATS

Michael Mazaschuk, 16 years old, of 2514 Augusta boulevard, confessed to Racine avenue police last night that he had fired the shot which killed Theodore Moskala, also 16 years old, of 2003 West Division street. He maintained the shooting was accidental.

The Moskala boy was found early yesterday shot through the heart and dying, on the sidewalk at 1101 North Ashland avenue, after he staggered out of a nearby alley. He died at St. Mary's hospital without regaining consciousness.

Police had canvassed the neighborhood, and learned that the Mazaschuk boy owned a .22 caliber rifle, and that he had been shooting at rats in the alley. He was taken into custody by Sergt. Leo Black, and after half an hour's questioning confessed to the shooting.

He declared that the Moskala boy had walked into the range of the gun just as he pulled the trigger. Police were satisfied that his story was true, but he was held for the continuance of the inquest.

HAMMEL SCORES; TWO JUDGES CALL HIM ARMSTRONG

The prisoner held as Allen R. Hammel, former Brinks Express company guard who disappeared with $39,000 last Dec. 15, won what he considered a "moral victory" yesterday when he was arraigned first before Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal courts and later before Criminal Judge Benjamin P. Epstein.

Both judges were unsuccessful in eliciting responses to remarks addressed to the stolid defendant when they called him Hammel. Vigorously he insisted he is Bert Armstrong, New York real estate dealer. Finally both judges called him "Mr. Armstrong" and thus addressed he entered a plea of not guilty to the charge of grand larceny for which he was indicted. His trial has been scheduled for May 31.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOOTS GIRL.

Champaign, Ill., May 2.—(AP)—Ten year old Raymond Carpenter of Mahomet, Ill., accidentally discharged a .22 caliber revolver it was thought was not loaded. The bullet struck Betty Martin, 12, in the head, brought to a hospital here, she was not expected to recover.

URGES INSURANCE POLICIES TO PAY HOSPITAL BILLS

Association Leader Tells Plan at Meeting.

Hospitalization through the use of health insurance which would cost about 70 cents a month per person was advocated yesterday before a meeting in the Hotel Sherman of delegates to the eighth annual tristate convention of the Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin Hospital associations.

The plan was explained by Dr. Bert W. Caldwell, executive secretary of the American Hospital association, in an address delivered to members of the Indiana Hospital association.

Employed in 40 Cities.

"This system of health insurance is now being operated successfully in 40 cities in the United States," said Dr. Caldwell. "It will shortly be put into effect in New York, Cleveland, and Washington.

"Participants in the plan each pay a monthly sum of between 65 and 75 cents into a fund that is handled by a public welfare agency. In case of sickness the patient is taken to a hospital of his own selection. The expense of hospitalization [not medical bills] is paid out of the fund.

"For the last two years the American Hospital association has been advocating the adoption of the group hospital plan, not only for the purpose of affording hospital care to a greater number of persons but also to broaden the base of support of the voluntary hospitals which care for the bulk of the country's sick."

Cites Lack of NRA Help.

Pointing out that hospitals had been excluded from participation in relief being dispensed by the NRA, Dr. Caldwell declared that hospital officials believe there should be a liberalization of the New Deal's policy so that voluntary as well as tax supported hospitals may be reimbursed from federal funds for the care they give indigent or unemployed patients.

A telegram from President Roosevelt indorsing National Hospital day, May 12, the anniversary of the birth of Florence Nightingale, was read at an afternoon meeting.

Judge Jarecki on Road to Recovery, Says Doctor

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki was reported gaining steadily last night in his fight against a serious attack of influenza which necessitated his confinement in the St. Elizabeth hospital. His physician, Dr. Francis A. Dulak, said that the judge appeared to be definitly on the road to recovery, though he is still very weak. The patient's pulse, temperature, and respiration were almost normal yesterday, the doctor said. Judge Jarecki was stricken on April 24.

DOG GETS BETTER CARE THAN BABE, BRITON CHARGES

Chides King for Being Patron of Shelter.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 2.—Dogs are better cared for in Great Britain than the children of the unemployed, the Laborite Aneurin Bevan declared in the house of commons tonight. He startled the house by comparing the charges for a dogs' home in Surrey, of which King George is a patron, to the government's allowance for the children of workless persons.

Bevan was attacking the government's failure to increase the children's allowance from the present figure of 50 cents weekly to 75 cents. He flourished a circular from the dogs' home, on which the king's name appeared as a patron, and quoted the charges for the maintenance of the canines, varying between $2.25 weekly for small terriers to $3.50 for Great Danes and St. Bernards.

King's Name Barred.

"There are people in this country," Bevan asserted, "who are prepared to pay more for the care of a dog than for a child. I say further that his majesty is patron of this home and head of the empire, and he declares that he can't keep a dog for less than 30 cents daily."

Bevan was interrupted by indignant cries of "Order, order," and was warned by the deputy speaker that he was getting close to introducing the name of the sovereign into debate, which is strictly contrary to parliamentary ethics. Bevan disregarded this advice, and continued amid opposition and cheers.

"What I am saying is absolutely correct. The sovereign of this country is the patron of this dogs' home. If there were any decency in the country the people wouldn't say that the country can keep a child for 60 cents a week, yet that a dog can't be kept for less than $2.25. It is monstrous and inequitable."

Members Stay Silent.

A majority of the members listened to this outburst in silence, and Bevan, having said his say, limited the remainder of his discourse to the more orthodox pastime of challenging the government's unemployment policy generally.

In a later speech the Liberal member, Kingsley Griffith, pointed out that Laborites once defeated a motion to raise the children's allowance. Griffith said:

"No doubt the dogs' home mentioned or similar homes were in existence in July, 1924, when legislation to increase the allowance to children of the unemployed from two to three shillings a week was voted down, largely by Labor votes."

CONNIE LE GARD WINS TITLE OF BLOSSOM QUEEN

Judges Take Many Votes to Pick Winner.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Benton Harbor, Mich., May 2.—[Special.]—Dainty, golden haired Connie Le Gard of Muskegon, will wear the crown of the Blossom Queen, and for a week beginning Sunday will rule over all southwestern Michigan at the Blossom festival held annually in the twin cities of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph. Miss Le Gard, who is 19 years old, was selected tonight at the final contest in the Liberty theater, where candidates from 29 fruit belt communities had been entered.

In one of the closest Blossom Queen races in recent years Miss Le Gard was named on the 14th ballot after the judges had failed for five ballots to decide between her and blonde Viola Ruth Speese, Benton Harbor's own candidate. Third place went to Virginia Christy, 21 year old brunette, Lansing's entrant as "Miss Capital City."

Favorite from Start.

Miss Le Gard was a favorite from the start. Before the balloting was half over many of the audience which packed the theater cheered and clapped as she appeared each time on the stage. The two runners-up were equally as popular, and as the balloting approached its climax it was apparent that the audience as well as the judges had made the same selections.

Scarcely tipping the scales at 108 pounds, Miss Le Gard is 5 feet 4 inches tall. She is the sole support of her widowed mother, Mrs. Signe Le Gard of 1604 South Jefferson street, Muskegon. She was born in Summit, S. D., but has lived in Muskegon since she was 3 years old. She is employed as a clerk in a department store.

Miss Speese, the runner-up, is 20 years old and the daughter of Deputy Sherif Leslie R. Speese, 234 Pipestone street. She is a nurse in training at Mercy hospital. She was a runner-up in the "Miss Benton Harbor" contest two years ago.

Miss Christy Is Stenographer.

Miss Christy is a stenographer in the office of Frank A. Picard of the state liquor control board. She is 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighs 110 pounds. Her father, Henry C. Christy, is a Lansing salesman.

The judges were Maj. Chester L. Fordney of stratosphere fame Municipal Judge Edward B. Casey of Chicago; Gene Arnold, radio writer and entertainer; Myrt of the Myrt and Marge radio team, and Miss Jean Barrington, Chicago, "Miss Ludington" of the 1930 blossom queen race.

Sunday the queen and her court will reassemble at the Premier hotel to begin their week of festival activities. Monday and Tuesday they will go to Chicago where they will be greeted by Mayor Kelly and visit points of interest. Wednesday they will return to Benton Harbor to attend a queen's party at Shadowland, spending that night at the Whitcomb hotel in St. Joseph.

GEORGE UNTIES A KNOT IN HIS MARRIAGE SNARL

George Ashworth, 27 years old, a farmer of Naperville, got his marital troubles straightened out yesterday after being jailed for bigamy and then divorced and remarried within three days.

Ashworth was arrested on a bigamy charge Monday on a warant sworn out by his first wife, Mrs. Iza Ashley. He was placed in the county jail at Sycamore. She charged that he had married Mildred Newton, a Naperville school teacher, without getting a divorce.

On Tuesday the first Mrs. Ashworth had a change of heart and permitted her husband to divorce her, Judge Max Allaben signing the decree. Yesterday she helped Ashworth remarry the second wife and appeared at the ceremonies conducted by County Judge H. W. McEwen at Sycamore.

Britain and Ireland Spurn Trotzky Plea for Asylum

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 2.—The British government today rejected the application of Leon Trotzky, exiled Russian, to live on one of the English channel isles. James Maxton, Labor member of parliament, and other friends approached the government some time ago seeking asylum for Trotzky. The Irish Free State government today also refused Trotzky permit to reside there.

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: Now You See It, Now You Don't

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm
By Bob Becker

Lamb Hangs Himself.

WE have had another Arbor day here on the farm. Day before yesterday the boys got busy with their shovels and planted 200 good sized tulip trees. These were a gift from William Lodge of Monticello, Ill. The trees are four or five feet high and in excellent condition. When digging the holes in which to set the roots of these young trees it was found that the ground was so dry that every tree was given a good big drink as soon as it was put in place. [This is called "puddling."]

With the planting of several thousand seedling locust trees as an aid to erosion control, and now these beautiful tulip trees, the experimental farm goes into spring with considerably more growth on its acreage than when the season opened. When some 75 unusual experimental crops have been put in, the "roll call" will be fairly complete.

While the boys were giving their attention to a project that would add new life to the farm, one life was snuffed out yesterday because a lamb accidentally hung himself. This little fellow got his head caught in the feed rack. When he found that he was hung up he must have struggled furiously. When Rawlings returned to the sheepfold from another part of the farm, where he was repairing gates, the poor lamb was dead. This loss brings the lamb count to 303 for the 1934 season.

The goats are the source of considerable worry to everybody these days. As far as I can figure out, Nanette and her mate have had a falling out. The old billy goat has been spending the last five or six weeks with the horses. While he was leading a carefree, happy-go-lucky life in the barnyard, Nanette was bringing up her triplets. When two of her kids were given away, she remained the devoted mother to her lone, remaining offspring.

This week everybody thought it would be nice to reunite the whole family, and so the billy goat was brought over to join his mate and the young kid. It was a grand idea, but it didn't turn out very well! Nanette and her kid weren't at all interested in the head of the family. After being snubbed thoroughly, the old billy goat went back to the barnyard. Nanette and her kid jumped a high fence and joined the ewes and the lambs. They're having a grand time every day in the pasture. So today we have a perfectly good goat family completely broken up, with mother and child telling the proud papa to be on his way.

Yesterday was a big day for a bunch of 116 steers on the farm. Talk about your spring festivals and all this queen of the May stuff, you ought to have seen these steers put on a party when they were turned out of the feeding yard into their new pasture. The boys lined up in the yard to get the first white faced yearlings started through the gate and then how those Herefords did kick up their heels and gallop around, once they passed through the opening and headed for the open pasture.

No more standing around in a fenced yard for this bunch. From now on they are going to have plenty of room. However, I have a hunch that they are doing a bit of grumbling at the weatherman for not sending more rain this spring, because the many weeks of dry weather have not produced much of a crop of grass in the pasture.

And now the Wisconsin trout season has arrived, so we'll have to leave our farm diary, all the white faced steers, Queen, the little colt, and the experimental crops for a few days. Just gotta go fishin' when the trout start bitin'!

$632,067 HIGHWAY CONTRACTS LET BY COUNTY BOARD

The county board members yesterday awarded contracts totalling $632,067 for thirteen road paving projects and the construction of three bridges. More than 500 men will be given work on the projects which are being financed with the aid of federal funds. The paving contracts awarded follow:

Irving Park boulevard, from Natoma to Narragansett avenues, $15,201.
Kedzie avenue, from 67th to 71st streets, $65,835.
Avondale avenue, from Olympia to Bryn Mawr avenues, $113,716.
Arlington Heights road, from Central avenue to Thomas street, $71,207.
Franklin avenue, from Wolf to County line road, $35,387.
Wolf road, from Butterfield road to Randolph road, $14,772.
87th street, from Ashland avenue to Paulina street, $12,007.
Touhy avenue, from Busse to Greenwood roads, $16,589.
Ridge road, from Ravenswood to Peterson avenues, $13,007.
Glencoe road, from Scott to Temple streets, $72,937.
Glencoe road, from Temple street to Vernon avenue, $68,003.
Green Bay road, from Vernon avenue to County line road, $50,185.
Dempster street sidewalk, from Busse road to Potter avenue, $2,746.

The contracts for the construction of the bridges were:

Cottage Grove avenue—Deer Creek bridge No. 2, $46,353.
Green Bay road overpass at Vernon avenue, $22,163.

The contracts awarded are part of a program calling for the expenditure of $18,000,000 in the building and improving of public roads in the county this year.

WORKERS BATTLE; ONE SLAIN.

James McMillan, 47 years old, a Negro, of 4212 Evans avenue, was fatally stabbed yesterday by Sidney Mitchell, 35 years old, also a Negro, of 519 East 50th street, in the plant of Miller & Hart, packers, where both men were employed as butchers. Police arrested Mitchell.

A $95 JUDGMENT TAKES PLACE OF BERTHA'S TEETH

Miss Bertha Krinberg, 1448 South Kolin avenue, doesn't have her false teeth any more, but she does have a judgment for $95 against the dentist who made them—and she paid only $64 for the teeth in the first place.

In a hearing yesterday before Judge Edgar A. Jonas of Miss Krinberg's suit against Dr. L. Lionel Holzman, a dentist with offices at 4010 Madison street, Miss Krinberg said the dentist made the teeth for her two years ago. She said she paid $64 and still owed $30. Last Feb. 21, she testified, Dr. Holzman asked that he be allowed to exhibit the teeth at a dental convention, and she complied with the request. She hasn't seen the teeth since, she declared.

Judge Jonas decided that the request to exhibit the teeth was only a scheme to get them back in default of the unpaid $30, and awarded Miss Krinberg $95 damages—but not the teeth.

VOTE BAN ON BEER SALES IN COUNTY FOREST PRESERVE

The county commissioners voted yesterday to prohibit the sale of beer in the forest preserves. The sale of hard liquor has already been banned. The board members acted upon the recommendation of Commissioner Homer V. Byrd, who argued that most of the preserves border on dry territory and that a provision of the state liquor law forbids any connection between public officials and the sale of liquor.

RENTAL AGENT ROBBED.

Posing as prospective tenants, three men yesterday entered a vacant store at 5934 West North avenue, where Joseph Heisler, 1010 North Mason avenue, a hotel rental agent has a desk. They slugged Heisler and robbed him of $325.

WITNESSES TELL OF BOOPS HEARD BEFORE HELEN'S

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—A number of witnesses testified before Supreme Court Justice Edward J. McGoldrick today that they had heard boop-boop-a-doop songs long before Helen Kane says she introduced them to the public.

Miss Kane insists that she was the originator of the singing technic which she has claimed as hers since 1928, and that the technic was stolen by Max Fleischer, Fleischer Studios, Inc. and Paramount-Publix corporation in the promotion of the Betty Boop animated cartoons. For this infringement on her alleged rights Miss Kane asks $250,000 damages.

The first witness today was Alfred Evans, who said he was in the employ of Rudy Valee. He said that in 1927, a year before Helen Kane first offered a boop, he heard a few from Edith Griffith, who affected a baby voice in her stage performances.

Marion Luber, a dancer, told the court that early in 1928 she heard Baby Esther, a Negro child performer, employ the boop style of singing.

KILLS SELF AT WIFE'S GRAVE.

Des Moines, Ia., May 2.—(AP)—Levert Aulgur, 55, of Des Moines, died in a hospital today after taking poison and shooting himself in the chest, while slumped over his wife's grave.

"ZEPHYR" HITS A TRUCK; SUFFERS ONLY TWO DENTS

Detroit, Mich., May 2.—[Special.]—Thomas Wright, a farmer of Woodslee, Ont., has the distinction of being the first motorist to have a collision with the new "Burlington Zephyr." It cost him a wrecked motor truck, though the front of the stream lined, Diesel powered steel train had only two slight dents. Wright leaped to safety in the nick of time.

The accident occurred as the train was being brought here for exhibition when Wright tried to beat it to a crossing near Essex, Ont.

The "Zephyr" had been traveling at a speed of 106 miles an hour, but had slowed to 60 miles an hour as it approached Essex, and was going only about 40 at the time of the collision.

The train will be put into service on the Burlington line after an exhibition tour.

20,000 Men to Get Jobs on Ontario Road Works

TORONTO, May 2.—(AP)—Leopold Macaulay, Ontario's minister of highways, announced today that 20,000 men will be provided with work directly or indirectly under road contracts let today. The amount involved is $5,000,000.

CHICAGO'S COAL PRICES BOOSTED BY NRA RULING

Added Yearly Cost Is Put at $2,000,000.

Coal prices announced by NRA code authorities for the West Virginia and eastern Kentucky mine fields will increase Chicago's coal bill next winter by at least $2,000,000, according to estimates made yesterday.

The code authorities, meeting in Cincinnati on Tuesday, set a new uniform price level for all coal sold from these fields to Chicago dealers, it was disclosed. This action knocks out the difference between the price of coal shipped here by lake boats and the higher price of coal delivered by railroads.

Under the differential Chicago dealers have saved a minimum of 25 cents a ton on the price of coal sent by water. This saving, together with the transport cost as a result of water shipment, has been reflected in the prices to consumers, according to experts of the Association of Commerce.

Only Chicago Affected.

The new uniform price schedule fixed by the code authorities applies only to the Chicago district, that area along the shore of Lake Michigan from Gary on the south to Highland Park on the north. Thus, it was pointed out, the schedule will enable dealers in other lake cities, including Waukegan, Milwaukee, Detroit, and Duluth to buy the eastern coal more cheaply than Chicago can.

Chicago dealers, for instance, will have to pay at least 25 cents a ton more than dealers in other lake cities for coal shipped by rail from the mines to Toledo and transported thence by lake boats.

The estimate of $2,000,000 added cost to Chicago was made by the Association of Commerce men, who said the increase might be much more than this.

3,000,000 Tons a Year.

In recent years Chicago has used 2,000,000 tons of coal annually from the West Virginia and Kentucky fields. Gary, with its steel mills, has bought another million tons a year from the same source.

Most of this coal has been bought in 50 ton railroad car lots by yard dealers operating in Chicago. However, three large docking companies in the Chicago area have for 15 years purchased their coal in 10,000 ton barge lots, bringing it to Chicago from Toledo in coal boats, thereby cutting the cost of rail freight by 55 cents a ton.

The railroad car lot buyers are allowed by the mine owners to purchase only relatively small amounts of coal at a time, so they are unable to take full advantage of the seasonal fluctuations in coal prices. These prices, set every month by the mine operators, range from the low in midsummer when the demand is least to a high which is usually double the summer price in midwinter when the demand is greatest.

Buy at Summer Price.

The boat load lot purchasers, however, have been able to navigate the lakes with their barges only during the summer months, and thus most of their purchases were made at that time anl stored in warehouses for winter sale. Since the mines depended on these sales of "lake" coal to keep their shafts open and crews working throughout the summer they were willing to make a special price to the docking companies who purchased 500,000 tons each summer for Chicago alone.

The Association of Commerce men explained that the docking companies, by holding their coal for winter consumption, have managed to undersell the yard dealers in midwinter. The competition offered by this coal at reduced prices also tended to keep the yard dealers from charging higher prices, the experts said.

Ruling of Code Authorities.

The NRA coal code authorities' ruling will change this situation, it was asserted. The code authorities ruled that all coal sold to Chicago dealers must be sold at the same price, whether in the 50 ton railroad car lots or in 10,000 ton barge lots.

James Hoskins, owner of the Lake Dock and Coal company, asserted last evening as spokesman for the docking concerns that the code ruling was inspired by the Chicago Coal Merchants' association—all members of which are purchasers of coal shipped here by railroad—and by the Illinois mine operators.

Ford Moves Trees from Edison Home to Museum

VIENNA, Ont., May 2.—(AP)—Shrubs, bushes, and small trees have been removed from the boyhood home here of Thomas Edison to the museum of Henry Ford at Dearborn, Mich. The electrical wizard's little home was moved to the Ford museum a year ago. The bushes, shrubs, and trees will be placed around the home in the museum in the exact positions they held in this little East Elgin village. Ford's gardeners moved the plants and architects charted their locations.

U.S. Judge in Kentucky Rules Coal Code Unconstitutional

Louisville, Ky., May 2.—(AP)—On the ground that the NRA bituminous coal code is unconstitutional as applied to local business, Federal District Judge Charles I. Dawson today temporarily restrained the government from forcing the code upon unwilling operators in western Kentucky. He set May 11 for a hearing on a permanent injunction.

"To my mind," Judge Dawson explained, "the unconstitutionality of the act as it applies to local business is simple and conclusive. Looking at the code in its most favorable light, it can be no more than a private contract with the President acting as umpire.

"If I accept it as a contract, it is perfectly ridiculous to subject one of the parties to a fine by the government. If it is a contract, the district attorney has no right to proceed againt one of the parties." He added he was not "conceding that the code is a contract and reserves jurisdiction on that point."

Protest Code Wage Scale.

The operators, who claim to have $50,000,000 invested in the mines, chiefly in Hopkins, Muhlenberg, Union, and Webster counties, protested vigorously when the code recently was formulated providing for $4.60 a day for seven hours work. Prior to that the scale was $4 for eight hours work.

On April 2 the mines, save for a few on contract work, were shut down, throwing some 11,000 men out of work and causing total loss to the operators which they estimated at $10,000 a week. Next day the injunction suit was filed before Judge Dawson.

The court's restraining order today was directed at District Attorney T. J. Sparks, that part of the petition referring to J. R. Lyman, state compliance director for NRA, having previously been dismissed on the ground he lacked authority to initiate prosecutions for code violations.

Washington Withholds Comment.

In Washington NRA officials withheld comment pending a conference on the ruling, but gave no indication of disturbance over Judge Dawson's holding that NRA could not constitutionally regulate any business which did not conform to the traditional interpretation of interstate commerce.

J. Van Norman, attorney for the operators, said the mines would be reopened as soon as wage contracts can be signed with the Independent Miners' union on a $4-seven-hour day scale. The latter, composed of what are known as "company unions," already has indicated its willingness to accept this.

E. J. Morgan, district president of the United Mine Workers of America, said his union held that the miners should not work for less than the code scale. "I should make this clear," he added. "We are not striking. The operators have locked us out."

Judge Dawson helu that coal mining was strictly intrastate business, and could not be regulated by an act of congress.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday, including those for 1932, were $627,448, making a total of $167,684,889 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began April 28, 1933. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for four years follow:

	1928.	1929.
May 2	$15,170	$49,800
Uncollected	14,444,808	38,955,907
	1930.	1931.
Uncollected	62,676,239	56,127,222

The day's collections of 1932 real estate taxes totaled $253,039; of 1931 personal property taxes, $2,926, and of 1932 personal property taxes, $7,005.

Since enactment of the Kerner-Skarda act delinquent taxes totaling $27,695,485 have been collected by the county treasurer's office through suits filed against delinquent properties, County Treasurer Thomas D. Nash reported yesterday. The treasurer's office has filed 14,503 petitions for appointment as receiver involving properties owing approxmately $81,000,000 in delinquent taxes, he said.

The county treasurer pointed out that collection of real estate taxes has doubled for the eleven months following the passage of the Skarda bill on April 28, 1933, as compared with the collections for the eleven months previous to its enactment.

ASTRONOMERS OF WORLD WATCH JUPITER "STORM"

Violent Disturbance on Planet Seen.

Cleveland, O., May 2.—(AP)—Astronomers in many parts of the world trained powerful telescopes tonight on the planet Jupiter to study a violent, stormlike disturbance that has been putting a mysterious blotch on the old man's complexion.

Roughly 400,000,000 miles from the earth, the disturbance has been churning the planet's layer of atmosphere over an area 2,000 miles wide and 20,000 miles long.

Jupiter's newest breaking out was observed for the first time, at least in the United States, last Sunday night by Prof. J. J. Nassau, director of the Warner and Swasey observatory in Cleveland, and professor of astronomy in the Case School of Applied Science.

Appears Like White Spot.

The storm appeared like a "white spot" in the planet's south equatorial belt, Prof. Nassau said.

The following night he was able to get only an unsatisfactory glimpse of the mysterious disturbance, but last night he saw it clearly again. In 48 hours it had twisted into a greatly changed shape and grown slightly smaller, he said.

Unlike sun spots, the phenomenon on Jupiter has no known effect upon the earth, Prof. Nassau asserted. Besides being a tremendous distance from the world, Jupiter, although more than 10 times as large as the earth, is one of the "deadest" of all the planets.

"It is believed there is a solid core inside, coated with a thick layer of ice with a surface temperature about 300 degrees below zero on the Fahrenheit scale," Dr. Nassau said.

Atmosphere Zone Outside.

Outside the icy layer is an atmospheric zone in which there appears two paralleling encircling bands, known as the planet's "equatorial belts."

Prof. Nassau was observing a black spot in the south equatorial belt, noted recently by a German astronomer, when he discovered the white spot of the newest disturbance.

One of the youngest of this country's outstanding astronomers, the Case professor believes the black spot was the result of an atmospheric condensation, and the white spot a cloud of undertermined atmospheric material erupted to the surface by unexplained forces.

The view was already about 34 minutes old when he saw it, the professor said, explaining it takes about that long for light to traverse the distance from Jupiter to the earth.

NOT SIGHTED HERE.

Dr. George Van Biesbroeck and other scientists at Yerkes observatory of the University of Chicago, at Williams Bay, Wis., last night trained their telescopes on the planet Jupiter, but were unable to see the storm phenomenon described by Prof. J. J. Nassau of Cleveland. It was explained that the planet had turned to such a position that the areas viewed by Prof. Nassau were not visible last night.

Jupiter is an evening luminary and may be seen in the southeast in the evening. It may be identified as the brightest of the celestial bodies.

HOLD 5 WINDOW SMASHERS.

Five men who were captured after they had smashed windows of the Atkins & Freund department store, 4807-11 South Ashland avenue yesterday, and were making away with liquor, were held at the New City police station to be viewed by victims of other robberies.

A Costly Experiment

Curtailing expenditures by cheapening the character of one's attire is usually a costly experiment. True economy is not how cheap but how good. In times of limited incomes discerning men may buy less, but they are more particular as to actual value. Also, they realize the great importance of always safeguarding personal appearance which reflects one's individuality.

There is a fundamental variance between cheap merchandise and quality productions. They are built on entirely different bases. Cheap grades are often craftily planned solely to make money while quality products are created to give satisfaction and, of course, a justifiable profit. Our Shirts, Cravats and other quality requisites are a sound investment.

KELVINATOR

. . the finest in electric refrigeration

YOU wouldn't want to deny yourself one of these features, would you? And you needn't, for Kelvinator with all its greater efficiency, beauty, convenience and economy costs you no more than would less adequate refrigeration. You pay no premium for having the best that modern science and craftsmanship can and does bring you in the Kelvinator.

Really "4 refrigerators in 1"

There is an "emergency" fast freezing refrigerator with the Record Freezing Speed. There is a "food-filing" refrigerator for separate filing and refrigeration of dairy products, fresh vegetables and usable left-overs. A third refrigerator insures adequate supply of ice cubes and allows quantity freezing of desserts or salads. Finally, a "Frost Chest" refrigerator permits the indefinite storage of meats or fish at a constant below-freezing temperature. Why should you be content with less?

THE BALANCE SHEET.

Our government operates on the theory that, if it can only squander more money than ever was squandered before, prosperity will return.

The British government in recent months has operated on the theory that its expenses must be kept within its income.

Our government is piling up deficits unprecedented in peace time. Taxes in this country are going up.

The British treasury finished its year with a surplus of nearly $160,000,000 and taxes in Great Britain are being lowered.

If the brain trusters' theory is right the United States ought to be making record breaking progress out of the depression and Great Britain ought to be sinking deeper into the mire every day. In fact, the United Kingdom has recovered 92 per cent of the ground it had lost since 1928, while the United States has recovered only 32 per cent of its lost ground. [The figures were compiled by league of nations statisticians and are based upon the index of industrial production.]

We have the brain trust and the British have the benefit of common sense. Common sense teaches that taxation hampers business. Lower taxes mean more business. The British lowered the tax on beer by 2 cents a pint last year and after the tax was reduced the total revenue from beer taxation increased by $25,000,000. We had a similar experience in this country when successive lowerings of the income tax rates before the depression brought successive surpluses to the federal treasury.

When will the present administration in Washington learn?

THE TRUTH ABOUT COMMUNISM IN RUSSIA.

Since the American government has shaken hands with the bolshevik régime in Russia and so many of its officials are admirers of the communist experiment, the American public might reasonably demand more reliable information of conditions under sovietism. It is getting censored reports, occasionally mitigated by observers who have left Russia. Only in books not very widely read, or in sporadic articles, are revealed the facts which Moscow would like to keep from the outside world. Offsetting these sparse disclosures we have the propaganda of communist partisans, some of them of note, such as Bernard Shaw, whose utterances have wide publicity and give congenial support to our pink intellectuals.

To the latter are recommended the remarks of a former British radical who went to Russia, got employment in a factory, and took on soviet nationality to his bitter disillusionment. They are quoted in a recent British book on Russia as follows: "When I think of that absurd, vain, rich old man letting himself be gulled, accepting the betrayal, spreading it in his magazine articles, and fetching us here to starve, I long for the same thing to happen in England, if only so that he and his like might suffer the same fate they've suffered here." We cannot share the wish for America, but we should like to have our false liberals and our enthusiastic advocates of communism, including men like Brookhart, who wants to communize American agriculture, deported to Russia and sent to work in the forests and mines of the bolshevik Utopia.

Instead, unfortunately, we have them at work in our own country, and it is time that their propaganda were discredited, as it would be by a fair report of what is happening to the Russian people under the dictatorship of the proletariat. We are not getting a fair report. In the book quoted above, "Winter in Russia," the writer, a correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, says he had to come back to England to write and publish his book because, as he explains, foreign correspondents are not free reporters in Russia but "work under the perpetual threat of losing their visas and therefore their jobs. Unless they consent [which most of them do] to limit their news to what they know will not be displeasing to the dictatorship of the proletariat, they are subjected to continuous persecution."

It is because of this notorious cheat upon American readers that THE TRIBUNE has refused to maintain correspondents in Russia.

This situation permits the continual deceit of American readers, who, especially in present political conditions, have a substantial interest in knowing the whole truth about communism. It is not only our interest but our right which ought to be asserted by our government now that it has formally entered into relations with the soviet republic. Our government should demand freedom for American correspondents and fully adequate protection from censorship and coercion. Our ambassador, Mr. Bullitt, is not likely to exert himself in that direction, but the President and his state department should insist upon it. Enthusiasm for a free press is not precisely warm in our present government, as we have had reason to note, but recognition of the soviet government should imply recognition by the soviet government of the right of American correspondents in Russia to report their observations without official censorship.

HIGHWAY EDUCATION.

With the outdoor season at hand, long, sunny days ahead beckoning to the motorist to live and enjoy life, and the promise of crowded thoroughfares wherever automobiles can run in Chicago and its environs, Cook county's trafic situation calls for immediate attention. Automobile owners who violate trafic laws and regulations are not so stupid but that they can be educated. Those who offend by perversity and intent are not so wicked but that they can be made to see the light through prompt and stiff punishment. Who more efficiently can handle that job than the police?

A cruising motorcycle policeman, perhaps followed by a brace of his brethren to protect him against thugs, can accomplish a great deal toward making the streets of the city or the highways of the outlying districts safe for all kinds of vehicular trafic. Let him tell motorists where and how to drive. Let him halt those who disregard stop lights. Let him take the license numbers of all infringers. Let him instruct as well as warn first offenders. And let him arrest repeaters, making certain that their cases go to court. A little book with the license numbers of all previous violators of the law, arranged as closely to numerical order as possible, will tell the policeman at a glance whether or not he is dealing with one who is offending for the first time.

Touring trafic teachers, such as the one here suggested, in a short time—a few months at most—probably could clear up the trafic situation in Cook county.

THE RUGGED INDIVIDUALIST.

Chicago will soon be given an opportunity to inspect the Burlington's new Diesel-propelled, stainless steel, streamlined train, the Zephyr. Trial runs photographed from the air have already been exhibited in our moving picture houses. The train is called the railway's answer to highway and airplane passenger transport, and it looks capable of its assignment.

There is a lot of history behind this shining streak of stainless steel—and a principle. The railways developed their passenger equipment from the horse and stage coach. The former was displaced by the locomotive and the latter elongated, but the principle was the same. Weight was increased, but other improvements have followed the one track idea that the people wanted the luxury of an ocean liner—sleeping cars, vestibules, club cars, entertainment—regulation. Then came automotive transportation to prove that travelers merely wanted to get somewhere and at their convenience. The railways spent thousands of dollars on posters to convince the public that the railway was still the safest and sanest mode of transportation, and the American citizens responded with millions of new automobiles and increased bus patronage.

Now the railways, after forty-six years of the much touted regulation to promote fair competition, have thrown precedent to the winds and produced a rugged individualist.

GOVERNMENT BY PROPAGANDA.

1. To promote the passage of the administration bill to control commodity exchanges, Secretary Wallace announced on April 11 that he was suspending the trading privileges of Arthur Cutten on all boards of trade. The offenses for which this action was taken were alleged to have been committed three and four years ago. It was admitted that the facts had been known for a long time. But Cutten's is a well known name and an allegation of misdeeds in trading on his part was calculated to arouse popular support for the law Wallace wanted passed.

2. With the administration opposed to the enactment of silver legislation, a list of persons owning silver in quantities was released last week as action was about to be taken authorizing the purchase of large quantities of silver. Inasmuch as silver is of necessity owned by wealthy people the publication of the list, it was believed, would arouse prejudice against any action to increase the price of the metal. The silver proposal was very bad, but so was the means employed to defeat it.

3. As a means toward the end of driving through congress the Fletcher-Rayburn stock exchange bill which has stirred up popular opposition on the part of small stockholders, there was released on Tuesday a report of Ferdinand Pecora showing that stock brokers had earned a very large amount of profits in 1928 and in the succeeding years. This report, it was believed, would incense stock owners against brokers who made money while traders lost it.

The members of this congress act like sheep of different colors. There is nearly always a black sheep or two. Judging from the responses of the present membership nearly all who are not black sheep are white—but they are sheep of one color or another. And the brain trust in the rôle of the Big Bad Wolf is driving them at will.

Editorial of the Day

[Illinois State Register.]

The Indianapolis Star omitted from all its editions the other day the seven column headline usually printed across the top of its front page. In a page one editorial it was explained that Indianapolis lottery operators had been using the headline as a basis for a variation of the "letter and number" guessing racket. The Star, not caring to be a party to the racket, which is said to harvest nickels and dimes from citizens who cannot afford to spend them, omitted the usual headline and called upon law enforcement agencies to put a stop to the racket.

While the indignation of the Indianapolis newspaper can be understood, it does not appear necessary for the Star to sacrifice its usual and distinctive front page makeup. Those who want to gamble and those who promote gambling rackets find a basis for operations in any field of endeavor. Considerable sums of money have been paid over to lucky persons who guessed the page numbers of hymns sung at a certain church on a certain Sunday morning. Inveterate gamblers will hazard money on the direction a flea will hop or on the time of the appearance of a sparrow hawk over a certain street intersection. Men have been known to wager money on what congress will do next.

There is the chance that "bookies" are even now canvassing the Indianapolis business district, placing nickel and dime bets with men who want to name the date on which the Indianapolis Star will resume its former seven column headline.

AFTERMATH.

Now that moving is over one day will be devoted to the following remarks:

"Where in heck is that bottle of Scotch that I packed in the trunk with the bed sheets?"

"Mercy! What in the world has become of that damask tablecloth that Cousin Julia gave us for a wedding present?"

"I just know that that big fat moving man sat down on my hat box and smashed everything flat."

"By gravy! this moving thing was your idea, but if I don't find that fishing pole I'm a-going to tear this place up by the roots, and that's that!"

"What could have become of those silver spoons? I packed them in the baby buggy as carefully as I could. Here is the baby buggy, BUT WHERE ARE THE SILVER SPOONS?"

"All right, there's six bottles of beer missing, and if that guy I hired to help us move don't bring 'em back darned if I don't have him arrested. If I ever see him again."

"It isn't the money's worth of that bottle of scent, but Charley gave it to me for a birthday present and I'm going to find it if I have to tear this house to pieces, so there now."

ALL TOGETHER IN GRAND CHORUS: "Oh, I wish we hadn't moved!"

FATHER: "All right, but don't blame me. Your mother thought of it and said we had to move because she didn't like the neighbors at the old flat."

MOTHER: "Why, William, how can you say that? You wanted to move so you could have a den and a better place to keep your Scotch and the gin and the rest of those horrible rum things!"

MISCELLANEOUS WAILS: "Thunderation, where's my briarwood pipe?" . . . "I can't find my bedroom slippers!" . . . "Oh, horrors! My toothbrush is lost!" . . . "Now, who packed up this trunk? It looks as though somebody just piled things in with a pitchfork!" . . . "Great jumping Jupiter! if I don't find that purple tie with the yellow stripes I'll make them movers sip sorrow with a big spoon!" . . . "Oh! oh! oh! Every single one of those six real Irish linen monogramed towels that Aunt Sophie gave us is gone!" Et cet., et cet., et cet.

ALL TOGETHER: "Oh, I wish we hadn't moved!"

APOLOGIA PRO SUA VITA.

When Reason flutters like a gutted lamp
Before the final hour of Body's throne,
And nerves scream out like tortured hares
Caught in a trap—when men atone
Quickly, each in his own belief,
For ill things said and thin deeds done—
O in that hour, Lord God of Hosts,
Be near to one
Who shall not die in Glory's field,
Nor cry a fearsome word of flame—
But only fall, a lonely child,
And call the little, loved name
Of one who eased his early fears.
For such as him, O Lord, this leaven—
Light upon the ancient hills,
And peace in Heaven.

"HUSBANDS GRIN in Jail's Alimony Row."—Headline. And after all, maybe this agitation to stop the jailing of husbands for not coming across regularly with alimony may be a sad mistake. For a nice strong jail with big barred windows keeps the husband in of course, but it keeps his wife out. And to many gentlemen that is a most pleasing thought and so they grin. If a husband is completely encircled by a nice thick jail it is absolutely impossible to throw a frying pan at him or shake loose change out of his trousers pockets at night. Ah, how true it is, as the poet sings, "Stone walls do not a prison make. Gents shy on their alimony, take that for a hermitage."

THE MACHINERY OF SIGHT.

In the skin there are substances on which light acts to produce certain chemicals that are of great importance to welfare. Some of the chemicals made by this transformation of the force of light are carried to distant parts of the body where they are either used at once or stored for future use.

The eye presents much better evidence of the machinery by which the force, light, can be transmitted into biologic effects by means of a chemical substance. This substance goes by the name visual purple, and this story relates to it. The ray of light passes through the various substances of the front part of the eyeball to reach the retina finally. The several substances through which it passes bend it and filter it, as there may be need, but it finally reaches the retina in substantially the form it entered the eyeball.

The retina is a curtain of material hung at the back of the eyeball for the purpose of catching light and transforming it into a nerve force capable of traveling along a cable called the optic nerve and registering in a part of the brain called the sight center.

Light, as such, cannot travel along this cable nor register in the sight center. It must first be changed into a new force—a new juice, to borrow a phrase from the electric dictionary. This transformation is made in the retina by microscopic cells called rods and cones and, more closely still, by a substance known as visual purple.

This substance is bleached by the action of the light ray. But in a normally working eye new purple is made almost instantaneously and the bleached cell quickly becomes purple again. It is the bleaching of purple that converts light force into nerve force and shoots the message up to the brain.

The delicacy of this visual purple and also the rapidity with which it can be built up varies naturally in different animals. There is supposed to be much of it, and that is of good quality, in animals that feed at night.

In certain disorders of man this visual purple is not regenerated as rapidly as it should be. This is the explanation of temporary blindness following exposure to bright light as in snow blindness and blindness in welders. This is the explanation of the fact that welders and furnace men wear pigmented goggles; and also of the advice given people to wear pigmented glasses when they look at eclipses of the sun.

After some exposures the retina loses permanently the power to reproduce visual purple with permanent blindness as a result.

There appears to be some relationship between visual purple and vitamin A. This vitamin seems to have an exceptional relation to color. A fine source of it is yellow carrots. While carrots do not contain much of it, yellow carrots do. There are other illustrations of its tendency to tie up with color. The theory is that in the regeneration of visual purple one of the important materials used is vitamin A. If this necessary ingredient is missing or is deficient the regeneration of visual purple is interfered with and some degree of impairment of vision results.

A form of goiter is supposed to result when the thyroid tries to make its secretion and cannot get enough iodine. There is more than one field in which we have trouble in making bricks without straw.

USE TRAINING.

J. A. C. writes:

1. I have been suffering with liver trouble for about a year. I think my trouble is gall bladder. How can one overcome despondency and worry?

2. I fear insanity. Will fearing insanity cause one to become insane? I have been fearing insanity ever since I have been sick. I don't see why I should fear it, but I just can't banish the fear. There has never been any insanity in our family.

REPLY.

1. By training. There is no other way. If you have an infected gall bladder that may be laying the foundation for your worries. Many times the effects of an infected gall bladder can be avoided by dieting properly.

2. As a rule it does not. There is a belief that people who fear insanity never become insane. There is some ground for the belief, but it is not more than half true. While there are several insanity patterns, not many of them develop out of fear or even the worry motive. Fear is not a part of the behavior pattern of most forms of insanity. My guess is that you will stay sane and enjoy your fears.

WARTS.

C. E. G. writes: I had, by actual count, 12 unsightly warts on my hands. They were so disfiguring that I was ashamed to shake hands, but electricity seemed very expensive for such a wholesale number. A clerk in a drug store recommended castor oil to a friend. I hadn't much faith, but did have castor oil and rubbed it whenever I could, even binding it on at night when possible.

I saw no change for several weeks, and then I noticed a change. Not long after that they disappeared quite rapidly, or at least noticeably, and then were entirely gone. This was four or five years ago and I have had no return of them. It seems too bad not to pass this along when the remedy is so harmless and inexpensive. So—believe it or not—here it is.

REPLY.

This is a very old remedy and a very good one.

MORTGAGE.

Chicago, April 28.—[Legal Friend of the People.] — A certain party holds a mortgage on my house, which was $2,200 until renewed last December. During the depression I fell behind in my interest in the amount of $300. When the mortgage was renewed they added the interest, making it $2,500. Have they a legal right to do this without consulting my wife?

M. M.

If you have signed new papers your obligation depends on the wording of those papers and it is not a question of what the creditor had a right to do. If you have not signed, then presumably the facts are as they were before, namely, that you owe the principal as principal and the interest as interest. The only way in which the incorporating of the interest in a new principal note would be important would be in the right of the creditor to collect interest on the interest.

TITLE TO PROPERTY.

Chicago, April 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.] — A man died intestate in Wisconsin, leaving an estate, consisting chiefly of real estate, including a farm with all equipment and stock [which is rented] and a city home occupied by the widow. 1. Is it necessary to probate the estate in order to give a prospective purchaser clear title? The legal heirs are all willing to make an assignment in favor of the widow. 2. The titles to both parcels of property are clear and there are no outstanding debts of any kind.

O. T. O.

1. Yes, but sometimes purchasers are willing to waive this requirement.

2. The purchaser would have no assurance other than the affidavit of the heirs that there were no outstanding debts that could be enforced against the property.

BERLIN.—The speeding up of the German railways through motorization on a large scale is proceeding rapidly.

A total of 186 motor driven coaches are now under construction. Of these, 19 Diesel powered coaches will have a speed of 100 miles an hour.

Twenty-two motorized express lines, linking the largest cities in Germany, will start operating at the latest in the summer of 1935. These 22 lines cover a stretch of approximately 6,000 miles. Compared to the fastest trains now in operation, the increase in speed will average 40 per cent.

Thus it will be possible to travel from Berlin via Erfurt to Stuttgart in 7 hours and 21 minutes instead of 11 hours, as the schedule now calls for. The time from the German capital to Munich will be cut down to 6 hours instead of 9, from Berlin to Cologne to 5 hours instead of 7, and from Berlin to Frankfurt-on-Main to 4 hours instead of 7 hours.

The trip from Bremen to Berlin, familiar to most American tourists in Germany, will be reduced from 4 hours and 25 minutes to 2 hours and 45 minutes. The trip from Berlin to Basel, Switzerland, via Frankfurt-on-Main, will require only 8 hours instead of 12 hours.

Friend of the Insured

[Letters to this department must be signed with names and addresses of writers.]

Chicago, April 18.—[Friend of the Insured.]—I have been trying to get a satisfactory explanation of the difference between a "Straight Life Policy" and a "Twenty Payment Life Policy." Does a straight life policy mean that one has to pay premiums until death? Or can this policy be paid up in less time by leaving the dividends?—W. M. R.

Straight life, often referred to as whole life or ordinary life, is an insurance contract under the terms of which the insured pays the same premium every year until death, when the proceeds are payable. If written on the participating plan, the premium may be reduced by dividends. These dividends may be left in the hands of the company to accumulate at interest, the fund so created being used to reduce the premium paying period, thereby giving the insured a paid up policy [based on present dividend rates] in approximately 20 to 30 years. It would require no further premium payments, the face amount being payable at death. By paying the annual premium and allowing the dividends to accumulate for approximately 29 to 39 years, the insured would have an endowment payable in cash for the face value of the policy. The age at the time the insurance is effected and the dividend rate and rate of interest thereon are the determining factors in the number of years required to accomplish the above. Dividends are in no way guaranteed, being based upon the future earnings of the companies, which have found it necessary in the last few years to reduce their dividends from 25 per cent to 50 per cent. Therefore the length of time required for a straight life policy to become paid up is uncertain.

EFFICIENCY.

Wilmette, Ill., April 29.—Mail delivery has never been so miserable, even in wartime. On a trip in the middle west I have been checking. A letter posted at 12 Saturday was delivered at 2 Tuesday afternoon. Omaha is four days away from Chicago, Davenport three.

Small Iowa business men regard Farley's handling of the air mail situation as stupid, are irritated by the bungling of their one contact with the federal government—the mails.

Should you want to take a shot at something Democratic nearer home, look in on the Democratic automobile license bureau—who need three weeks to mail a photostat receipt. That place reeks, too.

ALL IN THE SAME BOAT.

La Grange, Ill., April 27.—At last the political situation is beginning to strike me humorously. For the last year our omnipotent administration, aided and abetted by self-seeking politicians, has been systematically and deliberately confiscating our public utilities. The so-called interests that own these utilities happen to be 12,000,000 American citizens, who, through hard work and thrift, attempted to lay by a reserve for sickness and old age. These investors have taken their losses without a whimper. Where are the politicians who were elected by these people, who are supposed to see that their constituents get a fair deal instead of a New Deal?

But, as was predicted, the New Deal does not stop with the electric utilities. They now threaten the railroads with government ownership [confiscation] unless the bondholders surrender their prior rights and scale down their investments in these corporations.

The banks are in the hands of politicians, the price of corn and wheat is getting lower every day due to government manipulation, the small storekeeper cannot operate under the NRA, and taxes are mounting to unheard of heights. So-o-o-o, as Ed Wynn would say, everybody is now in the same boat, and the poor harassed utility investors can heartily return the laughs and good cheer that have been handed to them by the general populace, who have benefited at the expense of the stockholders.

TAXI RATES IN BUFFALO.

Chicago, April 28.—Regarding taxi rates, the situation in Buffalo, N. Y., last summer may be of interest. The "step-in" minimum rate was twenty-five cents, which entitled the passenger to two and one-half miles of transportation. Additional half miles registered five cents each. The cabs were clean, fast, and in good mechanical condition. The drivers were skilful, courteous, and seemingly content. Not having been there since last August I can't say whether or not the rates in Buffalo have undergone any change.

EXPERIMENTS IN GOVERNMENT.

South Bend, Ind., April 25.—This letter is in answer to that patriotic contribution, "Forward to Tyranny." I, too, belong to the war generation and, although I cannot claim the honor of my forefathers arriving here on the Mayflower, I do believe my Quaker ancestors who settled in Pennsylvania did their share toward establishing this nation.

I, too, was given the opportunity to read American history of colonial life, but for some unknown reason I gained an entirely different understanding of those brave statesmen than the author of "Forward to Tyranny." And during the years of the war, prohibition, depression, and this present catastrophe I have not wavered in my belief that George Washington's integrity and patriotism was more noble and worthy of being followed than the mischievous schemers and dreamers of today. I assert that our forefathers were not reckless men and experimenters because they shook off the old world theories and laid the foundation for a mighty nation.

I, too, have suffered in this depression, and I belong to the masses whose parents were tillers of the soil, without luxury and without envy of those who were financially more successful.

Yes, I read American history and the histories of many nations, and I learned that there is no nation so great, no freedom so good, no opportunity for advancement and success so certain, no living conditions so sanitary as in the United States. I learned that it was my sacred duty to remain faithful to my forefathers, although I am free to depart from my native land whenever I wish to follow the ways of some other nation.

Chicago, April 18.—I read with a great deal of interest the statement of Wilbur Glenn Voliva and what a two-gun fighter he was. NOTED DETROIT ORCHESTRA TO PLAY AT FAIR

Ford Engages Symphony for Three Months.

BY EARL MULLIN.

The Detroit Symphony orchestra will appear at A Century of Progress Exposition this summer, giving two free concerts daily in Ford park at the Fair. Announcement of the engagement was made yesterday by Murray G. Patterson, secretary of the orchestra.

Seats for several thousand listeners will be provided in an open air theater across the drive from the Ford Exposition building. The contract signed by the orchestra and the Ford company is for three months with a clause providing that it may be extended if desired.

The engagement of the Detroit orchestra is the second major announcement of interest to lovers of good music throughout the country. Several weeks ago the Swift Packing company revealed that it had employed the Chicago Symphony orchestra to give free concerts in an amphitheater erected over the waters of the lagoon. In addition several other exhibitors will sponsor free concerts by nationally known dance bands.

Kolar to Conduct Orchestra.

The Detroit orchestra, when it appears in Chicago, will be composed of seventy musicians, with Victor Kolar, associate director, as its conductor for the summer in place of Ossip Gabrilowitsch, the director. Mr. Kolar has conducted the orchestra in summer engagements for several years, it was explained.

"There are several reasons why the engagement of the Detroit Symphony orchestra to play at A Century of Progress Exposition in conjunction with the exhibit of the Ford Motor company is peculiarly gratifying to me," said a statement by Edsel Ford after the contract had been signed.

"It will give the visitors to the Ford exhibition building, as well as millions listening over the radio, an opportunity to hear the splendid music for which the orchestra is noted. It is a gesture of friendliness and support which the orchestra roundly deserves. It is especially pleasing to me to create this opportunity for the whole country to have a great cultural treat all summer long."

Concerts to Begin June 7.

The concerts will commence June 7 and under the present contract will continue until Sept. 7. Officials yesterday indicated that, if the concerts are greeted with the expected interest of Fair visitors, the engagement will be extended to include the remainder of the Fair period.

"The employment of our whole orchestra for this twelve week season is a fine civic gesture not only toward our orchestra, but toward all music lovers," said a statement by Director Gabrilowitsch.

Lovers of flowers were also assured a treat at the Fair when the finishing touches were applied yesterday to the exterior of the Horticultural building. The outside of this structure is now painted orange and bronze. Its gardens and lawns are rapidly nearing completion.

The building this summer will be under the direction of the Society of American Florists, which has all of the United States to drawn from for exhibition purposes. The first show will open June 9, with roses as the feature attraction. Thereafter a new show will begin each Friday.

"Chicago Welcomes You" Sign to Greet Fair Visitors

World's Fair visitors are to be greeted with "Chicago Welcomes You" signs placed along the highways, at boat docks, and in all railroad stations, both central and outlying. Provision for the signs was made in a resolution passed by the city council yesterday on the motion of Ald. John Toman [23d].

DRIVE TO CLEAN UP, IMPROVE MICHIGAN AVE. URGED FOR FAIR

Owners of stores, shops, and buildings in Michigan avenue from 12th street to Oak street were urged to clean up for the World's Fair in an appeal sent out last night by the North Central association. William C. Calvert, executive secretary of the association, also submitted a proposal to city engineers to relieve trafic congestion from Monroe street northward in Michigan avenue by constructing a temporary ramp at Monroe street upon which south bound motorists could be carried above the north bound lanes of Michigan avenue when they turn east into Grant park.

"This was one of the toughest problems faced last summer," explained Calvert. "The cars were lined up from Monroe street back to the Michigan avenue bridge, jamming up trafic all the way along. A ramp would eliminate the problem."

Among other suggestions for World's Fair preparations were installation of flags in each third story window from Oak street to 12th street, which was followed last year, cleaning of parking lots, removal of unsightly obstacles, and the repairing of sidewalks and driveways.

STELLA MAYHEW, FORMER STAR OF FOOTLIGHTS, DIES

Scored Her Triumph at Age of 55.

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—Stella Mayhew, veteran vaudeville and musical comedy star, who reversed the usual Broadway procedure by scoring her greatest triumph when she was 55 years old, died today in the National Vaudeville Artists' ward at the French hospital.

Although she once possessed a considerable fortune and six years ago was one of the sensations of the theatrical season with her singing of "Hallelujah" in "Hit The Deck," she was penniless when she died.

Fall Causes Illness.

Three weeks ago she fell and gashed her ankle. Blood poisoning set in, and she was taken to the charity ward of a hospital. The N. V. A. had her transferred to its own ward at the French hospital as soon as it learned of her plight.

Miss Mayhew was born in Pittsburgh, and made her stage debut at the age of 5 years in a performance of "Rip Van Winkle" at Grafton, O. She was one of the best known of vaudeville headliners for many years, and in addition had important rôles in many musical comedies, among them "Swanee River," "The Show Girl," "The Man from China," "Comin' Through the Rye," "The Whole Damn Family," "The Whirl of Society," "The World of Pleasure," "High Jinks," and a number of Weber & Fields productions.

Wiped Out by Market Crash.

She built a mansion in Beachhurst, L. I., where she planned to spend her declining days, but the stock market crash wiped out her fortune, and her home had to be sold. A week ago she told friends that she had 4 cents to her name.

Miss Mayhew was formerly the wife of Billy Taylor, the comedian. Divorce ended the marriage some years ago.

PULITZER PLAY VERDICT VETOED, REPORT REVEALS

Row Centers on Anderson, Kingsley Plays.

New York, May 2.—(AP)—A storm of debate broke in Broadway theatrical circles today over published reports that the drama jury had recommended "Mary of Scotland" as the 1933 Pulitzer prize play, but that the advisory board of the Columbia university school of journalism disagreed and chose "Men in White."

At Columbia university it was pointed out tonight that the awards would not be made public until the trustees appropriate the funds next Monday for the monetary prizes which accompany the Pulitzer awards.

The advisory board alone has the authority to determine the winners. An official announcement is set for Tuesday morning papers.

Caroline Miller's "Lamb in His Bosom" was reported by some evening papers to have been selected by the advisory board as the best novel by an American after the jury on letters had recommended another book.

Explain in Statement.

The World-Telegram quoted a statement from the university as follows:

"Secretary Frank D. Fachenthaler wishes to make it known, at the request of the drama jury, composed of Walter Prichard Eaton, Clayton Hamilton and Austin Strong, that it always has been understood they were retained in an advisory capacity only and they do not question the right of the advisory board of the school of journalism to exercise its own judgment in making the award.

"But in justice to themselves the three jurors desired the public to know that, in their report to the committee, they voted unanimously for 'Mary of Scotland,' by Maxwell Anderson."

Hamilton was quoted by two papers as calling the board's action "outrageous."

"I have learned," he was quoted, "that the committee frequently has overruled the juries in the past and has overruled them in nearly every field this year, especially as to the prize novel. I don't know what to do about it."

Woman's First Novel.

"Lamb in His Bosom" is the first published novel by Mrs. Miller, wife of the school superintendent at Baxley, Ga. It is a story of south Georgia in ante-bellum days.

Mrs. Miller, a native of Waycross, Ga., wrote the novel four times before submitting it to New York publishers. Now she is at work on another book, tentatively called "King's Daughter."

She did not attend college, but married her high school English teacher, William D. Miller.

"Men in White" is by Sidney Kingsley, a 27 year old actor. It is the story of an intern's struggle between devotion to his profession and a desire for a happy private life, with all the scenes laid in a hospital.

The advisory board which overruled the drama committee on the "best play" includes Nicholas Murray Butler, Kent Cooper, Julian Harris, John L. Heaton, Arthur M. Howe, Frank R. Kent, Robert Lathan, Robert Lincoln O'Brien, Rollo Ogden, editor of the New York Times; Stuart H. Perry, Marlen Pew, and Joseph and Ralph Pulitzer.

FLYERS SABELLI AND POND PLAN ROME HOP TODAY

New York, May 2.—(AP)—Final preparations by Cesare Sabelli and Capt. George Pond for taking off tomorrow on a New York-to-Rome flight heralded tonight the approach of the trans-Atlantic flying season with at least nine ocean hops projected.

Sabelli informed airport officials at Floyd Bennett field that he and Capt. George Pond intended to hop off in the monoplane Leonardo da Vinci" some time tomorrow afternoon, depending or weather conditions.

Since August, 1933, the two fliers repeatedly have tried to start a nonstop flight to the Italian capital. Adverse weather conditions forced abandonment of the take off on each occasion.

The Leonardo da Vinci motor is capable of developing 300 horsepower. The ship has a fuel capacity of 735 gallons, sufficient for 40 hours' flying.

The monoplane is the second ship for which Sabelli has projected the dash to Rome. With Roger Q. Williams, Sabelli planned the trip in 1928 in the sesqui-plane Roma. The flight failed to materialize and Sabelli sued the makers of the plane for $250,000 damages, alleging they had agreed to sell him the ship, but later, through court action, reclaimed it from him.

Another pair of trans-Atlantic fliers was reported ready for an early takeoff. Ben and Joe Adamowicz, whose plane crashed last August at Harbor Grace, N. F., while they were testing it for a flight to Warsaw, Poland, plan to try it again in their overhauled White Eagle.

Aviation circles expect Bennett Griffin and Clyde Pangborn to attempt a nonstop flight around the world, refueling in the air en route, during the summer. Griffin was Jimmie Mattern's partner on the latter's first trial of a round the globe flight, while Pangborn has crossed both the Atlantic and Pacific.

Flights planned for June include one by William Alexander and William Brooks to Moscow and return. Col. Hubert [Black Eagle] Julian's new attempt to reach Abyssinia and a hop to Paris by way of Bermuda and the Azores by Charles Bolden and Lloyd Cox, Negro pilots.

Mattern, who is ambitious to better Wiley Post's world circulating time, plans a summer flight, but details are unannounced.

Stanley Hausner and Thor Solberg, both of whom participated in unsuccessful trans-Atlantic flights last year, are seeking planes for another trial this season.

Ruth Nichols, Rye society pilot, has been taking instructions in blind flying, but there has been no indication that she has any plans for an ocean hop.

KANSAS BEGINS 54TH YEAR OF PROHIBITION; QUESTION UP TO VOTERS

Topeka, Kas., May 2.—(AP)—Kansas began its 54th year of prohibition today, but the 53d anniversary may be the last for the state's dry law, should the voters so decide next November.

Kansas' law banning trafic in intoxicating liquor, carrying out the intent of the constitutional amendment adopted by the voters in November, 1880, became effective May 1, 1881, and was 53 years old Tuesday.

Before another anniversary rolls around Kansas will have voted on a proposition to repeal the constitutional amendment.

FOREIGN EXHIBITS AT FAIR FACE TAX UNLESS U. S. ACTS

Foreign exhibits at A Century of Progress exposition, valued at $233,000 must pay $90,000 import duties or be confiscated by the government unless special customs legislation now pending before congress is passed before May 12, according to Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of the Fair.

The exhibits were imported duty free for exhibition last summer under a special law which expires on May 12. They have remained in Chicago for exhibition this summer. Additional duty free importations for the Fair cannot be made until the legislation has passed.

The customs bill is distinct from the bills for federal participation in the Fair, which also are before congress.

JAIL 3 IN DRIVE ON AUTO THEFTS; RECOVER 3 CARS

All Confess; Two Others Are Arrested.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.
Automobiles stolen, 30; recovered, 36; stripped, 2 [from police records for the twenty-four hours ending at midnight Tuesday].

Three more arrests were made yesterday in the campaign against automobile thefts in a raid on a Cicero poolroom led by prosecutors from State's Attorney Courtney's office and Cicero police. A number of electric drills, dies, and ignition keys were confiscated.

The poolroom is owned by Tony Kolpacki, a former deputy sheriff, at 4915 West 30th street, Cicero. Kolpacki was arrested, as were Florian Sienkiervicz, 21 years old, 5005 West 30th street, and John Matejicska, 28 years old, 5018 West 32 place.

Report Three Confess.

Taken immediately to the state's attorney's office, all three men were questioned. An hour later Prosecutor Franklin McCurrie announced Kolpacki had made "important admissions" and stated that Sienkiervicz had admitted stealing two automobiles and Matejicska confessed stealing one.

In the rear of the poolroom, Prosecutor McCurrie said, Policemen Charles Bulvas and Irvin Konovski, who were among the raiders, found three stolen automobiles.

In the drawers of a desk several large rings containing hundreds of ignition keys were found. At the time of the raid, the prosecutor said, Matejicska was sitting in a stolen car in front of the place. He fled through a rear lot and the policemen fired several shots at him. He collapsed from fear and was quickly collared.

Given Tip by Prisoner.

Information which led to the raid was given to police during the questioning of Ralph Capello who was seized recently and convicted of stealing automobiles. Capello told police other members of his gang had a secret headquarters but he had refused to disclose the location. It was found late Tuesday.

During the day police arrested Jerome Aurini, 17 years old, 1267 Oregon avenue, when they saw him tinkering with a car in front of 627 South Ashland avenue. Albert Anderson, 21 years old, was held when police found five automobile wrenches in his pockets as he stood near a private garage at 317 South Leavitt street.

Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green yesterday fined Isadore Sierra, 42 years old, 1310 South Peoria street, $200 and costs on a charge of disorderly conduct. Sierra was arrested by police while selling automobile radiator caps at South Peoria and Maxwell streets. He said he had purchased the accessories from a group of boys, but police said they were stolen.

Youth Is Seized.

Charles Michaels, 19 years old, of 6456 South Maplewood avenue, was taken into custody yesterday on a charge of trying to steal an automobile in front of 5740 South Green street. The boy had broken the handle on the car door and had entered the machine when he was seen by Detectives Tom King and Edwin Berger. The car belonged to the Rev. Father Charles Dougherty, pastor of St. Joseph's church in Fairpoint, S. D., who was visiting a cousin at the Green street address.

Miller.

Anthony Lozedi, 19 years old, of 1716 Hudson avenue, halted Miss Betty Kolar, 20 years old, cashier of the Leader department store, just outside the Lawndale National bank, 3337 West 26th street, yesterday, and attempted to snatch her purse. Miss Kolar met him with a volley of lefts and rights, knocked him down, and jumped on him. Lozedi managed to get to his feet and started to run, but three policemen, attracted by the disturbance, sent a fusillade of shots after him. Lozedi was shot in the leg and captured.

Sent to Jail for Renting Room to 3 Boys, 2 Girls

Vito Lamie, who rented a room early last Monday to three boys and two girls, all of them of high school age, after a dance, was fined $5 and costs, and sentenced to 90 days in the Bridewell by Judge Mathew D. Hartigan yesterday on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of minors.

MONEY WITNESS ADMITS ROLE AS GUN SALESMAN

Says Mexico Trip Was to Pass Bills.

Harry Dechow, alias Count Enrique von Buelow, pictured himself in a new rôle—that of a salesman for armament and munitions concerns in both the United States and Germany—when he took the witness stand yesterday to continue his testimony in the federal court. He is a government witness against Dr. Valentine C. Burtan of New York City, who is on trial on a charge of disposing of $53,000 in counterfeit bank notes in Chicago.

The disclosures that Dechow had attempted to sell lethal gas, machine guns, armored automobiles, and bulletproof vests to the Mexican, Brazilian, and Guatamalian governments came while he was being cross-examined by Dr. Burtan's counsel, George Callaghan, concerning the trip to Mexico City which he took with Dr. Burtan in 1932.

Admits Munitions Job.

After Dechow admitted he was an agent for the Federal Laboratories of Pittsburgh, Pa., a munitions plant which specializes in the manufacture of war gases, the attorney asked:

"Didn't you go to Mexico for the sole purpose of selling munitions there?"

"I tried to make a contact but really the sale of munitions is just a side line with me. The main purpose of that trip was to get rid of the old fashioned large sized bills which the doctor had in large quantities," replied Dechow.

He admitted he had taken price catalogs and lierature illustrating the armament which he proposed to sell to Mexico with him. He said he had been unsuccessful in making any sales, but had conferred with other South and Central American governments through their representatives while he was there.

"Some of these orders," he added, "I had planned to fill through the Junkers corporation in Germany."

Dechow has declared that he did not know the money which Dr. Burtan possessed was counterfeit.

Thought Money Legal.

The doctor, he said, had told him that he had been given the bills by a gangster whose life he had saved. But later, Dechow said, after he had known that government officials were investigating the validity of the bills Dr. Burtan told him that he had "better go to Europe."

"He said I'd be sorry if I didn't. I understood this as a veiled threat," said Dechow. "And once after he had been questioned Dr. Burtan told me if he had been examined ten minutes longer he would have confessed."

Dr. Burtan is to take the witness stand in his own behalf today said Attorney Callaghan.

INVENTOR FREED FROM ASYLUM BY JOLIET COURT

Fred W. Wolf, Chicago inventor, won his freedom from the Elgin State Hospital for the Insane yesterday, in the third habeas corpus proceeding he has started since the first of the year.

He was ordered freed by Judge Edwin L. Wilson in the Will county Circuit court at Joliet, despite the testimony of his wife, his daughter, and one doctor that he was mentally unbalanced and suffered "delusions of persecution."

Another doctor testified that Wolf was sane and the court ordered his release.

In each of the actions started by the inventor, he has charged that he was incarcerated through the connivance of his wife, Mrs. Jesse Wolf, 206 Walton place.

Wolf was first committed in July of 1933, released within a short time, then recommitted in December. During the last few months he has failed to win his freedom in hearings before Judge Frank W. Shepherd in Kane county, and Judge Max F. Allaben in Du Page county.

MURDER VERDICT RETURNED.
A verdict of murder by persons unknown was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Mrs. Mary Holt, 87 years old, who was fatally injured in her home at 826 South Claremont avenue by a bandit who struck her with a milk bottle.

Leading America's Comeback!

EVEN the eye of our sky-reporter, who has flown 170,000 miles above the Detroit territory, cannot bring you the full significance of Detroit's marvelous comeback. This is the best spring in many years, full of an upleaping spirit of greater accomplishment whose influence is felt throughout the country.

Detroit is blooming. And it is not transient bloom, for the roots of its life and industry are deep in productive soil. Here below you is the heart of the FOURTH MARKET IN THE UNITED STATES, a city that experienced in 1934 the most remarkable rebound of any major city in this country. Production of automobiles and Detroit's employment figures for the first quarter of 1934 equal 1930 levels.

This revival of activity is not due alone to the unusual achievements of the automotive industry, of which Detroit is the world center. While there are 380,000 workers in manufacturing and mechanical industries in the Detroit territory, there are 386,000 workers in a variety of occupations that make the life and activity of a metropolitan city.

Detroit is a rich and varied city.

The Detroit retail trading area comprises six counties which pay more than 59% of the entire Michigan state tax, and includes twelve municipalities, all of which are closely dependent upon Detroit.

Any one hoping to do business in Detroit or to understand the possibilities of the great Detroit market for all kinds of commodities should be familiar with the relationship of The Detroit News to this territory. It has been recognized for many years as the home newspaper of Detroit. Character and coverage combined make it one of the most powerful tools in all America for getting business.

The Detroit News, in 1933, as in previous years, was the overwhelming first choice of each of the five largest retail advertisers in Detroit who used from 57% to 81% of their advertising money in The Detroit News. These five largest department stores used 132% more space in The Detroit News than in the second paper—32% more in The News than in the other two papers combined. The News is fourth in the U. S. in total advertising.

Daily and Sunday, it has the largest circulation in the Detroit Trading Area.

Debut Plans Considered in Many Homes

Decision Awaits Return of Girls from School.

BY JUDITH CASS.

WITH the coming of warm and sunny weather and the threat of summer in the air various households in Chicago and the suburbs are beginning to realize that there are only four months left before the season of debutante teas is upon us again and that the summer will be a busy one with suddenly grown up daughters at home and debuts to plan for the fall.

Prominent on the list of debutantes for next season are Miss Pauline Palmer, the Potter Palmers' younger daughter—the Palmers possibly may postpone her debut for another year—Miss Nancy Doering, daughter of the junior Edmund J. Doerings; Miss Mary Elizabeth Reid, the Bryan S. Reids' daughter; Miss Ethel Johnston, who will be introduced by her aunt and uncle, the Morris Leidy Johnstons; Miss Margaret Talbot, Dr. and Mrs. Eugene S. Talbot's oldest daughter; Miss Deborah Butler, daughter of the Francis P. Butlers; Miss Fanny McPherson, the Donald F. McPhersons' young lady; Miss Louise Stanton, daughter of the Henry Stantons of Wayne; Miss Frances Jeffery, who will be presented to society by her aunt, Miss Frances Whedon; Miss Henrietta Boal, the Ayres Boals' daughter; Miss Leslie Wilson, the Morris K. Wilsons' daughter, and Miss Laura Bartlett, daughter of the Edmund B. Bartletts.

No very definite plans or dates for the parties have been decided upon yet by most of the parents of the debutantes-to-be. In nearly every case they are waiting for the girls to arrive at home from school before making their decision. Miss Palmer is at the Concord academy, and plans for her debut—or its postponement—will be made during the summer at the Palmer home in Maine.

Miss Doering at Home Now.

Miss Doering, whose older sister, Miss Edna Doering, was one of the belles of two seasons ago, is at home now, having returned from Miss Weaver's school in Munich with her parents when they sailed home recently from a winter in Europe. The Doerings are going to give a tea and dinner-dance early in the season for Nancy just as they did for Edna, and the present debutante, dark and vivacious, and the youngest of the Doering girls, will undoubtedly be one of the most attractive and popular of the season's debs.

Her cousin, Miss Jeffery, who is a student at Vassar, will make her bow to society at a large party that her aunt, Miss Whedon, will give. Miss Reid, who crossed to Miss Weaver's with Miss Doering, will return home in June to spend the summer in Lake Forest with her family. Plans for the exact kind of debut she will have are not definit.

Miss McPherson, too, has been studying abroad during the last winter, in Paris, and plans for her formal presentation to society will be made this summer. Miss Butler spent the winter in Europe with her mother, and is in Bermuda now. As soon as she and Mrs. Butler return to Winnetka they will settle on a date for her debut.

Vassar college will be well represented in the ranks of Chicago debutantes next winter, for, beside Miss Jeffery, Miss Wilson, Miss Stanton, and Miss Boal are all students there. They will be in their sophomore year next fall and will make their bows to society either at teas in the autumn or at dances during the Christmas holidays.

Miss Bartlett, a student at Sarah Lawrence, prepared for college at the North Shore Country Day school, along with Miss Boal and Miss Wilson and all three live in Winnetka. The Bartletts are planning a dinner-dance for Laura. Miss Wilson and her parents and younger sister, Eleanor, will spend the summer on their place at Les Chenaux Islands, Mich., and Miss Stanton will probably spend the summer in Wayne where her parents have a beautiful home.

Mrs. Carleton Vail to Wed D. S. Boynton.

An announcement of interest that is being made this morning is that of the approaching marriage of Mrs. Carleton M. Vail to Donald S. Boynton, which will take place in the early part of June after Mrs. Vail returns from Europe. Both Mrs. Vail and Mr. Boynton are residents of Highland Park.

The wedding will take place at the home of Mrs. Vail's sister, Mrs. Frederic K. Hill, in Winchester, Mass. Mrs. Vail is touring Italy just now, and as soon as she decides on what boat she will return Mr. Boynton will go to New York to meet her and then to Winchester for the ceremony, which will be a quiet one. They will make their home in Highland Park.

Profiting by the recent successful garden party and table setting contest the board of the Cradle sponsored at a downtown store, the woman's board of the Children's Memorial hospital is going to stage a similar table setting competition on May 15 at Tatman's upper Michigan avenue store. The show will pass on interesting and attractive ideas of some of Chicago's most distinguished hostesses.

Mrs. John P. Wilson is in charge of the event, assisted, of course, by Mrs. Joseph H. King, president of the woman's board. Both Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. King will set tables, and so will Mrs. David Mark Cummings, Mrs. Frank Hibbard, Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine, Mrs. Secor Cunningham, Mrs.

Scene from Arts Club Play

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

MRS. HAROLD STARK, who was Inez Cunningham until her recent marriage to the distinguished lecturer and author, told an amusing story at the tea given yesterday afternoon for Chase Borromeo and Mischa Mischakoff, who will be the artists at Miss Kinsolving's musical at the Blackstone tomorrow morning.

Recipe— Barter— Car— Honesty.

When she was in Spain last winter she dined at a famous restaurant in Madrid where the chicken en casserole prepared with carrots and onions was a specialty of the house. It was so good that she sent for the chef and asked if he would be so gracious as to give her the recipe. She wanted to serve it to her friends in Chicago, she said.

"Ah, madame, you will need more than the recipe to introduce that dish to the new world," the chef told her. "The secret of that dish is that it is always cooked in a dish that has been in use for a hundred years and that never has been washed except in olive oil."

He offered to make her a present of one of the cooking pots, too, and, although she demurred, when she left the restaurant a waiter was at the door with one tied up for her to take with her.

A SHORT time later, at a dinner at the English embassy, Mrs. Cunningham [she was not yet Mrs. Stark] told the story, and another guest countered with a tale about the same chef. An English peer and newspaper owner visiting in Spain also had asked for the recipe, and when told one of the ancient cooking vessels would be necessary to the success of the dish he answered rudely that he would buy one of the damned old pots.

Then the chef, according to the tale, drew himself up proudly and retorted that only one thing could purchase one of the famous pots. Only one thing, he emphasized. It would have to be an exchange rather than a purchase. Well, what was it he would give up one of his pots for, questioned the English peer, a little irascibly.

"The Rock of Gibraltar, sir," answered the chef softly.

"I SEE that J. P. Morgan has bought another Fragonard," said the fat man on the bus.

"Well, I'd just as soon have a good American car myself," answered his companion.

IT was at a drug store luncheon spot. A regular patron in a hurry waited a long time after he had given his order, and when his food finally was set before him made comment.

"My goodness, Dorothy, where have you been?" he asked. The question was purely a rhetorical one, but to his surprise the waitress answered:

"Out to lunch."

Expert Offers Style Pointers for Summer

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Summer spotlights from a recent fashion showing:

Emerald organdy gloves with wide flared cuffs, worn with a matching wide organdy sash as accent for a black and white striped suit. This glove and sash combine is worth watching, especially in colored organdy.

And you will wear your sashes this spring and summer in an exciting new way . . . tied directly in the front with a perky bow, the long ends reaching to the knees. This is the exact opposite of the former way you tied your summery frocks in position.

Cinnamon brown is combined with pink with some rather devastating results. For instance, a brown sheer dress, all brown except the crisp pink organdy sash which is tied in the exact center of the waistline in front. A transparent brimmed hat is trimmed with matching pink roses to complete the costume.

Then there is a navy blue redingote outfit that almost makes your mouth water. The smart dress under it is of small red and white checked taffeta, with a double ruching framing the collar line. With this is worn a perky flat sailor hat and well matched gloves of the same snappy checked silk.

A new white dotted navy blue evening ensemble has two deep crimson silk carnations pinned to the lapel of the loose detachable jacket. The jacket matches the fringed crimson square scarf that ties at the back of the neck.

A super-cool, clinging evening gown of almond green silk, dotted with white circles, is topped with a huge pierrot frill of white organdy edged with narrow lace and worn high around the shoulder line.

One of the smartest dark suits was made of black sheer with the deep V yoke line of the dress of floral printed sheer. The short jacket has a wide, wide collar and pointed lapels of the same printed stuff as the yoke of the dress.

These incoming summer things are fascinating and the last word in originality and charm.

Hamilton Club Chorus Gives Good Concert

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The Hamilton Club chorus, a male organization of amazing ability, gave its annual spring concert at Orchestra hall last night under the direction of Harry S. Walsh. It is a group that makes choral singing a fine art. There are about ninety members, so chosen that their four choirs are on an accurate balance of tone, so disciplined that their response is instantaneous, of such excellent vocal material that their tone is unfailingly fine.

Most of the program consisted of part-songs, elaborate music of a high order in this field, making small dependence upon pretty tunes and much upon artistic performance. A number of the works were arrangements of solos, an almost inevitable occurrence when a program of this sort is to be assembled. But the arrangements were made with skill, so that they became quite the sort of works that the club could put its best efforts upon.

Helen Hedges, who is nearly as good a soprano as the club is a chorus, was the assisting artist, winning warm applause with the Shadow song from "Dinorah," a group of solos, and, in Kremser's "Hymn to the Madonna," as soloist with the club.

Rena Murta, soprano, and Raymond Anderson, violinist, were the artists in a joint recital of the Young American Artists series at Curtiss hall last evening. Miss Murta displayed a voice of good tone and range, though she appeared to be somewhat more preoccupied with the quality of tone than with the projection of the mood of the songs. Two groups of songs and the aria from the first act of "Traviata" were her share of the program. Mr. Anderson played two melodious groups brilliantly, if at times a bit nervously.

Margery Maxwell, William Miller, and Willard Andelin are being featured this week at the Chicago theater in a brief scene from "Faust." Preceded by the Cavatina as sung by Mr. Miller, the three appear in part of the prison scene, the whole coming as a finale to an operatic number by Conductor Cherniavsky and the orchestra.

Seldom is an operatic scene greeted with such spontaneous applause. Seldom, for that matter, is the part of Marguerite sung better than Miss Maxwell does it, or the Cavatina than done by Mr. Miller.

Roxy and his gang of thirty-two will take over the Chicago theater stage for a week beginning tomorrow.

Woman, Blind Since Childhood, Will Get Ph. D. at Columbia

New York, May 2.—(AP)—Blind since the age of 11, Miss Eleanor Gertrude Brown of Dayton, O., will receive the degree of doctor of philosophy from Columbia university in June. University officials said they believed no blind woman had ever been given such a high scholastic award.

Miss Brown is a graduate of Ohio State university, where she received a bachelor of arts degree. She has a master of arts degree from Columbia.

Her thesis for her doctorate is "Milton's Blindness," presenting, she said, an interpretation of the blind poet from the standpoint "of one who knows what blindness is."

Miss Brown holds that Milton intended to write of the blessings of blindness rather than its deprivations.

"No one would deny that blindness has its deprivations," she says in her thesis. "That it has compensations is recognized by every sightless person. It is, I believe, the thought of these benefits that Milton would leave with the reader."

Sodality Dance.

The newly organized young ladies' sodality of St. Juliana's Catholic church will give its first annual dance and entertainment tomorrow night in the church hall at Touhy and Osceola avenues, Edison Park. The affair will be in charge of Miss Claire Smith, the president, and Miss Margaret Ann Oelerich, chairman of the entertainment committee.

Bronte Drama Has Premiere in Milwaukee

Sangster's Play Authentic Biography.

"CHARLOTTE, EMILY, AND ANNE."

A drama by Alfred Sangster; American premiere in the Pabst theater, Milwaukee, May 2, 1934, with Elizabeth Risdon and Violet Kemble-Cooper in the leading rôles, under the direction of Robert Henderson.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The current dramatic festival in Milwaukee became a matter of general interest yesterday with the American premiere of Alfred Sangster's drama about the Brontë sisters, which bears the new title of "Charlotte, Emily, and Anne." Brontë plays have been written and announced in abundance since "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" proved the stage possibilities of literary biography, but this work seems to lead the list. Clemence Dane's "Wild Decembers" failed in London in direct competition with Sangster's piece, and Don Totheroh's "Moor Born," now running in New York, has not been greeted with cheers along Broadway.

Therefore to the Pabst theater of Milwaukee a few Chicago drama critics made pilgrimage yesterday afternoon to discover how the Yorkshire spinsters who put "Jane Eyre" and "Wuthering Heights" into the history of the English novel were faring as stage characters. We saw a performance worthy of the interest that Milwaukee is manifesting for its dramatic festival and a play that covers its subject with biographical fidelity. But we did not find a hit that will go skyrocketing over the country.

"Charlotte, Emily, and Anne" is a serviceable item in a series of plays of cultural appeal such as the Milwaukee Society of Allied Arts is offering under the management of Margaret Rice. It gratifies scholarly curiosity about the Brontë legend. Beyond this point my affection for it begins to wane. I suspect that it is a play whose future already lies behind it.

How the Rev. Patrick Brontë repressed and tyrannized over his family; how the three girls in the lonely Yorkshire vicarage won fame by their anonymous writings; how the moody, fierce Emily died, and the gentle Anne, and the drunken brother Branwell; how the selfish father, in his old age, tried to break off Charlotte's romance with his curate, how they were married, and how the senile patriarch survived his brood of geniuses—so it runs on, in nine episodes. It tells the unusual story of the Brontë family copiously and completely without developing a dominant dramatic interest.

Charlotte is skilfully and attractively acted by Elizabeth Risdon, Violet Kemble-Cooper communicates the strange and almost savage mood that Emily put into her masterpiece, "Wuthering Heights"; Francis Compton is effective as the heavy father, and Pierre Watkin is exactly right as the curate who rescued the authoress of "Jane Eyre" from celibacy. The production as a whole is evidence that the Milwaukee dramatic festival is under able direction.

"Girls in Uniform" will end its engagement at the Blackstone theater next Saturday night, one week earlier than planned.

Ibsen's drama, "The Master Builder," will be staged in the Goodman theater next Tuesday night as the sixth production of the season by the Goodman school of acting. David Itkin is the stage director.

Lee Shubert, New York impresario, has returned from Europe with word that London is enjoying the most prosperous theatrical season of many years . . . Arch Selwyn, another Broadway manager, came back on the same boat to announce plans for importing Elizabeth Bergner, the German actress now popular in London, and Yvonne Printemps, the French comedienne, next season. The latter will appear in a piece by Noel Coward.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Three beauty aids, finishing cream, a cleanser, and a rich treatment cream, packed in smaller than usual sized jars and sold at a low price.

Heaven has been pretty helpful to the poor working girls lately. Those of us who like to experiment with lovely cosmetics, but find the prices of a jar of this and a bottle of that just too heartbreakingly high, have been, having lots of fun and even gotten some real good out of the teaser packages a few of the lines have brought out recently. Finding the right cosmetics is largely a matter of experimentation—and anything that cuts down the cost of that gets our O. K.

There's a new package out that does just that; rather a smart box containing three jars of cream, two small ones and one large one. One of the small black jars contains finishing cream, a soft, delicately pink one that serves as a powder base as well as a protective against those dusty winds that have been playing the very dickens with our skins these last few weeks. The other contains a very fine liquefying cleanser, the kind that melts instantly and seems to work its way in.

In the large jar, set plumb in the middle of the box, is a special rich cream for massage or general lubricating—the kind of cream sensitive skinned women lean on during the summer if they spend much time out of doors. The outdoor girls, unless the skin is well oiled and generally sturdy, have a constant battle with dryness. The rich treatment creams help them win.

You'll find these sets in stores all over Chicago, and the price of the three creams together is so low you'll think you're hearing things.

Good Morning!

Will Rogers' was the bright idea.

S'posin', he thought, the President was to appoint a secretary of amusement whose job would be to organize radio entertainments and song and dance festivals throughout the United States. S'posin', in response to his efforts, the great American sense of humor were to rise in its might and laugh the depression away. Anyhow—didn't Fox think there was movie stuff in the s'posin's?

Fox fell for the notion. The result is the current cinema vigorously labeled "Stand Up and Cheer," musical numbers for which were written by the "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime" composer, Jay Gornay, in collaboration with their producer, Lew Brown.

Warner Baxter is the hard working secretary. He is understood, loved and assisted by Madge Evans, who does something or other about the children's cheer programs.

It's all pretty synthetic and bolstered up, and, I thought, considerably garbled at times. Still the piece certainly DOES have its moments.

The finale, for instance. A parade. Depression has been laughed out of existence. Phalanx after phalanx of smiling people, marching, marching. Women. Children. Laborers and white collar men. Soldiers, miners, marines, butchers, bakers, candlestick makers. Stepping blithely along, sunned by the New Prosperity which their laughter has persuaded to turn the corner. It's really effective and thrilling.

Then there's the occasion upon which Stepin Fetchit goes away daown saouth to bag a hill billy for old marster [the secretary]. Also, I think, you'll enjoy the episode in which the penguin [isitapenguinmrwells?] got up to resemble Jimmie Durante speaks with the voice of Jimmie unto Mr. Fetchit and dives into the fish tank in search of a halibut.

AND—there is little Shirley Temple—aged not more than five, surely!—who makes her debut in the movie. Such a happy little face! With a dimple close to the laughing mouth. Such starry, friendly brown eyes! Shirley knows how to dance, too—and, what is more important, how to make friends instantaneously. A find, I'd say.

The entire cast does creditable work, though direction seems to have been somewhat confused. Photography and sound are pleasing.

A Vicious Circle

By ALICE CAMPBELL

SYNOPSIS.

Dorinda Quarles is found stabbed to death after a dinner party in her Paris apartment. Unscrupulous, Dorinda had served a drug to her fourteen guests which was provided by one of them, Bannister Mowbray. Helen Roderick, who was a friend of Dorinda's mother, Lady Agatha, discovers the crime early next morning and all the guests except Dinah Blake, a young American artist, lying about in deep sleep. Tommy Rostetter, a journalist, was Dinah's dinner partner. Dinah's engagement to Christopher Loughton in the American embassy was, according to gossip, broken on account of Dorinda. Dinah returns two days later, her memory a blank, to the apartment she shares with her cousin, Hallie Pemberton. She had been sleeping in the studio of absent friends. Tommy persuades her to pretend an engagement to him to prevent a jealousy motive. Dorinda was on unfriendly terms with her stepfather, Basil Jethro, celebrated Oxford scholar, who was her guardian and trustee. Tommy suspects Jethro and searches for proof. Bannister Mowbray's lifeless body is found floating in the Seine. The verdict is suicide. Tommy confides to Loughton his suspicion of Jethro. Loughton volunteers to go to London to look up Lady Agatha's will. Tommy believes that Jethro registered as two persons in the Stanislas hotel, where he stopped the night of the murder—one in disguise—as Jethro had not been seen leaving the hotel. A Dr. Klauber from Prague had the room next to Jethro's. Jethro learns of Tommy's inquiries. Loughton returns from London to learn that Tommy has disappeared and Dinah has been arrested for murder. Loughton calls at the Stanislas.

INSTALMENT XLVI.
OFFICIAL SCORN.

"Monsieur!" said a new voice close beside him. Turning, Christopher saw a sallow faced young man.

"Well?" he exclaimed. "And who are you?"

"The telegraph operator, monsieur. I caught what you were saying, and thought you might care to know that your friend, M. Rostetter, sent a telegraph late Sunday night to Prague, making inquiries about this Klauber. I have the message on file. Shall I let you see it?"

With growing astonishment Christopher scanned the slip of paper put into his hand. It was certainly written by Rostetter, but the name of Strauss, to which person it was addressed, meant nothing, while the series of interrogations regarding a professor called Klauber presented little clew. Out of the whole cryptogram only one impressive item emerged—the date. In reply to random questions the two members of the staf gave a description of the German, together with the information that the latter had made a short stay at the hotel on his way to England, some weeks ago, but from all accounts he appeared to be a studious, retiring individual, in no way calculated to excite interest. Just possibly Rostetter was not concerned about him at all, but was merely using him as a screen to cover up his real purpose. The manager alone might hold the key to the riddle, but the manager—blast him!—had chosen this crucial moment to absent himself.

Christopher glanced annoyedly at the clock, then suddenly waking to a sense of duty towards his host of last night, he scribbled a telegram apprising

"Suitcase, monsieur?" he repeated in surprise. "Till now we have heard nothing about such an article."

Rank Rostetter of his uncle's disappearance and instructed the operator to send it off at once. The sallow faced young man's eyes sharpened at sight of the message. His lips parted to speak, but seeing that Christopher had moved restlessly towards the street entrance he withdrew to his instrument.

The waiter, meanwhile, followed the visitor at a respectful distance. Christopher, having held a debate with himself, turned on him with another query, pitched in a lower voice.

"A short time ago," he said, "you had another Englishman here, who like me was a friend of M. Rostetter's. You know the one I'm referring to?"

"The gentleman whose daughter was murdered? Yes, monsieur."

"Have you seen him since he left? I was wondering if he and M. Rostetter——" Christopher hesitated, "——well, if they happened to meet, that's all."

"The other Englishman did stop in for a moment yesterday evening," answered the waiter, promptly. "He had a few words with the manager, but it was while M. Rostetter was upstairs in his room. He was gone by the time M. Rostetter descended."

Christopher gave a violent start. "Do you know what he was saying to the manager?" he demanded tensely.

"It was about a piece of luggage, a suitcase, which the other gentleman had lost, and which M. Rostetter had been asked to inquire about. It was not very pleasant for the staf to be suspected of tampering with the guests' property, so I was relieved to hear M. Jolivet telling your friend that the suitcase had been found."

"Found! M. Jethro told the manager it had been found, and the manager repeated the information to M. Rostetter?"

"That is it exactly, monsieur. Ah, many thanks! Is there anything more I can——"

But Christopher was already leaping into his taxi and shouting a furious order. It seemed to him he had just learned the very thing which provided him a clew. Before he had had time to reason matters out he had alighted at the local commissariat, where, bursting into the private room of the chef de commissaire he began with wild haste to pour out his story. Almost at once he was halted with a formal request for his name, nationality and occupation. He gave them, annoyed to see a look of alert intelligence pass between the chief and a lethargic secretary seated at a table close by. The two men accorded him close attention which he dimly fancied bore little relation to the disclosure he was about to make, but disregarding their manner he plunged anew into a recital of recent events, only to be stopped again by a summary gesture.

"Yes, yes, monsieur," interjected the chief, fondling a magnificent chestnut beard. "I understand your anxiety to locate this M. Rostetter, but am I to understand you are hinting at foul play? Please be more explicit."

As Basil Jethro's name fell from Christopher's lips incredulous scorn crossed the listener's features. Dead silence followed the culminating incident, to be broken at last by the bearded official's remarking with lofty tolerance:

"Monsieur, will it astonish you to learn that the gentleman to whom you refer has been subjected to the most careful supervision? That his alibi has been investigated with great thoroughness, his private life inquired into, his movements scrutinized? I appreciate your wish to implicate some one other than the young woman now under arrest, seeing that her trial will involve you in embarrassing difficulties, but——"

"What," cried Christopher hotly, "have my private feelings to do with the facts I'm giving you?"

"I imagine your feelings tend to bias your judgment. Try, monsieur, to take a calm view of the situation. This missing journalist has, according to you, been agitating himself with inquiries about a transient guest of the hotel, a German who chanced to arrive on the date of the murder. Do you know why he was interested in this person? Can you trace a connection between the latter and Mr. Jethro? Ah, I thought not. Then how can you expect us to act in the matter?"

Painfully aware that his tale did not hang together, Christopher reconnoitered.

"Leave the German out of it," he said. "Or at least until you have heard what the hotel manager has to say. What I am certain about is this: On Sunday night Mr. Rostetter went to the hotel to investigate Mr. Jethro's alibi. Early next morning he gave me to understand he was on the verge of an important discovery, and since then Mr. Jethro found out what he had been doing. Putting two and two together——"

"If you get a greater number than four," interrupted the chief with irritating amusement, "you must not expect me to approve your result. However, if you can tell me just why Mr. Rostetter's suspicions became aroused in the first place, I shall be glad to listen."

With as much assurance as he could command, Christopher enumerated all Tommy had said on the subject. The conjectures about the latchkey, the assumed but unproven destruction of the letter, and the philosopher's manifold divergencies from truth sounded even to his own ears pathetically flimsy, while the mention of the absent suitcase provoked a marked impatience on the part of the chief.

"Suitcase, monsieur?" he repeated in surprise. "Till now we have heard nothing about such an article."

"Mr. Jethro's own avowed excuse for visiting his stepdaughter's apartment that evening was his desire to fetch away some books. Did you imagine he carried them off in his hand?"

"Why not? Although I am perfectly willing to inquire. Make a note of that, Benville," he instructed the secretary. "Let us ask Mr. Jethro what books he took away, and if he carried them by hand or in a bag."

Christopher saw that he had strayed into a vicious circle. Jethro, if guilty, would not hesitate to deny the whole story. The one person capable of refuting him was Rostetter, and Rostetter was gone.

James Ward Thorne, Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, Mrs. William P. Martin, Mrs. Warren M. Salisbury, Mrs. Frederick Hampden Winston, Mrs. James C. Hutchins, Mrs. Dexter Cummings, and Mrs. W. Paul McBride.

The White Elephant Rummage shop at 27 East Ohio street, which the woman's board operates for the benefit of the hospital, has cards out for a book sale next Tuesday at the shop. Trucks are now busy collecting the contributions of the shop's friends.

Two Opera Groups to Meet Today.

The women who are working on the box committee of the Chicago Grand Opera company will meet for their weekly luncheon today and make their reports to their chairman, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne. Then they'll take the afternoon off to attend the spring meeting of the Friends of Opera, for of course they are members of that organization or they wouldn't be working so hard for the new opera company.

The opera box committee headquarters are in room 458 of the Civic Opera building, but the Thursday meetings are held at the Woman's Athletic club.

The Friends of Opera meeting is to be held at the Casino club at 3:30 o'clock, and after a short business meeting to elect officers Miss Marion Claire will give a program of songs, accompanied at the piano by her husband, Henry Weber. Mrs. Jacob Baur, vice chairman, will preside, and Mrs. Osborne and George Woodruff, president of the Chicago Grand Opera company, will speak briefly.

Miss Janet Fairbank is giving a luncheon tomorrow at her home on State parkway for the artists who will give the program at the last Kinsolving of the season tomorrow morning in the ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. The artists are Chase Baromeo, basso of the Chicago Grand Opera company, and Mischa Mischakoff, concert master of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Entertaining at luncheon at the hotel after the musical will be Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Mrs. Oakleigh L. Thorne and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Potter Palmer III.; Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr., Mrs. John Paul Welling, and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter.

Rummage Sale Today for Grant Hospital.

At least a dozen post-debs and young matrons will be up early this morning to work at the rummage sale the woman's auxiliary of Grant hospital is to have at the hospital nurses' home at 536 Webster avenue. Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr., Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, Mrs. Earle Zimmerman, Miss Helen Marie Castle, Miss Jean Hyman, Mrs. Alfred Wolfe, and Miss Dorothy Schmidt are among those who will assist.

When Miss Nettie Baumann has a dozen Smith alumnae for luncheon today at the College club she will call upon them to help her complete plans for the Smith college booth at A Century of Progress.

Mrs. Potter Palmer and Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr. will pour at the tea following the usual Thursday afternoon causerie of the Alliance Française this afternoon.

Consul General and Mrs. Lewis Bernays are calling up their friends and asking them to drop in at the Bernays' apartment on Lakeview avenue late tomorrow afternoon for a cup of tea. Among the guests will be members of the "Richard of Bordeaux" company.

Parties to Benefit Passavant Hospital.

The linen committee of the women's board of the Passavant Memorial hospital will benefit by a card party that will be given next Wednesday afternoon, starting at 2:30 o'clock, in two apartments at 1430 Lake Shore drive. Mrs. Francis Johnson, president of the board, and Mrs. William A. Yager, chairman of the linen committee, are to be the hostesses and after the cards all the players will assemble in Mrs. Yager's dining room to have tea.

Miss Emily Birney, daughter of the Frank O. Birneys of Oak Park, is being married to Brian T. Moran Jr., next Tuesday, May 8, instead of next Wednesday, as we said in our column yesterday. The wedding will be a quiet one in the Birney home and Mr. Moran and his bride will fly east on their wedding trip.

College alumni will hear about the 1934 version of the World's Fair at the tea the woman's college board of A Century of Progress is to have the afternoon of May 12 at the Administration building on the Fair grounds. Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes will speak. The board is again making arrangements to have headquarters at the Fair with college hostesses each day.

Kentucky Woman Elected Head of White Shrines

Mrs. Edna Showalter of Kentucky was elected supreme worthy high priestess of the supreme shrine, Order of the White Shrine of Jerusalem, yesterday at the organization's convention at the Stevens hotel. She succeeds Mrs. Genevieve Howe Steineck of La Grange. Nearly 2,000 delegates from all over the United States and Canada are in attendance. Tonight 31 drill teams will give exhibitions in the grand ballroom of the hotel.

Domino and Squares.

BY NANCY CABOT.

The gool old game of dominoes so inspired some clever needleworker that she commemorated it in a quilt block. Pieced in red, white, and blue, it makes an impressive coverlet.

It's ready—Nancy Cabot's new booklet, presenting 96 illustrations of favorite quilt designs, together with one pattern of a popular quilt, "The Framed Rose." Price, 5 cents; by mail, 7 cents. Movie Actors Turn to Seas for Vacations

Some to Try Making Films for Release.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 2.—[Special.]—In the spring the screen stars' fancy turns to the Spanish Main, the South seas, coral reefs and trade winds. Norman Foster, featured actor, has succumbed to the virus stronger than other actors, although it is true John Barrymore has already put to sea in his immense yacht Infanta, Marquis de la Falaise already is in the Dutch East Indies recording a brown skinned romantic adventure idea and Boris Petroff, Mae West's dramatic manager, today put his signature to a contract for a 48 foot power cruiser.

Foster is putting all his prestige and salary as an outstanding actor behind him for months to sail for Tahiti may 9 on the British steamer Maunganui. His venture is wholly a gamble; he is taking a camera man with him and they intend to film South seas shots of pearl diving for a two reel adventure film. Even if he sells the film for a fair price he will be money in arrears considering the size of the Foster salary.

George Barnes, Warner camera man, and Joan Blondell [Mrs. Barnes] will leave in July, as soon as they can, to join Foster in Papeete. Alas for Claudette Colbert [Mrs. Foster]! she is too busy with Paramount films to go.

Another actor filming his own picture is Warner Baxter, but Warner's will be a sixteenth millimeter story for private showing. Frank McGrath and Baxter's wife's niece, Betty Bryson, are playing the leads in the sixteen millimeter story, which is a western yarn and is being filmed on the ranch of Dr. Atkinson, who bought Silver King and the other horses of the late cowboy hero, Fred Thompson. Silver King will appear in the story.

Baxter, who is very busy in Fox films at this time, is directing the yarn chiefly "by remote control." McGrath is his stand-in when Baxter needs a stand-in or double. Betty Bryson is one of the 1934 crop of Wampas baby stars.

The next and seventh co-starring Gable and Joan Crawford film will be "Chained," an original by Edgar Selwyn.

Jeanette MacDonald is so busy with current and future engagements at M. G. M. she has called off her singing tour of South America and Europe, and her fiancé-business manager, Bob Ritchie, is dropping everything to rush back from Berlin.

Dance Mad Girl Led This Youth a Merry Chase

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Well, it appears that forcing the unwilling suitor into dance pumps is not the answer to the dance-mad girl's prayer, unless, that is, she is willing that her life be a continuation of one dancing partner after another.

Frequently there comes up here the question from the girl dance lover about what to do with the boy friend who'd rather sit out or stay home and study, who would rather do anything than dance. We suggested not long ago that if the young man wanted to keep his girl he'd better get the feet going to dance music. It seemed to us a fair enough compromise if dancing means so much to his girl. But Leonard tells us we are all wrong and, to prove it, relates the following:

"I too, was like the young man in the case. I cared little for dancing, preferred to spend my time studying and preparing for the future. But the girl told me she loved me, and I was sure I loved her. Her persistence about my learning to dance eventually got me going to a class. I found I was pretty good at it, and the girl was pleased. So we were all pleased, for a time.

"But girls can be as dance-mad as men can be liquor-mad. Girls who are wild for dancing are never content with the mere dancing part of it. It is merely a forerunner to further social steps, which I was to learn at bitter cost. O, yes, I went along to six dancing championships, so good was my teaching. At the price of my studies, this was. Then, when I reached the top, my darling had left me for a fellow who never knew a dancing step.

"I might finish telling that I am happily married today to a girl who does not care too much for dancing, while my old sweetheart is now floating around alone in cheap ballrooms looking for another dancing partner, it's likely. So, what price dancing?"

In spite of the above, we still feel, as we felt before, about dancing being godo for the young couple. These cases of inebriated dancers, as inebriated liquor consumers, are exceptional.

Paris' Summer Jackets Look Like Jumpers

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The wrap that looks a lot more like a dress or a jumper blouse than a coat is a practical hot weather feature of Paris fashions. This Jodelle ensemble has one, and you'd consider it rather a jumper than a jacket, wouldn't you? The jacket and the skirt of this ensemble are made of almond green crêpe de chine, and the former is everything that a jacket usually isn't. It buttons down the back on crystal buttons, and it is so open around the arms that you can see plenty of the dotted blouse that is worn under it. It has a plain bateau neckline so the scarf collar of the blouse shows entirely over the top. The sleeves are capes that meet at the buttoned closing in the back. The wrap is belted with black lether at the waistline.

Jodelle, who is Mme. Vionnet's niece, makes a blouse that is typical of the family. It has short, flaring sleeves and a soft tied scarf collar that is part of the blouse. The material is semi-sheer silk crêpe, white with green polka dots. This blouse ends over the top of the skirt in a crush belt of the dotted material.

The skirt is a plain, two-gored model slightly flared from the hipline.

Don't Correct Child's Every Misdemeanor

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"Oh, don't notice her. You pay too much attention to every little thing she does."

This was the folksy advice of a grandmother to her own daughter, whose little girl was "showing off."

It's a simple admonition. Advice in words of one syllable—almost. But it's simply grand phychology—and most expert child training.

Don't—don't—don't make so much of every little thing the children do. Don't—don't—don't think that everything which isn't according to Hoyle has to be corrected. Don't pay so much attention to their little ways. It's almost certain to make them repeat them. Sometimes this is because their natural urges are stronger than any outside restraining influence which may happen at the moment to be yours—as when they want to touch things. Sometimes they repeat their "naughtiness" because they unconsciously enjoy the attention they get and the clamor they create.

This "don't notice" advice holds good not only with the little ones but with the poor in-betweens [our eight's and nine's and ten's] who are always doing something that their grownups do notice—slamming doors, and dawdling, and forgetting chores, and trailing mud in the house, and fidgetting.

Don't see any more of it then you have to. Or pretend you don't. Overlook as much as you can. Most of it they'll outgrow. Most of it isn't really significant behavior at all. Most of it stirs us up either because we're trying to make a perfect child out of a human one or because it's inconvenient for us—or simply because we get into a bad "correcting" habit.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a weekly radio feature—will be presented tomorrow by Mary Meade over station W-G-N. Tune in at 2 o'clock for Miss Meade's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

Fruit cakes for today! Not the kind we mixed and baked and proudly presented to our admiring friends as Christmas presents or served at our holiday suppers, but velvety butter cakes with a fruity flavor.

You're probably familiar with the banana cake to which banana pulp is added, but have you ever made it with sliced bananas? Here's how.

BANANA CAKE
[using sliced bananas]

½ cup shortening
1¼ cups sugar
2 eggs
½ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 cups pastry flour
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 cup sour milk
½ teaspoon vanilla
2 good sized bananas, thinly sliced

Cream the shortening, add sugar, and beat until fluffy. Add the beaten eggs. Sift the flour, soda, salt, and baking powder and add alternately with the sour milk. Add the vanilla and beat vigorously for one minute. Fold in the sliced bananas, pour into two buttered layer pans, and bake in a moderate oven [375 degrees F.] for 30 minutes. This cake will stay moist for several days, only if well hidden from pantry prowlers.

Since the peel of oranges, as well as the juice, has been found to contain vitamins A, B, and C, an orange rind cake is rich in food value as well as tastily flavored.

ORANGE RIND CAKE

1 cup sugar
5 tablespoons butter
2 eggs, separated
½ cup orange juice
Grated rind of one orange
1 2-3 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt

Cream the sugar and butter until fluffy, then add the well beaten egg yolks. Grate the rind from the orange and add it, then sift in the dry ingredients [which have been sifted together] alternately with ½ cup of orange juice. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and turn the batter into two greased layer pans. Bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] for 25 minutes. Spread orange butter frosting between the layers and over the top and sides of the cake.

ORANGE BUTTER FROSTING

1 tablespoon grated orange rind
¼ cup orange juice
¼ teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 teaspoon lemon juice
3 tablespoons butter
1 egg yolk
Pinch of salt
3 cups confectioner's sugar

Let the fruit juice stand with the grated rind for 15 minutes. Cream the butter with the egg yolk and salt. Add sugar gradually, alternately with the strained fruit juice, beating until smooth and of the right consistency.

PRUNE-APRICOT UPSIDE DOWN CAKE

¼ cup butter
¾ cup brown sugar
1 dozen cooked dried apricots
6 cooked prunes, halved and seeded
⅓ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 well beaten eggs
⅔ cup milk
2 cups flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Melt the butter in a pan over a low flame. Add brown sugar and mix thoroughly. On this arrange the apricots and prunes alternately. Then pour over this the cake batter prepared as follows: Cream together the sugar and shortening until fluffy, and add the well beaten eggs. Sift together the dry ingredients and add to the mixture, alternately with the milk. Add flavoring. Bake the cake 45 to 50 minutes in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.]. Turn upside down and serve hot or cold, garnished with whipped cream.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

CONCLUDING REMARKS IN RESPONSE TO TWO NO TRUMPS.

I think I have now dealt with all types of responding hands except such a holding as

Sp.—Q x x x x Di.—K Q x x x
Ht.—A x Cl.—x

where you have two biddable suits, one with two of the top three honors, and an outside ace as well. This is a tremendous hand to hold opposite a two no trump bidder; but caution is necessary in case your partner had a big club suit as the backbone of his bid. Respond at first with three spades, so that he will not subsequently overrate your early control of that suit. If he bids three no trumps, bid five diamonds. If he again signs off by bidding five no trumps, you must pass, but over five spades bid five no trump, locating an ace; over six diamonds pass for fear of a spade finesse, though you know now that there is no ace out against you.

If the partner at any time mentions clubs, be wary of a misfit and take the bid back to the same number of diamonds. Should he mention hearts, raise him once in hearts to show the ace. Always allow for a spade loser unless the opener should immediately bid five spades over your three spades, which you may interpret as showing A K x x of spades with two other aces. Now seven spades are in the bag. With A J 10 x of spades, he should not immediately go beyond four spades, as he does not know whether your suit is headed by the king or queen. A double raise in this situation should be a guarantee of no losers in that suit, plus three aces and no shaded or abnormal factor in the original opening bid.

Fine Judgment Is Not Always Properly Rewarded.

North: ♠10-x-x ♥A-K-J-x-x ♦A-K ♣x-x-x

West: ♠J-x-x ♥x-x ♦Q ♣A-Q-J-10-x-x-x

East: ♠K-Q-x-x-x ♥Q-x ♦10-x-x ♣K-x-x

South: ♠A-x ♥10-x-x-x ♦J-9-x-x-x-x-x ♣None

North-South vulnerable, East-West not vulnerable.

Bidding:

WEST	NORTH	EAST	SOUTH
Pass	1 Ht.	1 Sp.	2 Ht.
5 Cl.	5 Di.	Pass	5 Ht.
Pass	Pass	Pass	Pass

In a National Contract Pair championship contest Sir Derrick Wernher, who assists me in preparing these articles, sat South and made a brilliant "compromise bid" of five instead of six hearts. He felt sure, after North showed no diamond losers, that six hearts could be made—but he judged that West, an extremely courageous and alert bidder, would take the sacrifice in clubs—or possibly revert to his partner's spades—rather than allow the bidding to stop at six hearts. Actually South made seven hearts, as clubs were opened and the declarer rightly played for the drop in hearts in spite of the temptation to play East for a singleton. However, on these holdings there would be no justification for bidding seven hearts, but every expectation of making six. Wernher's deduction was right, as West assured him that he had every intention of going to seven clubs over six hearts, or to seven spades over seven hearts. Seven clubs doubled would have yielded 600 less 100 honors—500 points net, whereas this way North-South scored 710, the most they could have got against opponents of this caliber—Irwin Fried and Anne Rosenfeld of Cleveland. However, my former teammate did not get the top or near-top he deserved on this hand, as at several tables the North-South pair were allowed to play the hand at six hearts, and at one table seven hearts were bid, doubled and made. That is the luck of pair contests.

Discreet Scent Plays Big Role in Total Charm

Delightful Perfume Need Not Be Costly.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Maybe it isn't the time to be talking about such luxuries as perfume. Or, maybe it is. I'm not up on the economics phase of luxury spending in a time of money stress. But I wouldn't introduce the subject if I didn't believe that perfume, in a woman's charm life, is as necessary as cleaning cream or her daily scrub. Just a wee dash of it does something for her being, to say nothing of what it does for her cause with the opposite sex. Nor would I press heavily on perfume use did I not know that today you can get lovely scents at very reasonable prices. You can buy small amounts at a time, too, and I believe, for the perfume itself, buying in the smaller quantities is better than in large. Perfume is affected by exposure to light and air, you know. So the tiny containers insure against that.

And then there are such charming ways of being a nicely perfumed girl without the expensively compounded scent, as with the bath powders alone. You can get the nicest kind of bath powders in decorative bathroom containers, too, at a most reasonable cost and bath salts whose lovely colorings are balm to the eye as well as to the senses every time the bathroom is entered. Or there are the face powders that are perfumed to match the tiny bottles of real scent that you can buy for a dollar and be asured that your presence emits a harmonious aura for sensitive nostrils. In fact, this monotone scent idea is carried on into sachets for your dresser drawers and closets, a whif for your hair, your hanky, everything!

But the thing is that these perfumed touches just belong with the charmer of this particular time of year. And there is nothing known that quite so indelibly stamps the girl as one hundred per cent feminine as the use of a cleverly applied and cleverly chosen scent. But mark that "cleverly applied." No drenching, understand.

Red Cross Reports 205,741 Garments Made for Needy

The Red Cross sewing room, sponsored by the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, during the last three months produced 205,741 garments, James T. Nicholson, manager of the chapter, announced yesterday. The project was financed for two months by the Civil Works administration and a month ago was taken over by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission as a work relief measure.

More than 45 per cent of the clothing needs of all families receiving relief in Cook county through the Illinois Emergency Relief commission are being cared for by the output of the work project, according to Mr. Nicholson. Five hundred and fifty persons who otherwise would be on relief rolls are employed in the sewing room, located in the Chicago Home for the Friendless building, 510 East 51st street.

BAZAAR TURNS IN SENSATIONAL DERBY TRIAL

But Bradley Calls Finish Too Slow.

BY FRENCH LANE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 2.—[Special.]—The strangest situation ever developed in the eleventh hour before the running of the Kentucky Derby was encountered along the back stretch at Churchill Downs late today.

The man everybody believed should be happy and cheerful over the Derby situation appeared to be sad and morose.

This was Col. Edward R. Bradley, who has come to be known as Uncle Sam's Derby specialist and whose Derby hope, Bazaar, worked a sensational mile and a quarter—the Derby route—this morning in 2:04 4-5.

Alex Is Happy.

The fellow who everybody thought would be down in the dumps with tears streaming down his wrinkled cheeks was beaming with smiles and optimism.

This was Alex Gordon, the only poor man represented in this millionaires' horse race, whose Derby favorite, Sir Thomas, made a disgraceful showing in the Derby preparation purse 24 hours earlier.

Gordon, a Scotchman who probably has devoted more time to his horse than any other owner or trainer, had found an excuse for Sir Thomas' failure in the Derby trial.

Gordon says Sir Thomas was knocked to his knees soon after the start of the Derby trial and contends the bumping made it impossible for the colt to get back into stride. Jocky Tony Pascuma, who was up on Sir Thomas, verifies the story. So Sir Thomas, according to Trainer Gordon, will run a different race in the Derby.

If that should be the case, the folks who have wagered many thousands on him may still win their wagers on a horse which, as Zev did in 1923, will pay much longer odds in the mutuels at the track than he will in the future books.

Bazaar Finishes Slow.

This is sure to happen for Trainer Gordon and Jocky Pascuma are the only ones who seem to know that Sir Thomas was bumped about. All the other expert eyes failed to see Sir Thomas go down.

Bazaar's work, that mile and a quarter in 2:04 4-5, hasn't been equaled by a Derby candidate training at Churchill Downs in many years. It was the second best Derby training move of the year. Mrs. Payne Whitney's Spy Hill reeled off the Derby distance at Belmont Park in New York Tuesday in 2:04 1-5.

Yet all these facts did not encourage Col. Bradley. He held the watch on the filly while she was thrilling the rail birds. His watch told him his prize filly had run the last quarter in 27 seconds.

"No Derby will be won with a last quarter in 27 seconds," Bradley commented. He didn't like the way Bazaar "tailed" off while nearing the finish line. Many who watched the gallop were of the opinion Jocky Meade had eased up the filly and that she in no way showed signs of wanting to quit.

Colonel Is Uncertain.

Col. Bradley, who for the last two months has been changing his Derby selection with rather startling regularity, was asked:

"Now, who do you like?"

"If we can beat Agrarian, I think we can win," he replied.

Col. Bradley's earlier picks have been Singing Wood, Cavalcade, Spy Hill and three or four others, so the Kentuckians are beginning to weaken a bit on Bradley's Derby selection.

Still the Derby developments of the last few days have made nearly everybody change their minds a half dozen times, and even old Screw Sanders, the sage of Churchill Downs, came out with his 15th Derby choice tonight. Like all bewildered horse players he has finally decided the favorite must win. So his latest selection is Cavalcade.

Another sparkling training move which caused clockers to get so excited this morning was turned in by Riskulus. He covered the mile and a quarter in 2:06 1-5 and appeared to be breezing the entire trip. This was the finest showing he has made since he left California, and everybody around

COUNTED OUT!

That's the fate of the fighter who lacks alertness, and that's what will happen to the boxing fan who is slow to send for his tickets to the international Golden Gloves matches. He'll be counted out of the gathering which will witness the matches between the American and Polish amateur boxers, May 23.

But the boxing fan who is on his toes will get busy today and send a check or money order to the Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago. All seats are reserved and prices are $3.30, $2.20, $1.65, and $1.10.

CHICAGO TO SEND GREATEST TEAM AGAINST POLAND

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Who will represent Chicago against the eight amateur boxing champions of Poland in the fourth international Golden Gloves bouts at the Stadium May 23?

The selection of Chicagoland's best boxers is a problem for coaches and officials, but this team, when chosen, undoubtedly will be the strongest of all Chicago's international teams. And Chicago already has whipped France and Ireland and tied Germany in the memorable bouts at Soldiers' field in 1932.

The basis of this prediction is Chicago's showing against New York in March when a squad of 16 boys, which did not include six of the winners in the Tournament of Champions, were defeated by the close score of 9 to 7 at Madison Square Garden. Four of these six absentees will join the Chicago intercity squad which will report at the Illinois Athletic club on Sunday May 13, the day before Poland's team arrives in Chicago.

Two Champions Unavailable.

Two of the boys who won championships in the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions will not be here competing for berths on the international squad. They are Jesse Levels, Cleveland Negro, flyweight champion, and Frank Bojack, Cleveland's lightweight winner. Levels was forced to withdraw from the National A. A. U. tournament because of illness and has not fought since, while Bojacks has outgrown the 135 pound division. By strenuous efforts he made the weight in the National A. A. U. tournament but the effort so weakened him that he lost his first bout.

However, Cleveland will send two champions, Danny Farrar, welterweight from Youngstown, O., and Troy Bellini, Cleveland bantamweight. Detroit will send its two Golden Gloves champions, Joe Louis, light heavyweight, and Alfred Nettlow, welterweight. Both also won National A. A. U. titles in the meet at St. Louis.

Chicago will contribute two champions to the squad, Otis Thomas, Negro heavyweight, and Bill Treest, middleweight. Thomas now is resting at Memphis, Tenn. and since his return from the national tournament at St. Louis has had his left hand in a cast. He will be ready to start training, however. Treest also has been resting at his home in Batavia since the national tournament.

Must Prove Superiority.

This list of champions obviously leaves the flyweight and lightweight positions open. But under the annual arrangement for the international show, no champion is assured of retaining his position on the team unless he proves his superiority over other members in the same weight. Each year changes have been made. Following Chicago's defeat by New

NOTRE DAME TIES SCORE IN 8TH, BUT BADGERS WIN, 6-4

Madison, Wis., May 2.—(AP)—After Notre Dame staged an eighth inning rally that tied the score, Wisconsin came back in its half of the inning to hammer across two runs for a 6 to 4 victory today.

The Badgers pounded out two hits in the third for their first run and added three more in the fifth on as many hits before Notre Dame scored a run. The visitors drove Rolf Poser from the box in the eighth inning with a three run rally. A. C. Williams, southpaw relief man, got credit for the victory. Score:

U. S. WALKER CUP PLAYERS HONOR GOLF IMMORTALS

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 2.—(AP)—Unable to get in their usual two rounds of golf because a tournament was being played on the course, the United States Walker cup team today made a reverent pilgrimage to the graves of Scotland's golfing immortals in the ruins of mammoth old St. Andrews cathedral.

Accompanied by Henry Gullen, secretary of the Royal and Ancient club, and the wives of George T. Dunlap Jr. and Jack Westland, the team members first went to the grave of Andra Kirkaldy, veteran St. Andrews professional, who died a few days ago.

Honor Golf Dead.

Heads bared and silent they watched while Capt. Francis Ouimet placed a bouquet of yellow flowers on the fresh earth.

The party next visited the graves of Tom Morris, grand old man of golf, and his son Tom. Between them the two won eight British open titles from 1861 through 1872. Johnny Goodman and Dunlap placed flowers on the graves.

Flowers also were placed on the grave of Allan Robertson, one time Scottish champion, who died in 1859 and on whose headstone is the inscription "Far and True."

The party also visited St. Andrews castle in whose dungeons religious prisoners were confined centuries ago.

They Play a Round.

As the party trudged back over the old course to their hotel, several complained of being tired, but when Goodman discovered the tournament was over and had talked the starter into letting him play a round, their weariness was quickly forgotten. He, Lawson Little, and Westland grabbed clubs and went out on the course. The older members of the party smiled tolerantly and sought easy chairs.

"I never saw boys go as crazy over a course as these youngsters have over St. Andrews," Ouimet said.

He is greatly pleased and regards it as a good sign for the coming matches with the British May 11 and 12.

Goodman displayed evidence that he is gaining a mastery of the course by scoring a 74, his best round. Little, who has been playing the most consistent golf, posted a 75 and Westland a 76.

Jones Wins Balfour Award at Indiana

Bloomington, Ind., May 2.—[Special.]—Robert Jones, Indiana full back and guard, and honorary captain of the 1933 team, has been awarded the L. G. Balfour award for football, athletic director Z. G. Clevenger announced today. Jones also was voted the most valuable player on last season's squad. He is from Wabash.

Guest Leads Eastern Trio to National Polo Crown

BY HOWARD BARRY.

A team led by Winston Guest gave a final demonstration of the East's superiority at indoor polo last night by defeating a Western all star team, 9 to 4½, at the 124th Field Artillery armory. This gave the East two consecutive games and concluded the series for the national championship.

Through four chukkers replete with action those three Western horsemen, Bill Nicholls, Capt. Maxwell Corpening, and Herb Lorber, made furious and at times successful efforts to stem the onslaught of a team which is conceded to be the greatest indoor combination ever assembled.

Guest Reaches Heights.

The attack of Guest and Billy Reynolds was inexorable, and when the Westerners were able to snare the ball for swift sallies into enemy territory they were confronted by the implacable Art Borden, whose decisive mallet knocked the ball again and again from the threshold of the Eastern goal.

Guest last night lived up to his reputation as the greatest indoor player. He took his Western opponents out of play after play with the methodical skill of a blocking half back. His strokes were clean cut and his passes straight.

On the receiving end of those passes was Billy Reynolds, the spearhead of the eastern attack. Again and again this 20 year old youngster brought thundering cheers from the 9,000 spectators Defense Is Superb.

Borden was the final and decisive factor in the play. With this defense man backing them up, Guest and Reynolds felt free at all times for breakneck gallops into their opponent's territory.

The West was first to score after prolonged fencing for an advantage. Out of a scramble in the corner, the ball rolled to Nicholls, who came riding across in front of the goal to take the pass and score. Then Reynolds raced in to catch a rebound from one of Guest's shots and tie the count. The West forged ahead when Nicholls scored on a short shot.

The advantage was surrendered almost immediately when Reynolds dribbled along the end boards to a point directly in front of the goal and drove the ball across. A minute or two later the East went into the lead as Guest scored on a pass from Reynolds. Just before the bell, which ended the first period, the West tied the count, 3 to 3, as Corpening fished the ball from beneath the hoofs of several stamping horses and scored.

East Takes Lead.

Throughout the second period the West was backed up against its own goal, making desperate efforts to stave off a relentless Eastern attack. The stalwart defensive work of all three players was not enough to prevent the East from scoring three goals, two of them short ones by Reynolds and Guest, respectively.

The third was made on a spectacular play by Reynolds. Nicholls and Corpening were carrying the ball, racing at a wild gallop, when Reynolds knifed in and stole it. Turning in midfield, he delivered a wallop which sent the ball fifty yards to the goal. A foul by Guest took off half a point and the period ended with the East ahead, 5½ to 3.

Immediately after the toss-in which started the third period, Reynolds scored and a minute later he took a pass from Guest to count again. Then Lorber's backshot gave the West a point, but the East responded with a point by Borden, who knocked down a high pass from Guest and rolled it into the goal. That brought the score to 8½ to 4 for the East at the close of the third chukker.

Washington Park Loses.

Nicholls delivered a hard shot from midfield which missed the goal by about a yard early in the fourth period. Following in at full speed, he rode Guest out of the play, picked up the rebound and scored with a back shot. There was a foul called on Reynolds, but he made up for it immediately with a slashing back shot into the goal. Then came a foul on Lorber, shortly before the final bell, making the score 9 to 4½.

In a preliminary game a 124th Field Artillery team composed of Lieut. Romeo Mura, Capt. W. S. Everett, and Lieut. Chris Schuh, with Lieut. Don Rice as alternate, defeated the Washington Park Polo club, 7½ to 6. The Washington Park team was made up of Maj. R. G. Hunter, Lieut. Steve Hammond, and Lieut. H. D. Reed.

SHAKY SUPPORT GIVEN WARNEKE HELPS PIRATES

Boston Plays Today at Wrigley Field.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 2.—A bad case of hysteria gripped the usually competent Cubs today. They blundered as fielders and on the bases, so they were rather soft for the Pirates in the rubber battle of the series. Partly because of their mistakes and partly because young Arky Vaughan hit a homer with one on base against Lon Warneke, the Chicagoans were whipped, 4 to 2, for their second straight loss and fourth defeat of the year. They also had to relinquish possession of the National league lead for the first time.

The Cubs will be back at Wrigley field tomorrow and expect to mend their ways in a series with the Boston Braves.

Three items, not counting the Pirates' hits, entered into the production of Warneke's first setback of the season after three consecutive victories. One of these was the breaking of the Cubs' lone promising rally of the afternoon by the simple process of catching Gabby Hartnett loitering off base. Another was Chuck Klein and Ki Cuyler neglecting to grab an easy fly. This lapse turned into a run a moment later when Dolph Camilli, subbing for Manager Grimm, wasn't able to hold an ordinary thrown ball.

Meine Is Effective.

Heinie Meine, the A. E. F. veteran, isn't supposed to be a nine inning pitcher but he didn't have much trouble going that distance. Neither was he annoyed by any comics such as the Cubs injected into the proceedings. Meine was good enough to keep six of the Cubs hits scattered through as many innings. One of these developed into a run because Klein boomed homer No. 6 into the seats. The three other hits off Meine were clustered in the third and this was where Hartnett's bad bit of base running spoiled what might have developed into a profitable inning.

Vaughan made himself a nuisance in both halves of the first inning. In the Cub portion he ran behind second for a one handed pickup that robbed Capt. English of a hit. The home half opened with Lloyd Waner's fly to right, but brother Paul singled to center. He was forced by Lindstrom. Then Vaughan whacked his homer over the top of the screen which protects right field customers whenever there are any right field customers.

Hartnett Picked Off Second.

Four Cubs in a row reached base in the third inning, but only one scored. Hartnett led off with a single to center and Warneke did the same. Hartnett took a big lead off second in anticipation of a bunt and Grace's throw picked Gabby off the bag. English then walked and Billy Herman singled to score Warneke. English went to third on the hit. Klein flied to Lindstrom in short left and Babe Herman's long fly was pulled down by Lindstrom close to the scoreboard.

Warneke probably considered himself lucky in not being scored on in the home third despite a single by Little Waner and a triple by Lindstrom. The hits were lost because a double play was sandwiched between them. However, Warneke didn't think much of his luck in the fourth. This incident opened with Klein and Cuyler doing their "after you, my dear man" act on Suhr's fly. It fell between them for a double. Suhr dashed home when Camilli failed to catch Billy Herman's throw on Thevenow's grounder.

Beats Out Perfect Bunt.

The Pirates tacked another run on the scoreboard in the fifth. Little Waner beat out a perfect bunt aimed between English and Warneke. Paul Waner sacrificed his little brother to second. The little brother scooted across the plate on Lindstrom's single to center. Shortly after this Klein changed the count from 4 to 1 to 4 to 2. He spanked homer No. 6 into the upper right field deck with one out in the sixth inning.

After Klein's homer the Cubs were docile except for two singles. Jurges bounced a hit off Vaughan's glove with one out in the seventh, but Hartnett flied to center and Warneke grounded into a force play. English furnished the other hit. He singled past Thevenow to open the eighth, but Billy Herman poked into a double play, and Klein hoisted to Little Waner.

ROSS LAUNCHES DRILL FOR FIGHT WITH McLARNIN

Will Begin Sparring at Trafton's Monday.

Barney Ross, lightweight champion, opened training yesterday at Trafton's gymnasium for his welterweight championship bout with Jimmy McLarnin at New York May 28. Ross returned Tuesday from two weeks of preliminary drills in his Loretta, Wis., camp.

Ross will commence sparring drills Monday. He will entrain May 11 for New York. Sam Pian, co-manager with Art Winch of the champion, will go east today to attend a hearing at the New York athletic commission at which Ross' inability to go through with a match against Tony Herrera at Fort Worth, Tex., April 20, will be explained. He also will obtain a block of tickets for fans who will go east to attend the bout on the special train sponsored by George Ross and Soldier Mickey Farr.

Tony Canzoneri, former featherweight, lightweight, and junior welterweight titleholder, has accepted terms for a 10 round encounter with Roger Bernard of Flint, Mich., at Detroit on May 15.

Phil Kenneally, C. Y. O. champion and Golden Gloves lightweight semifinalist, will meet Jake Lampkins, novice Golden Gloves welterweight king, tonight at C. Y. O. center, 31 East Congress street. Other contests:

Johnny Barbara vs. Barney Ryan.
Al Camber vs. John Logan.
Mitchell Janus vs. Jerry Lucas.
John Bittner vs. Joe Lynn.
Frank Balanch vs. Tom Totner.
Ed Jackson vs. Saviour Canadeo.
Tony Carlucci vs. Al Soukup.

Bouts on tonight's schedule include:

At Davenport, Ia.—Kid Leonard vs. Sammy [Kid] Slaughter [10], middleweights.
At Paterson, N. J.—Vince Dundee, middleweight champion, vs. Al Diamond [15], title.
At St. Louis, Mo.—Clyde Chastain vs. Al Stillman [10], light heavyweights.

Jack Kranz, Gary heavyweight, is paired with Willie Davies in a supporting bout on the Meyer Grace-Henry Rothier program at Midway arena Monday. . . . The opening show at Western stadium has been set back from May 15 to May 22.

Laddie Tonelli, Marseilles, Ill., welterweight, and Meyer Grace, Indianapolis, Ind., signed last night to meet in an eight round feature battle tomorrow at the Rainbo Fronton. Geno Salvatore, La Salle, Ill., lightweight, boxes Jackie McCarten in a five round semi-final. Jimmy Christy faces Floyd Embrey and Henry Fuscaldo meets Servano Fabia in two of four other encounters.

Chuck Reed, Chicago welterweight, signed yesterday to box Iowa Joe Rivers in an eight round contest at Milwaukee next Wednesday. . . . Tony Bruno, Milwaukee middleweight, is to head the card against a suitable opponent. . . . Billy Gladstone, north side junior welterweight, is back from Florida after four months. . . . Jack Dempsey is to go to Flint, Mich., to referee some encounters tomorrow after he officiates tonight at Saginaw.

LONDOS-SINGH BOUT PROTESTED BY MARSHALL

Billy Sandow, manager of Everett Marshall, the La Junta, Colo., wrestler, yesterday filed a protest with Joe Foley of the Stadium Operating corporation against the proposed Jagot Singh-Jim Londos match at the Stadium on May 14.

Sandow wired Foley that Marshall was ready to appear at the Stadium May 14. Acording to Sandow, he and Marshall have an agreement with the Stadium's wrestling department calling for a match against Londos before June 1. Sandow also claims that the only reason he accepted engagements other than windups in the Stadium was because of the promise of a meeting with Londos in the event Marshall won all of his matches.

Marshall has appeared in the Stadium four times this season and has been successful in all of his starts. This, Sandow maintains, warants a match with Londos.

OWEN, FORMER ILLINI STAR, TO COACH AT RILEY

South Bend, Ind., May 2.—[Special.]—Boyd [Red] Owen, former all around athlete at Central High school here and captain of the 1933 University of Illinois basketball team, has signed to coach basketball at Riley High school. Owen's contract is for one year. Announcement was made yesterday of the signing of Ralph Parmenter, former Purdue star, as head basketball coach at Central.

Owen succeeds Robert Forbes, coach at Riley the last four years. Forest M. Wood, former Franklin college athlete and head football coach at Riley, will assist Owen in basketball. Owen will assist Wood in football.

Elmer H. Burnham, football and baseball coach at Central for the last 15 years, was named director of athletics today and will be relieved as a teacher of physical education to enable him to devote his entire time to athletics.

Governor of Michigan May Watch Casters

BY BOB BECKER.

Feminine bait casters who participate in THE TRIBUNE casting contests at the boat and sports show next week on the Navy Pier may have a distinguished spectator on the sidelines watching their work with rod and reel. According to an announcement made yesterday William A. Comstock, governor of Michigan, is planning to attend the boat and sports show Wednesday, May 9. This is the day set aside for deciding the champion feminine bait caster in THE TRIBUNE casting contest which is open to girls and women.

There are just two days left for casters to file entries in both casting contests being sponsored by THE TRIBUNE at the boat and sports show. The entry list will be closed tomorrow evening. Bait casters who do not mail in entry blanks by tomorrow night cannot compete for silver cups and the scores of rod, reels, and other awards which will go to the winners.

Contestants Make Ten Casts.

Boy Scouts who have done most of their fishing with a bait casting rod, and would like to try their hand at accuracy casting, are urged to file their entries at once. The first event is strictly an amateur contest for boys under 16 years of age. Here is a chance for the average young fisherman to show what he can do with a five or five and one half foot casting rod. There is no entry fee. All you have to do is bring your own rod, reel, and line to the boat and sports show, step up to the casting pool, and make ten casts at the floating targets. The contestant making the best score on his ten casts wins. Casters placing first, second, and third will receive beautiful silver cups. Preliminaries for this event will be held between four and six p. m. beginning next Monday.

Wednesday night, May 9, will be devoted to the contest for girls and the women. Starting at 7:30 p. m. feminine casters will fight it out to see who is the most skilful at hitting the floating targets. Silver cups will be awarded to the winners of first, second, and third places in this event. Other place winners will go home with fishing tackle items to be awarded to those making high scores in the contest.

Lincoln Park Postpones Meet.

Robert Hamilton, president of the Lincoln Park Casting club informs that his organization has postponed its opening day casting competition from May 6 to May 13 that all members may give their attention to the casting contests at the boat and sports show. Other casting clubs in the city [including the Illinois and the Chicago clubs] will have many members at the pool giving demonstrations, teaching beginners and helping with the contests. Better clip the entry coupon and mail it in at once, if you wish to compete for the scores of prizes awaiting winners in these interesting events.

15 Prep Teams Entered in Northern Indiana Meet

South Bend, Ind., May 2.—[Special.]—Fifteen high school track teams will compete here Saturday in the annual Northern Indiana High School conference meet. Horace Mann athletes of Gary, who won the state indoor title recently, are favorites. Other teams are Central and Riley, South Bend; Emerson and Froebel, Gary; Whiting, Hammond, Roosevelt, and Washington of East Chicago; Valparaiso, Elkhart, Goshen, Nappanee, La Porte, Michigan City, and Mishawaka.

Augustana Tennis Team Triumphs Over Cornell

Rock Island, Ill., May 2.—[Special.]—Defeating Cornell college here today in a nonconference match, Augustana's tennis team remained unbeaten since the start of the 1933 season. Summary:

Douglas [A.] defeated Winnie [C.], 7-5, 6-2. Defraties [A.] defeated Donley [C.], 6-0, 6-0. Carlson [A.] defeated Henke [C.], 6-1, 6-1. Anderson [A.] defeated MacGregor [C.], 6-3, 6-3. Douglas Carlson defeated Winnie Henke, 6-3, 6-2. Defraties and Anderson defeated Donley and Wilkinson, 6-2, 6-2.

LEAGUE TO CLOSE ENTRIES.

The Chicago Industrial Baseball league will close entries at its meeting tonight at 155 West Madison street.

Lincolnshire to Hold First Golf Party Saturday

The Lincolnshire Country club will hold its first formal golf party Saturday, and on May 19 will conduct a tournament for which more than 1,000 invitations have been issued. Nearly a thousand were in attendance last week-end at the celebration of the club's new transportation service from the Illinois Central.

The Brothers Walsh, Frank of Bryn Mawr and Tom of Westgate Valley, will stage a demonstration tonight at the golf party conducted by Leo council of the Knights of Columbus. They will appear at about 9 o'clock, and all K. of C. golfers are invited to attend.

Both the Illinois Professional Golfers' association and the Chicago District Golfers' association have voted unanimously the contribution of $500 to the upkeep of the Midwest Turf garden, the local experimental station of the United States Golf association's greens section. The garden, located on A. D. Lasker's Old Mill Road farm in West Lake Forest, was a grand source of information to greenskeepers and professionals throughout the central states, and last fall was in danger of being abolished by the U. S. G. A. It will be operated henceforth, however, due largely to the above contributions.

FOUR N. U. TEAMS TO FACE BIG TEN FOES SATURDAY

Northwestern's spring sport teams face a busy week-end with all four squads seeing action Saturday against Big Ten opponents. The baseball and golf teams will travel to Madison, where they meet Wisconsin. The track team will participate in a triangular meet with Iowa and Wisconsin at Iowa City, while the tennis team meets Michigan on the university courts in Evanston.

The baseball team will endeavor to boost its standing to the 500 per cent mark by turning back the Badgers. The Wildcats have lost two and won one game in the conference to date. They divided the two game series with Michigan and dropped the first of the Illinois series.

After winning all their practice matches, the golf team dropped their first conference match to Michigan last week. The Wolverines, last year's conference champions, possess another strong team despite the loss of Johnny Fischer, a member of the Walker cup team.

The Wildcat track team took last place in the indoor quadrangular meet with Iowa and Wisconsin, but Coach Frank Hill expects his squad to improve this position outdoors.

REYNOLDS GAINS LEAD IN BIG SIX WITH THREE HITS

[By the Associated Press.]

Three hits yesterday enabled Carl Reynolds, Red Sox outfielder, to climb back into the Big Six lead. He boosted his average to .451, a gain of 25 points.

Mel Ott of the Giants, the only other member of the sextet active, took the National league lead again. He connected safely twice, including his sixth homer of the season, to boost his average to .395, an increase of 20 points. The standings:

Bazaar Works Derby Route in Fast Time

Discovery Makes Friends.

Discovery, which will represent young Alfred G. Vanderbilt, made new friends during the afternoon when he traveled the Derby route in 2:08. He was asked for speed in only the first and last quarters and responded to every urge. You've heard of that old silent vote in an election. Well, the plungers who do not make much noise about their transactions all were trying to get a little bet down on Discovery tonight.

Singing Wood wasn't asked to do his best, but went a mile and a quarter in 2:09 4-5, and Speedmore likewise ambled the distance in 2:09 3-5. Agrarian showed up in such fine condition he appeared to be cantering when he traveled the Derby course in 2:12. The boy in the saddle would not let him run at any stage of the drill.

Dan Sabath Scratched.

Dan Sabath, the Chicago colt, which sustained a knee injury in the Derby Preparation purse, was declared out of the race today by Trainer B. S. Mitchell. The colt is not seriously hurt and will be away from the races only a short time.

The advance throng of Derby visitors reached Louisville today and most of them had to warm their heels in the hotel lobbies until the delegates to the National Bakers' convention moved out.

The bakers became imbued with the Derby spirit soon after they arrived and have been making almost as much noise as Derby eve crowds of other years. Most of the bakers were reluctant to surrender their rooms to the $15 a day Derby customers.

De Pauw Track Team Defeats Cincinnati, 92-39

Greencastle, Ind., May 2.—[Special.]—De Pauw university defeated University of Cincinnati in dual track meet today, 92 to 39. De Pauw triumphed in nine of 14 events and won the mile relay. Bob Fribley took high point honors with 13 points, winning the 440 and 220 yard dashes and placing second in the javelin throw.

FEEDBOX DOPE.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2.—[Special.]—Peace Chance, which set a new track record for a mile in 1:35 4-5 in the Derby trial yesterday, was lolling in an easy chair in front of his de luxe suite at the Joseph E. Widener barn as The Wake made our customary round at Churchill Downs this morning. This suite is similar to that occupied by Bazaar of the Bradley stable and by Reigh Count in his Derby year.

This son of Chance Shot-Peace [note the appropriate nomenclature], was clad in a silken lounging robe of conspicuous red and white stripes which stable color scheme was reflected in painting of the barn. Peace Chance bore a complacent but not offensive attitude as we approached and ended morning salutations.

"How does it feel to be so suddenly projected into the spotlight?" we inquired.

"Just great," he replied with a slight drawl in his whinny. Then he shook his mane and head emphatically and nodded toward Trainer Pete Coyne as he caught our eye wandering toward an empty pint bottle over at the side in an inconspicuous place.

After Coyne left, he exclaimed, "I didn't know that empty was in view. Truth is, I had a few scotch and sodas after I won that race so easily. Coyne had me right on edge and I feared I might go stale, but he's a terribly strict disciplinarian, since he went on the wagon himself. There's a little more from where that came from. No, not drinking? Well, I don't suppose it does anybody any good.

"Do you mind?" he inquired, as he adjusted a monocle. "I only do this in the morning when no one is around. I suppose it's my ancestry on mother's side. My grandad was Stefan the Great, whom the English regarded as a great horse. Incidentally, Mr. Wake, you probably remember he was nicknamed 'Stoppin the great' on this side because his progeny here proved sprinters and even Mr. Widener sent him back. I shouldn't bring this up, but it's just informal and the other side of my house does have staying qualities.

"Suppose you want me to be brief. I was a fair 2 year old, two wins in seven starts, no stake victories. I was just a well trained outsider until the Derby trial. It was a great performance. True, I carried only 103 pounds and will have more up in the Derby, but so will all the others.

"Now here's the way I figure this race: There's enough early speed, especially with Mata Hari there, so you've got to be up, perhaps just off the pace but up in the first flight, for a mile between 1:36 and 1:37. Then you've got to be able to meet the stretch challenge of stayers coming from behind. I don't worry about the early pace after that Derby trial. I was going so easily and so well in hand that I'm sure I can go on and meet any challenge. Now I give full credit to Pete Coyne, even if he won't let me drink if he knows it. I've been brought along until I'm the best conditioned horse in the race unless possibly Bazaar.

"You better have a bet on me as I understand you're very fond of Hialeah where Mr. Widener is the dominating personality."

"Hello, what time is it?" greeted Riskulus, simulating a yawn as we tramped over to the Northway stable. This reference to his ownership by Norman W. Church of the Elgin watch family showed that the son of Stimulus was in great spirits after his trial this morning over the full Derby route in 2:06 1-5.

"Everybody forgot all about my second by a head to Gallant Sir in the Agua Caliente handicap at a mile and one-quarter in 2:02 4-5 after I ran third to Plight in the Texas Derby. Honestly, I can still feel the bit in my mouth as Jocky Humphries pulled my head off to let Gallant Sir, my stable mate, win so I wouldn't pick up weight penalties as the purse was all in the family anyway. In the Texas Derby I was overconfident.

"Now, in the Derby, I'll be going all the way. There's a lot of money at stake. They tell me my victory will hurt the future books more than any other winner. I don't pay much attention to those things, but I heard it was backed down from 80 to 1 to 10 to 1. Isn't that what I'm quoted now? I suppose Mr. Church has some of it but they tell me Gene Normile, Jack Dempsey's friend, did most of the future betting.

"I have a great respect for this field—the best bunch in many seasons—but I expect to be on top Saturday. You ought to be pulling for me, too, for I'm one of the few western owned chaps with a chance. I intend to go so fast I'll stop a watch," said Riskulus with a horse laugh as our interview ended.

This Wake is conducted by Harvey T. Woodruff. Help! Help!

Giants Sell Thompson, Infielder, to Montreal

New York, May 2.—(AP)—The New York Giants today announced the sale of Lafayette Fresco Thompson, veteran utility infielder, to the Montreal club of the International league. Thompson, who has played with Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, and Brooklyn, came to the Giants last winter from Buffalo in the International league.

NOTRE DAME HAS 24 MURPHYS, BUT ONLY 1 VINCENT

Sophomore High Jumper Aims at Olympics.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Vincent Benedict Murphy, most prominent in athletics of Notre Dame's 24 Murphys, is one of the outstanding high jumpers in the country. In the central states Willis Ward of Michigan is his most dangerous rival. Ward, who elected to compete at the Drake relays last week, was ample reason for Coach John Nicholson to send Murphy to the Pennsylvania relays. However, despite Murphy's leap of 6 feet 4¼ inches, he only landed in third place, while the same height at Drake would have won a championship since Ward failed to place.

This is second guessing, of course. With still another year of competition, he's a junior in the college of electrical engineering, Murphy may get into the record breaking class. The year following graduation is the Olympics at Berlin, on which Murphy already has centered his attention.

Gains Fame in 1931.

Murphy gained national fame by winning the 1931 high jump in the University of Chicago interscholastic meet with a mark of 6 feet ½ inch. He once cleared 6 feet 3 inches from a wooden take off while competing for Cathedral Latin High school, Cleveland, O.

In his freshman year he was permitted to compete in the national collegiate meet, since that was an Olympic semi-final tryout, and he jumped 6 feet 5 inches, being beaten only by Ward and Bert Nelson of Butler. In his first meet under Irish colors he jumped 6 feet 5⅛ inches but injured his left ankle.

Changes Style of Jumping.

To favor the weak ankle, Murphy, on the advice of Coach Nicholson, completely changed his style of jumping this year. He formerly employed the eastern style, taking off and landing on his left foot. Now he makes a roll so that he takes off on his left foot and lands on his right. He tied for first place in the Knights of Columbus games in New York last winter with a leap of 6 feet 5 inches, using the new style.

Now his leg is healing, so he uses both styles. In the words of Nicholson, "He looks at the bar, and uses the style with which the bar looks lower."

Murphy is regarded as the official team jester. Nicholson has to keep one eye on Murphy and one on the rest of the squad at practice, for Murphy is his best performer, and the hardest to control. The minute Nicholson isn't watching him, he'll be over on the track practicing sprints, throwing the javelin or throwing the discus. He weighs only 178 pounds and stands 6 feet 3 inches tall. He talks always with a heavy assumed brogue.

He'll Even Play a Fiddle.

Murphy has just enough competitive spirit that he can rise to the heights at any time. He always wants to compete with some one in something. If the symphony is practicing in Washington hall, he is likely to drop in and borrow a fiddle and play a few Irish jig tunes, perfectly well satisfied that they are better than anything the symphony men can play.

His marks in the college of engineering give him an honor rating. He does not train assiduously. He won four events indoors last winter and tied for first in the previously mentioned K. of C. games, and did not practice [illegible].

Meagher Another Star.

Another of Notre Dame's best track and field men is George Beyer Meagher, a sophomore in the college of science, from De Pue, Ill. Against Illinois in his second meet for Notre Dame he broad jumped 23 feet 3¼ inches for a new Notre Dame record. The following week, against Ohio State he surpassed this by two inches. Coach Nicholson believes he'll reach 24 feet this year.

Despite his height, only 5 feet 9 inches, and rather slender build, he is powerful because of the drive in his sturdy legs. He won the University of Chicago interscholastic meet two years ago with a jump of 23 feet 2 inches.

Chicago Schools Enter National Catholic Meet

Notre Dame, Ind., May 2.—[Special.]—High school coaches from many sections of the country have expressed interest in the first annual Notre Dame national Catholic interscholastic track and field meet to be held June 2.

Entry blanks have not been mailed yet, but Coach John P. Nicholson has been receiving inquiries daily regarding the meet. Several schools from New York City have expressed their desire to compete, but said they will be unable to come because of the fact that the New York Catholic interscholastic meet will be held May 30. This conflict in dates will be avoided next year, Nicholson announced.

Among the teams which have definitely stated that they will enter are Fenwick, St. Ignatius, De LaSalle, and Mount Carmel High schools and DePaul academy, all of Chicago; Aquinas High school of La Crosse, Wis.; St. Mary's High school of Columbus, O.; and St. Teresa High school of Decatur, Ill.

Teams whose athletic directors or coaches have expressed interest in the meet and a willingness to enter if various obstacles can be overcome, are St. Ann's academy, New York City; West Catholic High school, Philadelphia, Pa.; Catholic High school, Grand Rapids, Mich.; St. Catherine's High school, Racine, Wis.; St. John's prep, Danvers, Mass.; Roger Bacon High school, Cincinnati, O.; Elder High school, Cincinnati, O.; St. George High school, Evanston, Ill.; Leo High school, Chicago; St. Bede Academy, Peru, Ill.; and Marmion Institute of Aurora, Ill.

In requesting information about the meet, officials of the schools named, and a score of others gave various reasons why they might not be able to attend this year. Some of the reasons are as follows: conflict of dates with dual meets or championship meets already scheduled; the possibility that some of the smaller schools will not have track teams this particular year, and a lack of funds on the part of some of the more distant schools.

Despite the late date at which the meet was announced, however, Nicholson today expressed surprise and gratification at the number of teams which are coming.

Team to Face Poland to Be Picked Soon

York, 12 bouts to 4 in 1933, four champions were displaced and last year there were three changes in the lineup of the international squad as compared to the list of Golden Gloves winners.

As a result of this policy, there'll be some hard fought practice bouts at the I. A. C. In all probability at least two boys will be named in each weight not only so that the better will get a chance against Poland but as a protection in case of injury.

Among those boys now under consideration are:

Flyweight—Johnny Brown, Chicago, and Patsy Urso, Detroit, who won in the Grand Rapids, Mich., tournament, and won his bout against New York.

Bantamweight—Toy Bellini, Cleveland; Tommy Barry, Springfield, Ill.; Ray Harris, South Bend, Ind., and Joe Minneci, Waukegan, Ill. Barry fought and won against New York and then, as a flyweight, won the national A. A. U. championship. Harris was beaten in New York as the 118 pound runnerup.

Featherweight—Alfred Nettlow, Detroit, and Andy Scrivani, Chicago. Scrivani lost a close bout in New York but finished with a brilliant burst of boxing in the third round.

Lightweight—Phil Kenneally and Harold Brown, Chicago. Kenneally won in New York in a spectacular bout. Other lightweights are also receiving consideration.

Welterweight—Danny Farrar, Youngstown, O., and Fred Tyus, Peoria, Ill. Tyus was a winner in New York.

Middleweight—Bill Treest, Batavia, Ill.; Fred Caserio, Chicago, and Tony Zale, Gary, Ind.

Lightheavyweight—Joe Louis, Detroit, and Ario Soldati, Princeton, Ill.

Heavyweight—Otis Thomas, Chicago, and Max Marek, Notre Dame, Ind.

Definite selection of the squad will be made within a few days. The boys will report May 13 at the I. A. C. and start work the following day. John Behr will be head coach of the team.

HOWARD DAVIS, professional of the Ridgemoor Country Club, says:

"Smack out a long drive, right down the middle—boy, what a thrill you get! You'll make that shot more often with the new Kroydons, and that's why I'm for them 100%."

You can feel the power and balance in a Kroydon Flexographed Wood merely by "waggling" it back and forth. These 1934 Kroydons are fitted with the Hy-Power Steel Shaft in 3 grades of flexibility—stiff-flex, semi-flex, full-flex—to suit your individual swing. This matched flexibility, plus the reverse tapering of the Hy-Power Shaft, puts a club in your hands which adds to your accuracy and distance-getting ability.

SENATORS SCORE 6 RUNS IN FIRST; BEAT YANKS, 6-2

Washington Gets 8 Hits in Opening Inning.

Washington, D. C., May 2.—(AP)—A first inning assault upon Russell Van Atta, young righthander, gave the Washington Senators their first victory of the year over the New York Yankees in the final of the three-game series today. The score was 6 to 2.

The Senators put together eight hits for all of their runs in the first. Six of the hits were singles, one was a triple by Fred Schulte and the other a double by Cecil Travis.

Only four of the runs were scored off Van Atta, the other two coming off John Murphy, who sought to stem the rally with one out and two men on the bases.

BROWNS, 5; TIGERS, 2.

Detroit, Mich., May 2.—(AP)—Home runs by Burns and Pepper with men on the bases enabled the St. Louis Browns to defeat Detroit, 5 to 2, in the series final today. The result gave the Browns two of the three games played.

The Tigers took a one run lead in the first inning but could not hold it. Vic Sorrell's pitching weakened and the Browns hammered him in the second. Clift doubled and Burns brought him home with a home run. In the fifth Pepper slammed his home run to the score board with West and Burns on base. Score:

Giants Beat Dodgers, 6-5; Take 1st Place

New York, May 2.—(AP)—Two home runs, the first by Mel Ott in the third and the other by Pinch Hitter Lefty O'Doul in the eighth gave the New York Giants a 6 to 5 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers today and a clean sweep of the three-game series. The triumph also sent the world champions into the National league lead as the Cubs lost to the Pirates.

Ott hit his homer, his sixth of the season, with Manager Bill Terry on base. O'Doul, batting for Travis Jackson with the Giants trailing by one run, hit a home run with Terry and Ott on the bases. Score:

CARDINALS, 4; REDS, 1.

St. Louis, Mo., May 2.—(AP)—A revised batting order failed to give Cincinnati a winning punch today and the Cardinals took their fourth straight game, their third consecutive one from the Reds, 4 to 1.

Sunny Jim Bottomley was confined to his hotel room with a cold, and Manager Bob O'Farrell sent Mark Koenig to first, Sparky Adams to third, and Johnny Moore to right field instead of Tom Shiver. Tex Carleton, who limited the Reds to two hits in the first six innings, finally weakened and was replaced in the ninth after yielding two singles. Score:

Cubs Back Today to Welcome First of Eastern Foes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 2.—The Cubs moved back to Chicago tonight for the opening tomorrow of a home stay during which the four eastern clubs will be entertained. The Braves will be the first to appear. Pat Malone will welcome them tomorrow. The Cubs have been beaten twice by southpaws in the last four days, so they are looking for the Braves to open with that variety of pitcher on the job. Ed Brandt will be the man.

Manager Grimm's charley horse was unruly again today, so he ordered Camilli to attend to the first base duties. Grimm was additionally annoyed by a large sized cold sore on his lower lip.

If the Braves start a southpaw tomorrow and Tuck Stainback's ankle is sufficiently improved, the latter will be dropped into right field in place of Babe Herman. This shift will be made throughout the season whenever a right handed hitter is needed.

When the Cubs return here they'll participate in the celebration of the 25th anniversary of Forbes field, home of the Pirates. The ceremony will take place June 30. The Cubs were the visiting team when the park was opened June 30, 1909. Johnny Evers scored the first run that afternoon.

The Pirates' victory yesterday added about 1,000 to the usual 3,500 week day turnout today. In the three games here the Cubs drew only about 11,000 paid customers.

Feathers Signs Contract with Bears' Eleven

Beattie Feathers of the University of Tennessee signed a contract to play with the Chicago Bears next fall, George Halas, president-coach of the National league football champions, announced yesterday.

Feathers, who is 5 feet 10½ inches tall and weighs 186 pounds, was an outstanding college player last year. He played half back and full back during his high school days at Bristol, Va., and half back at Tennessee.

Feathers is an all round performer and his defensive ability was especially noted in the last East-West contest in San Francisco. He is 24 years old.

A teammate, Bob Stafford, also was signed as a tackle. He is 22 years old, 6 feet 5½ inches tall and weighs 225 pounds. His home is Asheville N. C.

Indiana Beats Purdue, 8-4; 2d Victory

Lafayette, Ind., May 2.—[Special.]—Whitey Wilshere, Indiana left hander, pitched a three hit game today as the Crimson came from behind to defeat Purdue, 8 to 4, in the opening game of a two game series. It will be concluded tomorrow afternoon. It marked the second Big Ten victory in three starts for Indiana and Purdue's second defeat of the season.

Purdue's pitchers, Huml and Griffin, did well, but the Boilermaker infield committed seven errors, most of them costly.

Indiana trailed the Boilermakers, 4 to 2, going into the seventh inning, but an infield error and a misjudged fly ball that went for a hit, along with Himelstein's double, accounted for three runs. Score:

Indiana ....010 001 312—8 10 4
Purdue ....400 000 000—4 3 7
Batteries—Wilshere and McLaughlin; Huml, Griffin and Fehring.

N. U. WINS, 5 TO 3.

Northwestern defeated Louisiana Tech, 5 to 3, at Roycemore field, Evanston, yesterday. Herb Harris' home run over the right fielder's head with Clayborn on base was the margin of victory. Lagger set Louisiana down with no hits in three innings, Harris allowed two, and Kimball one. Louisiana's runs were made off Harris, who had trouble locating the plate. Score:

Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

GABBY HARTNETT of the Cubs is the only catcher, past or present, living or dead, who has driven in 122 runs in one season. . . . Gabby did it in 1930, the year he hit 37 home runs, more than any catcher before or since. . . . University of California at Los Angeles broke the 11 year old Drake one mile relay record and Texas, Ohio State and Iowa also finished in faster time than Indiana did in winning the same event at the Penn games. . . . Indiana's time was 3 minutes 18 and 7-10 seconds. . . . Ossie Solem, Iowa's football coach, is pessimistic about his 1934 eleven. . . . Says he doesn't have replacements for key men. . . .

An Iowa surgeon was playing golf with three others for high stakes. . . . Coming to one of the greens he had a long putt for $50. . . . He made the others sit down while he smoked a cigaret. . . . Then he discussed the market and events of the day. . . . He then circled the green, sighting all angles. . . . The procedure required 10 minutes. . . . After which he stepped up to the ball, tapped it and collected the $50. . . .

The Marty boys of Fresno, Cal., are high steppers. . . . Ben Marty, brother of Walter, world's high jump champion, leaped 6 feet in a recent workout at Fresno High school. . . . Walter competes for Fresno State college. . . . Ed Durham, White Sox pitcher with the ailing arm, is being treated by Si Benson, University of Chicago trainer. . . . There's a young man named Manske out for end on the Maroon eleven, but his first name is Armin and he is no relative of Northwestern's Eggs. . . .

Iron Man Joe McGinnity entered baseball in the days when a player who could read or write was considered a sissy. . . . One day when a sports writer in another town asked McGinnity for the starting lineup of his Dubuque club he went along until the name of a new outfielder of German extraction was given. . . . "Spell it, Joe?" the author asked. . . . "Aw, hell," Joe remarked, "call him Meyers". . . . And that was the way the rookie's name appeared in future box scores. . . .

Iowa State disputes Marquette's claim to the best southpaw javelin thrower. . . . Carl Ripper of Ames won the event in the Kansas Relays with a heave of 206 feet 5 inches. . . . The Marquette boy's best effort was reported as 189 feet 6 inches. . . . Chew-Tobacco Ryan, one of Chicago's biggest bookmakers, is preparing to open in New York where bookmaking has been legalized. . . . He is the only Chicagoan reported to be interested in the New York tracks. . . . In the old days Chicago bookmakers outnumbered bookmakers from any other city regardless of where the racing was conducted. . . .

Bats are a big item in a major league club's operating expense. . . . Players are not at all backward about having a supply of their favorite models on hand and each costs the club owners from $2 to $4. . . . Robert Eddy and Joe Cattarinich, head men at Aurora, have leased the race track from the Exposition Park receivers for five years with an option to buy. . . . Barney Ross will miss his first International Golden Gloves show when the Chicago champions fight Poland May 23. . . . He will be in New York training for his welterweight championship bout with Jimmy McLarnin. . . . Ross, an alumnus of Golden Gloves, helped to train the Chicago team for its match with Ireland last summer. . . .

Lena Levinsky is keeping a particularly watchful eye on the King these days for fear he will go Hollywood like Max Baer. . . . Levinsky is training in Los Angeles for a bout with Art Laskey, May 15. . . . Sandy Garrison, Mexican boxer, has embarked on a career as a matador. . . . He already has slaughtered two bulls in Mexico City. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—Grover Alexander pitched the Cubs to a 2 to 1 victory over the Pirates. . . . Ed Strangler Lewis defeated Mike Romano two out of three falls. . . . William Tilden told a group of newspapermen that he would quit tennis before he would think of turning pro.

Hammond and Syndicate Take Over Garden

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—Col. John S. Hammond and a group of associates have acquired control of Madison Square Garden, it was officially announced today.

Except for some minor legal details to be arranged, the stock previously held by Richard F. Hoyt and banking interests has been purchased by the new group, thus bringing back Col. Hammond, a close friend of the late Tex Rickard, who built the $7,000,000 sports structure.

Col. Hammond was a pioneer in the Garden's professional hocky activities. He resigned as vice president of the Madison Square Garden corporation in 1932 as well as relinquishing his duties as president of the New York Rangers Hockey club. He will now replace Hoyt as chairman of the corporation's board of directors. He will also assume his old post as president of the Rangers.

He announced that he had asked Col. John Reed Kilpatrick to remain as president of the corporation, and that several changes would be made in the present board of directors.

EARNSHAW WILL FACE MACKS FOR WHITE SOX TODAY

Fonseca May Start Haas and Swanson Again.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., May 2.—[Special.]—The White Sox, resting easily after arriving here more than 24 hours ahead of game time, scarcely can wait for their series with the Philadelphia Athletics to open tomorrow.

The three game stand here may get the Sox well out of the cellar, or it may, of course, get them so well locked in that they will stay there during the course of the 13 days of this eastern visitation.

There is some interest in tomorrow's opener, perhaps due to the fact that George Earnshaw will be pitching here for the first time in regalia other than that of Connie Mack's Athletics. The Philadelphia chapter of the Swarthmore Alumni association, at least, will be pulling for big George to do well. But there are others who are hoping that George doesn't do so well—hoping for vindication of Mr. Mack's judgment in sending away his former right hand ace.

Philly Fans Are Personal.

Philadelphia fans are declared by most ball players to be the most personal and direct in their grandstand comments, even having gone into loud mouthed shoutings about such intimate matters as broken engagements, ability to sing opera, and all sorts of other matters which have nothing to do with baseball. Unless these indelicate representatives of Philadelphia have moved since last year it is thought they will be on hand tomorrow for an artistic revival of the tempermental quirks which caused Earnshaw to get in bad with the benign erstwhile employer, Mr. Mack.

For the first time in many years a White Sox eastern tour is being headed by a Comiskey. The present owner, J. Louis Comiskey, is along, his health improved more than ever, though he is not so happy about the status of his club, insofar as the American league standings are concerned.

Veterans May Start.

Manager Lew Fonseca contemplated some shakeups in his lineup, with the possibility of Mule Haas and Evar Swanson being given a new chance to hit some baseballs. Swanson twice has come through as a pinch hitter since he was taken out of the regular lineup. Haas has the same batting average he had when benched ten days ago—.105. He has been used once in a pinch rôle and walked.

Al Simmons, partly back in stride after hitting three homers in three days in St. Louis and Chicago, expects to get going fully in his old stamping ground. Al always has contended that Shibe Park is the best park in the country in which to hit. Something about visibility.

After three days here the Sox will move to Washington, to meet the league champions, who have been having their troubles, too.

Masterson to Direct Athletics at St. Thomas

St. Paul, Minn., May 2.—[Special.]—Announcement that James Masterson has been signed as athletic director and George Barsi appointed head football and basketball coach was made today by the Rev. James H. Moynihan, president of St. Thomas college. Masterson has had charge of athletics at St. Thomas since Joe Boland resigned to coach at the University of Notre Dame. Barsi coached the basketball team for the last four years. Wilbur Eaton resigned as head football coach a month ago.

TAXI DRIVER AND DOCTOR COLLECT $1,040 AT AURORA

Only Two Hold Tickets on Daily Double.

BY BRUCE DENNIS.

How would you like to add the neat sum of $1,040.64 to your bank roll?

That's just what two out of the 5,200 fans at the Aurora race track did yesterday. They picked Chantesuta and Dispatcher in the daily double. And these long shots came charging home, while 5,248 turf goers groaned, and two persons, one in the clubhouse and one in the grandstand, sent up a cheer that could be heard distinctly at State and Madison streets, 40 miles away.

One of the lucky betters was Sol Berlin of 1540 South Homan avenue, a Yellow Cab driver, who came out to the track on his day off. The other was a north side physician, who refused to permit use of his name.

Look Out for Tax Fellows.

"Those income tax fellows are hard enough to get along with now," said the good doctor to Joe Cattarinich, manager of the Aurora mutuels department, who wrote him a check for the $1,040.64.

But Sol Berlin, just like you and you and you, after you've won a big wager, wasn't afraid of publicity.

To Sol Berlin that thousand dollars meant money for the butcher, baker, and doctor, and dentist. This reporter found Sol at the payoff window in the clubhouse folding a sheaf of ten $100 bills to fit in his wallet.

A dark haired chap of medium stature, Berlin tried not to appear excited as the man on the other side of the window started passing out those crisp green notes.

"What are you going to do with the money?" he was asked.

"I'm going to pay off a few bills," he said.

"How about getting married?"

"No, $1,040.64 isn't enough for that," Sol replied.

Berlin had three tickets on the daily double, a total investment of $6.00. He paired up Parade Step and Balthasar; he coupled Jimmie L. and Dispatcher, and then he decided on a $2 investment in Chantesuta and Dispatcher.

A Good Handicapper.

Just to show you how good Mr. Berlin's handicapping was, Jimmie L. finished second to Chantesuta in the second race, so he had both the live ones paired up with Dispatcher.

Berlin has been following the horses for 12 years. This was the first time he ever put over a daily double. But yesterday was his lucky day. He bought a win ticket on Wise Eddie, the victor in the fourth race. Chantesuta won the second race by a nose from Jimmie L., ridden by Jocky W. Boganowski. He paid $35.32 in the straight mutuels, $15.10 to place and $6.36 to show. Left Ore, the favorite in the race, at $1.26 to $1, was crowded back at the start and again at the finish, where he was forced to come around the leaders to take third money.

Dispatcher Leads All the Way.

Dispatcher's victory was achieved in another manner. Jocky O. Harbort sent him into a lead of four lengths down the back stretch, and he stayed out in the front to the finish. A straight ticket on him was worth $9.90.

The daily double also was remarkable for the refunding of money bet on Birthday Gift, which was scratched from the third race just before post time after she was kicked while in the paddock by Lilac Bloom.

Prior to yesterday a daily double has been a play or pay proposition, and when a horse has been scratched after tickets have been sold on him, it has been the bettor's hard luck. But the Illinois racing commission approved refunds on all tickets on which Birthday Gift's number 8 appeared, whether it was coupled with the winner of the second race or not.

Commission Orders Refund.

The order to scratch Birthday Gift came from Chris Fitzgerald, steward, representing the commission, and the decision to refund all bets on Birthday Gift was made by Oscar Bachman, who represents the commission in the mutuel department.

A couple of eligibles to the $10,000 Illinois Derby, which will be held at Aurora May 23, ran in the fifth race on yesterday's card, and took a sound beating.

Gray Back, whose owner, Mrs. P. Kelley, did not nominate for the Derby, finished fast to take the decision from Charming Sir, which had led for most of the six furlongs. Pharatime, one of the Derby candidates, took third money and Morning Cry, the other aspirant to the $10,000 prize, was sixth. The time of 1:13 was only ordinary.

JOCKY HARBORT RIDES 4 WINNERS AT AURORA TRACK

Two Year Olds to Open Program Today.

Jocky Otto Harbort, a Texas lad, rode four winners at Aurora yesterday, bringing home Town limit in the seventh, Captain Danger in the sixth, Grayback in the fifth, and Dispatcher in the third.

Aurora race fans will get their first glimpse of the two year olds today when a 4½ furlong baby race opens the program. The event, for maiden fillies, attracted seven entries, headed by Margie's Doll, which raced at some of the southern tracks.

The battle of the mint julep was still going on at the bar under the grandstand. So many customers tried to give instructions to the bartenders that the confusion was greater than on opening day.

Betters who waited until the last minute were being shut out again yesterday because they didn't remember the new racing commission rule that mutuels are closed when the first horse reaches the starting gate.

There will be plenty of business for the sprinters on today's card. Only one of the races, the last, is at more than 6 furlongs. The windup number will be at a mile and 70 yards.

Peter B. Carey, chairman of the Illinois Racing commission, paid his first visit to Aurora yesterday.

H. C. McConnell, the owner of the three year old gelding, Jim McConnell, which finished far back in the second race, offered to give the nag to anybody who would put a halter on him and lead him away. There were no takers.

AURORA FORM CHART

FIRST RACE—Six furlongs. Purse $500. Net value to winner, $375; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15.

*Apprentice allowance claimed. Time, :23 2-5, :47 4-5, 1:13 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Annan, $5.94 straight, $2.90 pace, $2.82 show; Phantom Rock, $3.34 place, $3.10 show; Fairyman, 5.84 show. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 2.15.

Annan raced clear soon after the start, shook off Barashkova, then diposed of Fairyman, drew out in the closing stages to win in hand. Phantom Rock, slow to find his best stride, gained rapidly in the stretch and finished gamely. Fairyman raced to the leader turning for home but weakened when subjected to strong pressure. Boston Common closed resolutely. Purple Robe tired. Flying Pilgrim was outrun. Barashkova ran in four bandages and was done early.

SECOND RACE—Five and a half furlongs. Purse $500. Net value to winner, $375; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15.

†Field. Time, :23 2-5, :48 1-5, 1:00 4-5, 1:07. Two dollar mutuels paid: Crantesuta, $35.32 straight, $15.10 place, $6.36 show; Jimmie L., $8.40 place, 4.84 show; Leflore, $2.60 show. Winner trained by J. H. Buscher. Went to post at 2.46.

CHANTESUTA, much the best, was outrun to the stretch, was forced to the outside, closed strong thereafter, and was up to win in the closing strides. JIMMIE L., a strong factor from the start, disposed of Parade Step, but could not resist the winner. LEFLORE, probably best, was in close quarters most of the way and forced to pull up when racing strong inside the final eighth.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse $500. Net value to winner, $375; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15.

[Daily double on second and third races paid $1,040.64.] Winner trained by J. C. McAuliffe. Went to post at 3:23. At post 1½ minutes. Start good from gate.

DISPATCHER, hustled to the lead at the start, continued with good speed and easily held sway to the end. FLASHING THRU, a strong factor, closed resolutely under hard riding. CESARE gained gradually and finished strong.

FOURTH RACE—Five and a half furlongs. Purse 500. Net value to winner, $375, second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15.

Time, :23 1-5, :47 1-5, :59 2-5, 1:05 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Wise Eddie, $8.88 straight, $3.96 place, $3.26 show; Fitkin, $3.46 place, $2.64 show; Foxy Quiller, 3.74 show. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 3:50¼. At post 3 minutes.

WISE EDDIE gained steadily, wore down FOXY QUILLER in the stretch, drew out fast thereafter and closed under unnecessary punishment and won driving. FITKIN, outrun to the stretch, closed resolutely under hard riding. FOXY QUILLER raced into a long lead early, continued well to the final eighth were he weakened badly.

FIFTH RACE—Three-quarters of a mile. Purse, $700. Net value to winner, $525; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

*Mr. and Mrs. P. Kelley entry. Time, :23 1-5, :47 2-5, 1:13. Two dollar mutuels paid: Grayback [entry], 9.42 straight, $4.56 place, $2.62 show; Charming Sir, $6.86 place, $3.44 show; Pharatime, $2.72 show. Winner trained by P. Kelley.

GRAYBACK, racing as if much the best, raced restrained to the stretch, gained rapidly thereafter, and could have won by a much greater margin. CHARMING SIR displayed good speed setting the pace, but wakened in the final stretch. PHARATIME gave a good performance.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse $600. Net value to winner, $425; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Time, :24 3-5, :48 3-5, 1:13 4-5, 1:39 2-5, 1:44. Two dollar mutuels paid: Captain Danger, $7.22 straight, $3.50 place, $3.00 show; Port o' Play, $3.72 place, $2.73 show; Sgt. Hill, 2.84 show. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 4:49.

CAPTAIN DANGER, much the best, was rated off the early pace, moved to the leaders when ready, and won in hand. Port o' Play, allowed to drop back after a quarter, moved up fast when urged and offered strong contention for the winner. Sergeant Hill raced evenly in a good performance.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile. Purse $500. Net value to winner, $375; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15.

Time, :24, :48 1-5, 1:14 2-5, 1:40. Two dollar mutuels paid: Town Limit, $4.40 straight, $3.40 place, $2.60 show; Skibo, $6.76 place, $4.76 show; Leministre, $3.53 show. [No quinella on seventh race today]. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 5:20. At post 1 minute. Start good from gate. Won ridden out; second, third, driving.

TOWN LIMIT, taken under reserve for the early racing, went to the front when urged, continued under mild pressure, and held SKIBO safe in the drive. Latter, slow to get going, closed fast in the stretch and finished gamely.

W. C. PROCTER, SOAP FIRM HEAD, TAKEN BY DEATH

Bronchial Pneumonia Is Fatal at 72.

Cincinnati, O., May 2.—[Special.]—Col. William Cooper Procter, 72 year old chairman of the board of directors of the Procter and Gamble company, soap manufacturers, succumbed yesterday morning to bronchial pneumonia. His death occurred after he had suffered a relapse yesterday and following a slight rally Monday.

He had returned here from New York last Friday after he had contracted what he had believed to be a slight cold.

Third Procter to Head Firm.

Col. Procter was the third member of his family to head the Procter and Gamble company. His death followed by two years that of James N. Gamble, who with Col. Procter, controled and conducted the huge soap business founded by the grandfathers of the two men.

Upon his graduation from Princeton Col. Procter entered the family industry. It was not long before he established many industrial innovations in dealing with employés and it was under his leadership that the Saturday half holiday later became practically universal. He had granted his employés this previously undreamed of privilege as early as 1885. Other concessions were granted to his employés, the most recent being the guarantee of at least 48 weeks of work per year.

Share in Profits.

Procter & Gamble employés were among the first to benefit by a profit sharing plan. Approximately a million dollars is distributed yearly to the employé-stockholders who are represented on the board of directors.

All of Col. Procter's interests were not confined to his business. His philanthropies, never widely publicized, are said to have totaled millions.

Col. Procter was chairman of the national committee organized in 1928 by Herbert Hoover, then secretary of commerce, to create greater efficiency in social service and community chest work. He managed the campaign in 1920 of the late Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood for the Republican presidential nomination. His military title was earned when he was commander of the First Regiment infantry in the Ohio National Guard. He served as a member of the Council of National Defense in 1917-18.

Col. Procter died childless and his death ends the control of the Procter and Gamble families over the business. Neither man left male heirs.

Funeral services will be held Friday.

MRS. LIVINGSTON, WRITER, LEAPS 9 STORIES; DIES

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—Mrs. Charlotte Livingston, 35 year old writer, ended her life today by leaping from a bathroom window on the ninth floor of Harbor hospital, where she was a patient.

Mrs. Livingston was divorced from Louis Livingston in 1924. She was the former Charlotte Atlee Black, daughter of the Irving Cunard Blacks of Winnetka, Ill. The Livingstons were married in July, 1918.

In November, 1924, when Mrs. Adelaid Guidet Buckley Spencer, prominent New York society woman, sued Gary Spencer for divorce Mrs. Livingston was drawn into the suit. Mrs. Spencer charged that her husband had admitted being in love with the beautiful former Winnetka girl.

PASSENGER, 80, FATALLY HURT GETTING OFF BUS

Stepping off a bus before it had come to a stop, Nicholas Becker, 80 years old, 7000 Lincoln avenue, Tessville, was fatally injured last night. The accident occurred in front of his home. He was taken to St. Francis hospital, Evanston, and died a few hours later.

Clyde Williams, 30 years old, a private from Fort Sheridan, died in the Evanston hospital yesterday, the second fatality from a head-on collision between two automobiles at Skokie boulevard and Wilmette avenue, Wilmette, early Tuesday morning.

The crash killed Policeman Elmer E. Higley, juvenile and probation officer for the Evanston police department and a former director of that city's safety bureau, and seriously injured another man and woman. The others are Mrs. Helen Boughton, 30 years old, 802 Ingleside place, Evanston, and Williams' companion, Private Carl Holmes, 35 years old, also from Fort Sheridan. They are still in the Evanston hospital.

The deaths of Williams and Becker increased the toll of Cook county motor deaths since Jan. 1 to 397.

A dispatch last night from Chattanooga, Tenn., stated that Harry W. Deal, 4438 Woodlawn avenue, and his wife were severely injured in an automobile accident near Chattanooga yesterday afternoon. Deal is chief steward on the lake steamship South America.

CORNELL, YALE LEFT BEQUESTS IN SHEPARD WILL

Oswego, N. Y., May 2.—(AP)—Cornell and Yale universities, the Northfield, Mass., school, churches, and church organizations share with relatives the estate of C. Sidney Shepard, capitalist, of New York and New Haven [N. Y.] under his will, filed today.

The bequests include: Cornell, $250,000; Yale, $100,000; Northfield school at East Northfield, Mass., $100,000; American Sunday School union, $50,000.

To Florence Wells of Traverse City, Mich., and Lillian Wells of Oak Park, Ill., his cousins, $450,000 each. Seven other cousins receive amounts in the neighborhood of $50,000 each.

The will stipulates that the residue shall go to the mission boards of the Presbyterian church of the United States.

A. P. JOHNSON'S WIDOW IS DEAD IN KENILWORTH

Mrs. Martha Johnson, 86 years old, widow of A. P. Johnson, founder of the Johnson Chair company, died yesterday at her home at 228 Raleigh road, Kenilworth. She had been ill for some time.

She was born in Cambridge, Wis., and at the age of 6 migrated with her parents in a covered wagon to Iowa, where they settled. She came to Chicago following the civil war. She heard many of the Lincoln-Douglas debates and delighted in recalling them in later years. In 1871 her husband was an alderman from the Fourteenth ward.

Surviving her are three sons—Joseph, Arthur, and Olaf—and two sisters—Mrs. Robert J. Fischer and Mrs. Anna Hovling—all of Chicago. Funeral services will be held Friday at the Wicker Park Lutheran church.

Hold Military Rites for Horatio Seymour

Horatio Winslow Seymour, 43 years old, a great, great grandson of the man bearing the same name, who was the Democratic nominee for President of the United States in 1868, will be buried with military honors today following funeral services in St. Bernardine's church, Forest Park.

Mr. Seymour, who died from pneumonia on April 29, was born in Chicago in 1891. He enlisted in the United States navy in 1916 and served four years, crossing the Atlantic ocean sixteen times and retiring as a gunner's mate. He married Anna Hudson of New York City in 1920.

Mr. Seymour was the son of Charles Seymour, assistant editor of the old Chicago Daily Chronicle and the nephew of another Horatio Winslow Seymour, who was editor of the Chronicle and later the New York Evening World. Surviving Mr. Seymour are his widow, Anna, and his mother, a resident of Oak Park.

'ABRAHAM' IN CAST OF 'GREEN PASTURES' DIES IN EAST AT 75

New York, May 2.—(AP)—Jesse A. Shipp, the "Abraham" of "The Green Pastures," is dead at a hospital in Jamaica, Queens. He was 75 years old.

The actor, playwright, and producer of minstrel shows, was one of "the delegation" in "The Green Pastures" who called on "De Lawd" in the scene which took place in "De Lawd's office" in heaven.

In a long robe and with a flowing white beard, he went with "Moses" and "Jacob" and several others to tell "De Lawd" about the troubles of the world.

Born in Cincinnati, Shipp operated a vegetable scow in the Ohio river in his 'teens. Coming to New York, he entered the show business. He became a producer during the days of Bert Williams and George Walker, minstrels.

RULER OF YEMEN, ARABIAN STATE, REPORTED DEAD

JERUSALEM, May 2.—(AP)—A report reaching here today said the Imam Yahia of Yemen, ruler of a state in Arabia recently at war with Ibn Saud, king of Hedjaz and Nejd, is dead. Death came in his capital, Sana, where a recent revolt occurred, the report said. It was rumored that Hodeida, Yemen's large and flourishing seaport on the Red sea, was prepared to surrender to Ibn Saud.

Yemen for years has been at war with tribes of neighboring areas, with much of the fighting concentrated along the Hedjaz border.

Yahia is said to have made a practice of holding one child of every chief under the threat of putting it to death if the chief rebelled. He was reported to have had a fortune mounting into millions and a well trained army of 10,000 men.

Yemen, a state of approximately the size of Nebraska, is in southwest Arabia, and one of the most fertile sections of the country. The Imam Yahia ruled it for thirty years.

FAMILY TO SHARE $150,000 ESTATE OF MAGERSTADT

The late Ernest J. Magerstadt, former sherif of Cook county and for many years a leading Republican in Chicago, left an estate estimated at $150,000, it was revealed yesterday when his will was admitted to probate before Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge John F. O'Connell. Under the terms of the will, the estate is left to the widow, Mrs. Hattie Magerstadt; a son, Earl G. Magerstadt, and a daughter, Madeline Magerstadt.

Mr. Magerstadt died April 26 in his home at 4930 Greenwood avenue after an illness of nearly four months. He was 69 years old. His political career spanned the years from 1892 to 1911, when he retired from public life to devote his time to the Railway Utility company, of which he was president.

The will of Mrs. Amy C. Moses, leaving an estate estimated at $100,000 to her husband, Julius, former director of B. Kuppenheimer company, was admitted to probate.

Four other wills were admitted to probate and filed with Clerk Mitchell C. Robin. The wills are those of:

WILLIAM M. NOELLE, died April 5. Estate, $7,000, to son, sister, sister-in-law, and niece. William L Noelle, son, executor.

ANNA PILIK, died Jan. 2. Estate, $5,000, to son, four daughters, and two granddaughters. Juliette Whittaker, daughter, executrix.

CHARLES BALATY, died Feb. 17. Estate, $12,000, to son, sister, and brother-in-law. Lawndale National bank, executor.

HELEN R. ADAIR, died Dec. 3, 1933. Estate, $2,500, to son, daughter, and daughter-in-law. Roy W. Peet, executor.

FRANK ABLER, 39, HERO OF L'AIGLON HOLDUP, IS DEAD

Frank Abler, 39 years old, 648 Wellington avenue, head waiter at the Restaurant L'Aiglon, died yesterday at the Grant hospital. He underwent an operation a week ago for an injury sustained while hunting.

Abler on April 12, 1931, distinguished himself in a battle with five robbers who entered the restaurant and attempted to hold up the employés and 200 guests. The headwaiter seized a repeating shotgun and used it with such good effect that two of the bandits, James E. Hirsch and Charles E. Nelson, were killed. The others fled.

Before joining the L'Aiglon force nine years ago Abler had worked at the Drake and Blackstone hotels. During the war he was a soldier in the German army. Funeral services will be held at 929 Belmont avenue at 10 a. m. Saturday.

Would You Pay $2.00 to Lose 50 Pounds of Fat?
Mrs. J. A. May of Pittsboro, N. C., writes: "I took Kruschen for reducing for 3 months and lost 50 lbs. It's the easiest and healthiest way. I weighed 180 and now weigh only 130. I feel better—look better than ever before."
Don't let burdensome fat make you inactive, pepless and unattractive—you, too, could be a lovely, slender, animated creature if you'd only take off that excess fat with a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts first thing every morning in a glass of hot water.
Kruschen is SAFE—that's why so many physicians prescribe it—it's actually a health treatment which establishes proper and normal body functioning, thus getting rid of ugly fat without leaving skin sagging or wrinkled — it brings new energy, clearer skin and freedom from fatigue. A jar lasts 4 weeks and costs but little at any drug store the world over. You must be satisfied with results or money back.

CHAS. J. ANDERSON FUNERAL RITES TO BE TOMORROW

Funeral ceremonies for Charles J. Anderson, teaming contractor and long time resident of the near north side, who died Tuesday evening at the Alexian Brothers' hospital, will be held at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning from a chapel at 245 West North avenue to the Immaculate Conception church. Mr. Anderson had been seriously ill for several months. He was in his 69th year.

Mr. Anderson is survived by his brother, Sergt. John W. Anderson, and a sister, Mrs. James Riffle. He had never married. For many years Mr. Anderson occupied a flat on Schiller street.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 2.—Heavy buying of United States government bonds, with resultant gains of 1-32d to 13-32ds point, featured an otherwise irregularly lower listed bond market today.

The major gain in the government list accrued to the treasury 4s, whereas heaviest dealings appeared in the treasury 3¼s, due 1946, which moved up 5-32ds point. The Federal Farm Mortgage corporation 3¼s and the Home Owners' Loan corporation 4s, enjoying their second day of trading on the Stock exchange, were up 7-32ds and 3-32ds point respectively.

Domestic Issues Sag.

The principal losses in the domestic corporation group ranged from 1 to more than 4 points, with the more speculative issues showing the greatest setbacks. High grade railroad bonds displayed considerable steadiness throughout the day.

Among representative issues to register gains were Union Pacific refunding 5s, Virginian 5s of 1962, Pennsylvania 5s of 1964, Philadelphia Electric 4s, Norfolk and Western 4s of 1944, Louisville Gas 5s, Consolidated Gas 5s and 5½s, Duquesne Light 4s, and Cincinnati Gas 4s.

Foreign Loans Easier.

Foreign loans were a shade lower for the day. German issues steadied, some showing fractional gains under the leadership of government loans. French government, United Kingdom, and most of the Scandinavian issues showed fractional variations in prices. Dutch East Indies loans were down 1 to 1¼ points. Latin-American bonds closed irregular.

Continental Assurance Company.

Investors' Guide: I am contemplating taking out a policy with Continental Assurance company of Chicago. I would appreciate any information you could give me.—B. G.

Answer: Continental Assurance company, Chicago, was established in 1911. It is a stock company, issuing nonparticipating life insurance policies at guaranteed rates only.

During the last three years the trend of the company's insurance in force has been contrary to the general experience of life insurance companies. Substantial increases have been made. At the close of 1933 policies outstanding had a face value of $164,688,000, the highest figure in the history of the company, against $161,-[illegible]000 the year before and $151,930,000 at the close of 1931.

Income continued well in excess of disbursements. For 1933 income was $[illegible],000 and disbursements were $3,-[illegible]00.

Admitted assets at the close of 1933 totaled $18,683,000. Real estate was $[illegible],000, up $450,000 for the year; mortgages were $4,486,000; bonds [book value], $5,465,000; preferred and guaranteed stocks [book value], $1,321,000; cash, $1,059,000, and policy loans $3,-[illegible].

Only five bond issues, with a total par value of $190,000, were in default. Of this total, one issue with a par value of $45,000, was paying full interest. There was set up as a liability a contingency reserve fund of $250,-000, which was more than sufficient to write down to market quotations all bonds in default and all stocks owned. Excluding this contingency reserve, capital and surplus over all liabilities amounted to $3,254,000.

Belgian Francs.

Investors' Guide: My wife has 3,827 Belgian francs on deposit in a Belgian bank. In the inclosed letter a New York bank says that they are only worth 4.69 cents each, yet the quoted price in your foreign exchange tables is higher. Will you please explain?—P. G.

Answer: Belgian francs are currently quoted at about 23½ cents. Obviously the quotation given you by the New York bank was in error. For 3,827 Belgian francs your wife should receive approximately $905.17 gross, less a commission of one-eighth of one per cent, or $904.03 net.

Listing Not a Guaranty.

Investors' Guide: Are stocks and bonds allowed to be sold on stock exchanges when the companies are in bad condition?—C. W. G.

Answer: Yes. Stock exchanges are primarily a market place for stocks and bonds to be bought and sold. Securities of companies in good condition or bad condition can be bought and sold on an exchange, provided they are listed.

T. PHILIP SWIFT BUYS ESTATE OF ROBERT LAMONT

Consists of 102 Acres in Lake Forest.

BY AL CHASE.

T. Philip Swift, nephew of Louis F. Swift, packer, and a vice president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, yesterday purchased the 102 acre Lake Forest estate of Robert P. Lamont, secretary of commerce under President Hoover. The price was not disclosed, but it is understood to have been about $150,000. Revenue stamps on the deed indicated an equity price of $85,000. In addition two mortgages were assumed by the buyer. John Griffith, Inc., of Lake Forest, was the only broker.

The property is at the northwest intersection of South Ridge and Everett roads and is improved with a twenty room fireproof brick and stone residence designed by the late Howard Shaw of Lake Forest, and erected about ten years ago. It is said that more than half a million dollars was invested in the land and buildings by Mr. Lamont and it is considered one of the most attractive estates on the north shore.

Several Smaller Buildings.

In addition to the residence there are stables, a large garage, chauffeur's and gardener's cottages, greenhouses, an open air concrete swimming pool and tennis courts. About thirty acres of the estate are landscaped. The west part of the estate is heavily wooded. More than half of the property is under farm cultivation.

Mr. and Mrs. Swift and their three children now live at 1001 East Spring lane, Lake Forest, near the lake, in a fourteen room residence occupying a three acre site. Mr. Swift said he probably would not move to his new home until late in the summer. He does not contemplate making alterations or additions.

Lamont in New York.

Mr. Lamont, who is now living in New York, spent many years in Lake Forest. He formerly was president of the American Steel Foundries company and resigned to accept a position on Hoover's cabinet. He then moved to Washington. In 1932 he retired as secretary of commerce and Washington dispatches at that time said he could no longer make the sacrifices necessary to remain in public life.

He later was made president of the American Iron and Steel institute and moved from Washington to New York.

Just west of the Lamont estate, on Everette road, Leslie Wheeler of the Interlake Iron corporation and the By-Products Coke company, is erecting a $122,000 fireproof English type residence.

FOREIGN BUYING CARRIES COTTON SHARPLY UPWARD

Heavy buying of cotton futures by the United Kingdom, the continent and Japan, with a letup in the liquidation, carried prices up sharply yesterday despite the weakness in stocks.

A private report suggested that 29,751,000 acres cotton would be planted this year, against 40,949,000 acres in 1933.

Futures closed yesterday about the top. Chicago showed net gains of .11 to .19 cents, and other markets .16 to .26 cents, the latter equal to $1.30 per bale, with New York leading. Spot cotton was .10 to .25 cents higher. New York and New Orleans was 11c and Galveston and Houston 11.05 cents per pound. Prices:

LARD DIPS, THEN RALLIES TO FINISH UNCHANGED

Trade in provisions was relatively slow yesterday. While there was a small dip in lard early, it was quickly canceled and the close was unchanged from Tuesday. Bellies were steady to 7½ cents higher, the latter on new May.

Deliveries on May contracts aggregated 700,000 pounds of lard and 1,200,000 pounds of bellies.

Cash demand was only fair. Cash lard prices were steady with regular at $5.72½; loose, $5.42½, and leaf, $5.37½. Cash bellies were $7.75, or the same as the previous day. Prices:

BUTTER AND EGG FUTURES GAIN BUT POTATOES DROP

Favorable news reports aided butter and egg futures in the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. November butter gained ¼c and eggs ⅛@¼c. Potatoes dropped 13 points.

Egg receipts were sharply under last year and the four markets stored 30,000 cases less than last year.

The Land o' Lakes reported butter production 13 per cent less than last year, and the four markets cut the surplus 372,000 pounds.

May potatoes dropped back with the cash market, which fell 15 cents.

Sales: Butter, 41 cars; eggs, 86 cars; potatoes, 10 cars. Deliveries: Eggs, 2 cars; potatoes, 6 cars. Prices:

Paper and Envelops for the U. S. Government Printing Office.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received until 10 a. m., May 21, 1934, in the room of the Joint Committee on Printing, in the Capitol, Washington, D. C., for furnishing the paper for the public printing and binding, and blank paper and plain envelops for the use of the Government departments and establishments in the District of Columbia, for the term of 6 months or 1 year, beginning July 1, 1934, deliveries to be f. o. b. Washington, D. C. The proposals will be opened in the presence of and the award of contracts made by the Joint Committee on Printing to the lowest and best bidders for the interest of the Government whose bids are in conformity with the requirements of the proposal. The Committee reserves the right to reject any or all bids, or to accept any bid or any part and reject the other part, if, in its opinion, such action would be in the interest of the Government.

Blank proposals containing the instructions, schedule, and specifications, accompanied by standard samples, may be obtained by addressing George H. Carter, Public Printer, Washington, D. C.

Contracts will be entered into for supplying the quantities required, whether more or less than the estimates, as provided in paragraph 15 of the proposal for paper and paragraph 13 of the proposal for envelops.

The approximate estimated quantities for 1 year [or one half quantity for 6 months] set forth in detail in the schedule comprise:

OUTPUT OF PIG IRON UP 12 PCT. DURING APRIL

Steel Production Has Two Point Rise.

Accompanying the recent expansion in steel production, which last week made a further gain of 2 points to 58 per cent of capacity, within a point of the highest rate attained last year, pig iron production showed an increase of 12 per cent last month over that of March to the best rate since August, reports Iron Age. The aggregate output of pig iron in April was 1,754,647 tons, against 1,619,534 in March, and the daily average was 58,488, against 52,243.

Steel works operations last week improved or held steady in all chief centers except Cleveland, where the rate fell from 69 to 67 per cent of capacity. At Chicago output rose 2 to 61, Pittsburgh 2 to 47, Philadelphia 1 to 43, 2 to 62 in the valleys, 8 to 70 at Buffalo, and 7 to 79 in the Wheeling district. Southern plants held their own at 58, and Detroit at 100.

Labor Troubles Lessened.

The Fisher Body corporation's plant at Cleveland, whose shutdown because of a strike suspended steel shipments for a time, has reopened, and labor disturbances seem to have subsided somewhat elsewhere, according to the journal. Further expansion in steel output is expected.

"The assumption that a large part of recent contract coverage represents speculative tonnage and that output will necessarily suffer a sharp drop after the completion of this quarter may not be entirely justified," comments Iron Age. "Specifications to date have been large, but they have not come up to expectations."

The journal predicts that if consumers do not increase their releases against contracts in the next two weeks, mills will be so congested with specifications in the remainder of the quarter that they will not be able to turn out all tonnage under contract by June 1. However, it is possible that buyers will not order out the tonnage for which they contracted.

Deliver Rail Orders Later.

Deliveries of a good part of the railroad steel which has recently been ordered will not be made until July or August, and those of structural steel will run through the summer.

Iron Age reports that the second largest volume of new structural steel projects for this year was attained last week at 27,360 tons. Awards for the week amounted to 22,350 tons, against 21,420 in the preceding week.

Output of automobiles, which is estimated to have totaled 400,000 units last month, will probably reach at least 375,000 this month. Manufacturers, however, "are commencing to be disturbed by indications that their price boosts have retarded sales."

The scrap composite fell from $12.42 to $12.17 a ton last week. The pig iron rose from $17.57 to $17.90 a ton. The index of finished steel remained at 2.222 cents a pound.

POWER OUTPUT SAGS

A production loss of more than 4 million kilowatt hours, or about 2 tenths of one per cent, was reported by the American electric light and power industry last week. However, approximately the same margin over power output of the corresponding week of 1933 was maintained.

While national production slipped a little, that in the Chicago district expanded, reversing the trend in recent weeks.

Electricity production in the United States for the week ended April 28, according to the Edison Electric institute, amounted to 1,668,564,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 1,672,765,000 in the preceding period. The margin over the total in the like week of 1933 was 16.8 per cent, against 16.9 in the preceding week.

Increase in Chicago.

For the Chicago district the output of electric energy increased to 96,147,000 kilowatt hours from 95,701,000 in the week ended April 21.

The local expansion, according to the Commonwealth Edison company's announcement, was attributable to "continued industrial activity and cooler weather.

Following are the output in kilowatt hours and percentage comparisons for the Chicago district:

Week ended.	1934.	1933.	Pct. inc.
April 28	96,147,000	85,031,000	13.1
April 21	97,781,000	87,054,000	9.9
April 14	96,801,000	87,684,000	10.4

These Depositors Never Heard of McLeod Bill

Washington, D. C., May 2.—(AP)—Some depositors in closed banks apparently are in no hurry to get their money. J. F. T. O'Connor, controler of the currency, issued a unique appeal today for them to collect an estimated $4,000,000 awaiting. O'Connor said receivers of 848 closed banks had reported to him they had dividend checks more than 60 days old totaling $3,037,526.

House Rows on Authorship of Stock Bill

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—When general debate on the Fletcher-Rayburn stock exchange regulation bill, now under consideration in the house, concluded late this afternoon and the five minute rule permitting amendments from the floor became the order, the house, instead of proceeding with the reading of the bill, went into a huddle and wrangled for an hour as to the real authorship of the measure.

The trouble started when Representative Britten of Illinois charged that the original bill was written by junior members of the brain trust while the redraft now pending before the house was, he charged, practically written by Benjamin Cohen of the legal staf of the department of the interior who, according to Britten, is an important unit of the "brain trust" and a resident of what he calls "the scarlet fever house" in Georgetown.

Bill Not Strongly Opposed.

The seven hours of general debate disclosed that the opposition to the bill is negligible and that when the vote on passage is ordered it will command a majority of both sides of the aile. It may be passed without a roll call.

The hour's show that climaxed today's proceedings followed Britten's reference to the fact that Cohen was seated next to Representative Rayburn, chairman of the committee on interstate commerce, acting as an adviser at Rayburn's request. Britten had used four of his five minutes talking about "Frankfurter's hot dogs," the "little red house in Georgetown," another of his names for the residence occupied by Prof. Felix Frankfurter, Cohen, and a few other junior officials of the government, and the part he says these "junior trusters" had in the writing of the bill.

Cohen Leaves Chamber.

In the midst of his remarks Britten turned to the Democratic side and wanted to know why Cohen was seated next to Rayburn. Cohen appeared much embarrassed and after a moment's talk with Rayburn left the chamber. But his leaving failed to quiet the storm. Britten said the original bill was a "monstrosity" and he followed this with the charge that Cohen sat in all executive sessions and practically directed the rewriting of the bill.

Representative Cooper of Ohio, ranking Republican member of the committee, took the floor at this juncture to say that the redraft was in every line the work of Rayburn and the members of the committee.

BRITAIN RAISES TARIF AGAIN ON U. S. TYPEWRITERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 2.—The export of American typewriters to Great Britain is hard hit as a result of an increase in tarifs on imported foreign typewriters, announced tonight by the British treasury.

At present the machines are subjected to a duty of 20 per cent of their value, but under the new arrangement, effective Friday, a specified sum varying from $6.25 to $17.50, or alternately 20 per cent of the value, whichever is the greater, will be payable.

According to A. Pateman, general manager of the Imperial Typewriter Co., Ltd., of Leicester, the new scale will have the effect of increasing by $5 each existing duty on the most important class of new American machines.

APRIL SALES OF NEW AUTOS IN COOK COUNTY 70% OVER LAST YEAR

Sales of new automobiles in Cook county last month ran far ahead both of March and of April last year, according to figures received yesterday on registrations.

The lower priced units showed the largest gains over the year ago figures but the higher price cars also showed improvement. Total sales were 7,702 in the county last month against 4,931 in the preceding month and 4,533 in April 1933 according to R. L. Polk & Co. figures on registrations. The respective gains were 57% and 70%.

Ford held the lead in sales with Chevrolet a close second. Plymouth ranked third and Dodge fourth. The ranking among the leaders is the same as a year ago. The ranking among the other companies has shifted somewhat due in many instances to production problems.

Cook county registrations according to companies last month with year ago comparisons follow:

NONBLUE EAGLE COPPER ORDERED FROM MARKET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 2.—Following organization of the copper code authority yesterday the authority today made its first important ruling when it held that non-Blue Eagle copper, or metal which has not been produced under code specifications, shall be withdrawn from the market until May 22.

Some selling agencies had been quoting non-Blue Eagle copper at 8.20 cents a pound, delivered Connecticut valley, compared with a quotation of 8½ cents for Blue Eagle copper, or copper which has been stamped to certify that it has been produced under code specifications. Non-Blue Eagle copper was quoted at a discount because metal products fabricated out of it are outlawed from United States government contracts.

The copper market was steady but quiet today. Domestic copper was unchanged at 8½ cents a pound. Copper for export sold for price ranging from 8.22 to 8.27 cents.

DOLLAR STEADY AGAINST FRANC; POUND HIGHER

New York, May 2.—The dollar held steady against the French franc today at 59.09 cents, or three points above parity. It was lower against the pound which closed at $5.12¼, a rise of 1¾ cents. Other principal currencies showed little change.

Due to increased commercial demand, the dollar strengthened in London, the pound closing there 1⅞ cents higher at $5.11¼. In Paris the dollar closed at an advance, the franc losing 3½ centimes at an equivalent of 6.622 cents.

No receipts of monetary gold were reported here by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, but the bank received word of the arrival at San Francisco of $787,000 gold from China.

The price of gold in the London open market advanced 4 pence to 136 shillings 3½ pence [$34.81] a fine ounce at which figure gold valued at £798,000 [$4,074,785] was purchased.

Burlington's Profits Rise as Revenues Fall

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Despite a decrease of $1,046,654 in operating revenues from the preceding year, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad finished 1933 with a net income of $5,598,023, as compared with $1,502,815 in 1932, according to the annual report which President Ralph Budd presented at the annual stockholders' meeting yesterday. This increase was largely accounted for through a saving of $4,156,105 in operating expenses.

Mr. Budd reported an improved outlook for 1934. The road earned a little more than $1,000,000, or 60 cents a share, in the first quarter of this year, he said, while for the first quarter of 1933 the road had an operating deficit of a little over $1,500,000. All directors of the road whose terms expired were reëlected yesterday.

Total Revenue $78,496,975.

Total operating revenues of the Burlington for 1933 stood at $78,496,975 compared with $79,543,629 in 1932. Operating expenses for 1933 totaled $54,361,598 compared with $58,517,603 in the preceding year. Net operating income, before fixed charges, was $13,491,225 compared with $9,592,497 in 1932.

Mr. Budd's report emphasized the part which the government's aid to agriculture is playing in the section of the country through which the Burlington operates. Of the $131,076,487 which had actually been paid by the end of 1931 to wheat, cotton and tobacco farmers of the United States, $58,274,478 was paid in states in the road's territory.

In the 12 states served by the Burlington system wheat farmers will receive 55 per cent of the $102,200,000 wheat benefit payments. Producers in the territory were paid about $23,023,759 for sows and hogs under the government's hog program.

Poor Crop Year.

Apart from the reduction programs 1933 proved to be one of the poorest crop years in many seasons, with the corn yield in Burlington states 25 per cent below that of 1932, wheat production off 42 per cent, and potato production down 23 per cent, he said. However, the beet sugar yield was 32 per cent greater than in the preceding year.

The continuance of the general business depression and the reduction of fares resulted in a decline of 8.06 per cent in passenger revenues. Mr. Budd explained that the reduction would have been greater were it not for the stimulation to travel caused by A Century of Progress.

The balance sheet of the road disclosed current assets at the end of 1933 of $25,344,358 compared with $22,776,158 at the end of 1932. Current liabilities stood at $8,688,243 compared with $8,952,048.

SLATE O'BRIEN AGAIN TO HEAD EXCHANGE HERE

Michael J. O'Brien, resident partner of Paine, Webber & Co., will head the Chicago Stock exchange another year if the selections of the nominating committee are approved at the annual election June 4.

The nominating committee announced yesterday that Mr. O'Brien had been picked to succeed himself as president and that Paul B. Skinner has been renominated for treasurer of the exchange.

Ten nominees for the governing committee were also announced. The ten include three new names: Richard W. Phillips, Joseph A. Rushton, and Edwin T. Wood. Other governors whose terms expire were renominated. Walter S. Brewster was named chairman of the nominating committee for 1935.

Lumbermen's Mutual Raises Policy Dividends

The Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company announces an increase of 23.4 per cent in its scale of dividend distributions on compensation policies, compared with last year. The action was taken in recognition of the improved compensation experience resulting from increased pay rolls and higher individual wages. The company enjoyed in the first quarter of 1934 a net gain of 15.6 per cent in premium income over a year ago.

SENATE FORCED TO TAKE ACTION ON SILVER BILL

Bloc Wins Point by Surprise Move.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2. — As President Roosevelt today launched a new attempt to win over the militant silver inflationists in congress, the silver bloc won a majority victory by forcing the senate to begin immediate consideration of a radical silver bill.

The silver question was dropped directly into the lap of the senate when Senator Elmer Thomas [Dem., Okla.], leader of the inflationists, offered the entire silver program as an amendment to a bill which was then pending on the floor of the senate to authorize government loans to industry. The senate must now vote on the silver program or drop the industrial loan program endorsed by the President.

Calls Parley Saturday.

As the inflationists were thus scoring a victory which threatens to upset his monetary program, President Roosevelt was preparing once more to try to win them over. Calling Senator Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.], one of the silver leaders, to the White House, the President invited him to return Saturday morning with all other silver advocates for another discussion of the problem.

President Roosevelt is still adamant against any bill compelling him to embark upon large scale silver purchases or making any other action on silver mandatory, Senator Pittman said after talking to the chief executive.

Injection of the silver program into the senate routine today had been feared by administration leaders. Shortly after Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] had brought up the administration bill providing for loans to industry by the federal reserve banks Senator Thomas arose to suggest an amendment to the Glass bill.

Move Speeds Up Action.

Over the bitter complaints of Senator Glass, Senator Thomas thereupon offered as an amendment to the Glass bill the entire silver program as embodied in the Dies bill. The Dies bill was not scheduled for early action, and Senator Thomas' move saved the silver program from being smothered.

After Senator Thomas had indulged in a long defense of the silver bill, the senate recessed, taking no action. The question will come up again tomorrow.

Bank Buying Silver.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 2.—Heavy purchasing of silver for spot or nearby delivery in the open market here in the last few days is reported in brokerage circles to be for the account of a leading banking institution in New York, also described as a seller of sterling. Trade reports say 20,000,000 ounces of metal have been accumulated from this quarter, but confirmation as to the source of the buying was lacking.

Two main theories were advanced. Inasmuch as the institution heretofore has acted in this market in behalf of the British exchange equalization fund, it was suggested that the buying might represent accumulation of silver for a "token" payment on account of Great Britain's war debt due on June 15.

The second hypothesis was that some federal agency was purchasing silver, but the financial district was unable to ascribe a reason for such activity.

Government's Buying of Own Bonds Obscures State of Credit

BY HOWARD WOOD.

How good is the credit of the federal government?

According to the government bond quotations it is so good that investors are glad to buy long term government securities yielding only 3 per cent.

Washington dispatches disclose, however, that the treasury has been indulging in some high powered "rigging" of the market. Since early in January the treasury has spent approximately 400 million dollars maintaining the market for its own securities.

First postal savings funds were invested in government bonds, then the treasury's sinking fund was used up in this manner. The Federal Deposit Insurance corporation turned over 339 million dollars to the treasury and this quickly went into the hopper. Now, according to news dispatches from Washington, the treasury has dipped into the 2 billion dollar stabilization fund for cash to hold up the market for its bonds.

It is estimated that if the treasury continues to use funds for its rigging operations at the same rate in the future as in the last few months the two billion dollar stabilization fund will be exhausted in 18 months.

The two billion dollar fund represents the profits made by the treasury when it commandeered the reserve banks' gold, increased its value by fiat, and kept the change. When the fund was established the public was encouraged to believe that it was to be used principally for stabilizing the dollar in foreign exchange, as the British equalization fund had been employed. Not much was said about the other use authorized—the rigging of the market for government bonds.

As long as the treasury continues to pour millions weekly into the market to hold up its own bonds there will be no true barometer of the condition of government credit and the money market will be entirely artificial.

* *

The Home Owners' Loan corporation will shortly have outstanding two issues of bonds paying different rates of interest. Those mortgagees who accepted HOLC bonds in the past got 4 per cent bonds, because the federal government was guaranteeing interest only. With the signing by the President of the bill guaranteeing principal as well as interest of HOLC bonds such bonds have become to all intents and purposes government bonds. Future issues will bear only 3 per cent interest.

In view of its present ability to borrow at 3 per cent it is probable that the HOLC will call its outstanding 4 per cent bonds for retirement at an early date. The financial community would not be surprised if a call were issued this month.

The outstanding 4s are callable on any interest date upon advance notice of not more than 60 days nor less than 30 days. A call announcement, therefore, could be issued at any time between now and the first of June. Holders of the 4 per cent bonds cannot be forced to trade them for 3s, but the 4s can be called for cash and holders given the option of swapping them for 3s.

* *

Code or no code, the trend toward metered service among banks seems to be growing. There is a growing realization among bankers, even in small towns, that they cannot provide customers with a lot of service without charging fees to cover their expenses.

Most of the big banks already approximate something of the sort. They see to it that an account is profitable or find a way to ease it out of the bank. The smaller banks, especially in country towns, have hesitated to charge fees.

In the days when they could lend out 85 per cent of their deposits at interest rates of 6 to 8 per cent they could afford to lose money on minor service items. Now, however, the public is demanding and getting a different kind of bank. Any institution maintaining only 15 per cent cash reserves would lose depositors and interest rates are much lower.

How to keep operations in the black is now a major bank problem. One way to do it is to charge customers in proportion to the amount of service rendered. Another way is to reduce salaries. Both means are being presently employed.

AUTO, IRON, STEEL EXPORTS AT HIGH LEVEL IN MARCH

Washington, D. C., May 2.—(AP)—Conspicuous increases during March in exports of automobiles and iron and steel products were reported today by the commerce department. Automobile products shipments abroad exceeded those for any month since June, 1930, with a value of $21,185,961, compared with the last high of $22,790,355.

Iron and steel products reached the highest volume level since July, 1929. March shipments were 261,269 gross tons. Of that amount 173,165 tons were scrap, the largest monthly total ever recorded.

DIRECT LOANS BY RFC PLANNED FOR INDUSTRY

New Bill Provides $250,000,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—A plan for pumping still another quarter of a billion dollars of federal funds through the Reconstruction Finance corporation into private industry to tide it over the present capital famine was tentatively approved today by the senate banking and currency committee.

The new scheme would be supplementary to the Glass bill which would make about $280,000,000 available directly from the federal reserve banks. The new plan was worked out on the structure of the bill of Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, which was at first shelved in deference to Senator Glass' proposal.

The bill as drafted today in committee apparently has administration backing. Under its terms an aggregate of $250,000,000 of industrial and business loans might be made between its passage and Jan. 1, 1935, with no loan exceeding $1,000,000.

To Increase Employment.

The purpose of this new effort on the part of the government would be solely "for the purpose of maintaining and increasing the employment of labor," and to carry out that objective, loans would be made to solvent industrial and commercial enterprises established prior to Jan. 1, 1934.

The loans would have to be adequately secured, with maturities not exceeding five years, and made "only when deemed to offer reasonable assurance of continued or increased employment of labor." The first requisite for such loan would be that adequate credit facilities are not available to the applicants "at the prevailing bank rate for the character of loan applied for."

The committee directed Chairman Fletcher to introduce the revised bill in the senate. Following its introduction this afternoon it was referred back to the banking committee which will consider it formally next Monday.

Could Use $622,000,000.

Gov. Eugene Black of the federal reserve board told the house banking committee today a nation-wide survey had shown smaller industries could use $622,000,000 of direct federal reserve loans. He said the board had sent questionnaires to 4,958 banks and 1,066 chambers of commerce asking three questions: How much working capital was needed by smaller industries, how many men could be kept on jobs because of such loans, and

STOCKS SLUMP UNDER FLOOD OF BEAR NEWS

Spiegel-May-Stern Break Spreads Over List.

New York, May 2.—Stocks ran into heavy selling late today and most departments broke to new lows for the movement. Net losses in the more active issues ran as high as eight points.

The upset had for its background a number of more or less bearish news developments. Among them was the announcement that the New York public service commission planned to cut phone rates in this state. The stock exchange investigation into dealings in Spiegel-May-Stern added its quota while midweek trade news was less favorable. Growing threats to market profits contained in the tax bills and the uncertain prospect for higher prices that is bound to rule so long as the worst obstacles of the NRA, the new capital strangulation act, and the heavy federal expenditures hold sway combined to make the buying side look less attractive.

Technical Position Puzzling.

Then there was the action of the market itself—and brokers agreed that this probably was the chief reason for the break—the much discussed technical rebound failing to develop after seven consecutive days of retrogression.

The selling movement started with a break of more than ten points in Spiegel-May-Stern, precipitated by word that the exchange's business conduct committee had sent out a questionnaire dealing with trading in the company's shares. Up to that time the market had shown some signs of trying to plow ahead. From the department store stock liquidation switched to American Telephone, which went tumbling more than 3 points, and finally in the last hour of trading spread in volume to the entire list.

Favorites Move Lower.

United States Steel, Chrysler, Consolidated Gas, and numerous other important issues sold to new lows for the year. Losses of 2 to more than 4 points were common among trading favorites.

Railroad shares turned sharply downward in group formation and New York Central, Southern Railway, Atchison, Norfolk and Western, Chicago and North Western, and Illinois Central sold off 1 to 2 points.

Steel shares were sold freely. Higher automobile sales prices are reported to be retarding sales and thus militating against prospects of the steel mills which depend so heavily on the automotive plants.

The oils were weak throughout the session. Gold mining issues did better than most other groups and the coppers held fairly firm.

Trading, dull in the earlier hours, picked up sharply on the decline and the ticker was distanced several minutes toward the close. The turnover ran to around 1,340,000 shares.

JOINT CONTROL OF CANADA'S TWO RAILROADS URGED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., May 2.—Joint administration of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National railways by a private company, was recommended here today by E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific, addressing the annual meeting of the company.

"After many years of study," declared Mr. Beatty, "I am of the opinion that unification for the purposes of administration offers the only adequate solution of Canada's railway problem. The railway structure of Canada is unsound, and in good times as well as in bad, involves economic waste of many millions of dollars yearly. It is idle to lay the blame to governments or to parliaments."

"The purpose of unification is to provide the owners of the National system with more money to satisfy their obligations than it is possible to secure if dual and competitive systems are maintained. Likewise the same economies will increase the revenues of your company. It has never been suggested that the Canadian Pacific should assume ownership of the National system—that will remain with the government of Canada as will the ownership of the Canadian Pacific remain with its present owners.

"In effect the suggestion is a partnership with a division on an agreed basis of the net earnings of the properties jointly operated. Private administration is recommended as that most likely to lessen or eliminate political influence and secure maximum efficiency."

Stock Exchange Refuses Comment on Spiegel Quiz

New York, May 2.—(AP)—The New York Stock exchange today declined to comment on a report that it was investigating recent transactions in the common stock of Spiegel-May-Stern company. The shares broke sharply, closing at $52.75 for a net loss of $8.25. It was reported that the exchange had asked certain member firms for a record of their transactions in the shares from April 2 to April 26, inclusive. The stock has risen this year from a low of $19 to a high of $67.50.

SENATE GETS NEW TARIF AND TRADE PACT BILL

Plan to Win Republican Support Offered.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—The administration's trade bargaining tarif bill with all its potential power to delay the adjournment of congress was reported out to the senate floor today by the senate finance committee.

What promises to be the longest debate of the session is scheduled to start as soon as the stock exchange bill, now in the house, has been disposed of. The tarif measure, giving the President power to write tarifs up or down 50 per cent and to make reciprocal trade treaties with foreign nations has already received house approval.

In one important respect the tarif measure emerged from the finance committee amended to conform—in part at least—to the demands of Republican critics and those representatives of American industry who have been fighting its passage.

Amendment Proposed.

Objections that the bill proposed to give the President exclusive power to amend tarif rates and make trade agreements without hearings or notice to affected industries were met to the extent of the following proposed amendment:

"Before any foreign trade agreement is concluded with any foreign government or instrumentality thereof and under the provisions of this act, public notice of the intention to negotiate an agreement with such government or instrumentality shall be given in order that any interested person may have an opportunity to present his views to the President or to such agency and under such rules and regulations as the President may designate, and before concluding such an agreement the President shall seek information and advice with respect thereto from the United States tarif commission, the departments of state, agriculture and commerce and from such other sources as he may deem appropriate."

Would Protect Cuba.

Other major amendments are designed to protect Cuba's right to special trade favors, and to permit the President to exercise his new powers with respect to trade agreements in existence at the end of the three year emergency limitation in the bill, but not to make agreements.

Though the criticisms of a few Republican senators have been met by the proposed amendment concerning hearings and notices of treaties, the great majority are still unshaken in their opposition. Nearly a score of amendments have already been presented and are lying on the table in wait for the bill's appearance. Among them is one requiring senate ratification of any treaties concluded by the President; another, by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] would prohibit tarif rates to be changed or treaties made to affect any commodities embraced under AAA regulations or NRA codes.

The Democratic leaders are aware that they are treading on the thin ice of sectional interest in bringing the tarif bill up. Their spokesmen have studiously refrained from revealing what specific commodities or articles might be included in future trade agreements. Republicans have sought vainly for details.

Market for United States Airplanes in Chile Revived

BY NORMAN INGREY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, May 2.—Chile's aviation market, the best in all South America in pre-crisis days, is being reopened after a three year shut down. And her first order, somewhat small but declared to be the forerunner of better and bigger business, is to be placed in the United States.

Charles Lucas, American technical expert of the national air line services, has been sent to the United States with a check for one million pesos [approximately $100,000] to purchase new engines and parts. He has already left on his buying mission.

The Tribune was informed at the aerial headquarters that the Lucas mission was of a most urgent character, as the civil branch of the national air line had been running on "momentum" and there was a danger that important sections of the 1,000 mile daily longitudinal service might break down unless equipment was renewed.

Larger Orders Expected.

It was anticipated that more orders would be given in the course of the present year, involving much larger sums, because President Alessandri, a keen student of aviation, had promised to intervene in behalf of the service. The finance ministry was instructed that aerial appropriations were to be recommended in view of improved economic conditions.

It is understood that the cheaper dollar was an important factor in causing the Lucas orders to go to the United States. In the past British manufacturers have managed to wrest the majority of Chilean plane business, especially in supplies for the fighting service.

American manufacturers first obtained a footing in supplying civil requirements and, incidentally, were helped along the way by the Prince of Wales. The British royal salesman, when on the road for the second time in Chile, remarked on the wonderful planes he was riding in. Chile promptly ordered a dozen more where the others came from—the United States.

Buy Most from Americans.

Today, nearly all the material used by civil flying services is of American origin, although originally most of the equipment was British. Americans had gradually been winning important contracts until the depression came along, and they stand to obtain most of them now that the buying ban has been removed.

The government's solicitude for and interest in the national air force is demonstrated by the fact that it was given preference over both the army and navy when money became available for foreign expenditure. It is also proved by its agreement to a series of subsidies for private air clubs to encourage civil flying.

Chile stands alone in linking her civil lines with the military system, with the war ministry in ultimate control of all aerial communications. This policy has two advantages: It keeps the pilots tuned up and insures coöperation in national defense.

DIRECT LOANS BY RFC PLANNED FOR INDUSTRY

New Scheme Provides $250,000,000.

how many new jobs could be provided? A tabulation of the answers showed $622,000,000 in loans could be used to maintain 350,000 men on the job and provide employment for about 380,000 more. He said, however, that under the bill he proposed the federal reserve could lend only $282,000,000.

District Estimates.

The estimates showed the following loan potentialities by federal reserve districts:

Chicago, $120,000,000 to $140,000,000; Boston, $20,000,000; New York, $126,000,000 to $198,000,000; Philadelphia, $17,000,000; Cleveland, $51,000,000; San Francisco, $38,000,000; Dallas, $21,000,000; Richmond, $48,000,000; Atlanta, $42,000,000; St. Louis, $40,000,000; Minneapolis, $15,000,000; Kansas City, $83,000,000.

The estimates showed these loans, he said, would provide the following new jobs: Chicago, 100,000; Boston, 18,000; New York, 46,000; Philadelphia, 24,000; Cleveland, 16,000; Richmond, 23,000; Atlanta, 28,000; St. Louis, 38,000; Minneapolis, 12,000; Kansas City, 14,000, and San Francisco, 18,000.

National Tea Earnings Below Those of Year Ago

Net earnings of the National Tea company after federal taxes for the twelve weeks ended March 24, 1934, amounted to $87,192, equivalent, after dividends on the 5½ per cent preferred stock, to 10.6 cents per share on 644,953 common shares outstanding. In the twelve weeks ended March 25, 1933, there was a net income of $339,833, or 51 cents a share on 627,736 common shares.

WHEAT RECOVERS MOST OF LOSS IN LATE TRADING

Other Grains End Day with Slight Gains.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Rain reports from the southwest which said sufficient moisture was received in the Texas panhandle to be of material benefit gave wheat a weak turn early yesterday with prices dropping ⅞ to 1⅛ cents from the previous close. Free commission house selling and local pressure was readily absorbed, however, and a rally came toward the close, final prices showing a loss of only ⅛ cent.

Corn developed independent strength with May gaining sharply. The close was ¾ to 1¼ cents higher. Oats finished ⅛ to ½ cent higher, rye was ⅜ to ½ cent higher, and barley unchanged to ⅜ cent higher.

Ignore Crop Estimates.

Little attention was paid to the estimates by Chicago statisticians suggesting a winter wheat crop of 486,000,000 bushels, or only 6,000,000 bushels less than the government returns of a month ago. All of the reports indicated an immediate need of moisture if the crop was to maintain its present promise.

General rains are now necessary in the Canadian northwest. The Lake of the Woods weekly crop summary issued at Winnipeg claimed soil drifting in the prairie provinces had never before been equaled and expressed the belief that not over 35 per cent of the spring wheat acreage had been seeded. Winnipeg closed unchanged to ¼ cent lower and Liverpool ¼ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower.

Cash Corn Demand Rises.

Demand for cash corn from the east was the best in many months, Chicago handlers reporting sales of 650,000 bushels while ship space was chartered for 500,000 bushels to Buffalo.

Removal of hedges against cash sales aided the advance in futures. The open interest in the May delivery has been reduced in a startling manner recently, the total at the close on Tuesday amounting to only 4,840,000 bushels, against 28,684,000 bushels a week ago, reflecting deliveries of 5,119,000 bushels on Tuesday. As there was 2,380,000 bushels more cash corn delivered on May contracts yesterday it was believed the open interest has been reduced to extremely small proportions.

Pessimistic reports were received from Illinois, Iowa and Missouri on the oats outlook, with rain said to be needed over a wide area. The government weekly weather report said rainfall in Iowa in April was about 40 per cent of normal, with many fields showing large patches where the seed had not germinated.

20 MILLION BUSHEL CUT IN WINTER WHEAT CROP IS ESTIMATED

Deterioration in the winter wheat crop as the result of dry weather started late in April, according to the reports issued by leading Chicago statisticians yesterday. They estimated a yield of 486,000,000 bushels, a drop of 20,000,000 from private returns of a month ago, but were only 6,000,000 bushels less than the government's April figures.

Spring wheat is making a poor start the reports indicated. Unless rain is received over a large area increased crop losses are anticipated.

The south is doing its best apparently to offset the government hog-corn production control. While a probable corn acreage of 10 per cent less than last year is indicated by returns to B. F. Snow of Bartlett-Frazier company, the reduction will be in the northern area. In the nine big cotton states the acreage promises to be increased 1,200,000. Normally these states have furnished a market for a substantial portion of the northern corn surplus.

Details of the reports follow, last six ciphers omitted in crop and acreage:

REVEAL STATUS OF TWENTY MORE DEFUNCT BANKS

15 Seek RFC Loans to Pay Creditors.

State Auditor Edward J. Barrett last night made public quarterly reports on the condition of 20 more of the 148 closed state banks in Cook county. Fifteen of the 20 reporting banks have loan applications pending with the Reconstruction Finance corporation, proceeds of which would be used for distribution to creditors.

Expenditures for attorneys' fees are entered under two items. Fees paid to Dec. 31, 1932, are listed separately and fees paid between Jan. 1, 1933, and March 31, 1934, are also shown.

Depositors State Fees Large.

The largest attorney fees paid by the reporting banks in the 15 months' period ended March 31 was that of the Depositors State bank. The firm of Altheimer, Mayer, Woods & Smith received $23,199 in fees during the period. Prior to Dec. 1, 1932, the bank had paid $32,000 in attorneys' fees.

In the case of several banks no fees were actually paid out to attorneys during the period. Where the bills are unpaid the amounts are not shown. The smallest attorney fee shown for the period among the reporting banks was for $1,250 by the Forest Park Trust and Savings bank.

Five Make No Payment.

William L. O'Connell is now in charge of 17 of the banks which reported yesterday. He is gradually supplanting the old receivers under the coördinated receivership scheme devised by Barrett.

Five of the reporting banks have made no distributions to depositors up to date. The other 15 banks have made disbursements varying from 5 to 100 per cent. The latter case is the Garard Trust and Saving, which paid off claims in full.

Bondholders' Committee

STATE OF ARKANSAS

4¼%, 4½%, 4¾%, and 5% Highway and Toll Bridge Bonds

To Holders of the above Bonds:

The Legislature of the State of Arkansas has passed an act providing for the refunding of all the outstanding State Highway indebtedness including the outstanding State Highway and Toll Bridge Bonds. Under this act the State seeks to refund its outstanding Highway and Toll Bridge Bonds by issuing in exchange therefor refunding bonds having extended maturities and bearing the rates of interest now borne by the outstanding bonds, but the interest on the refunding bonds accruing during the next five years will be paid partly in cash and partly in refunding bonds. The Highway and Toll Bridge Bonds exchanged are to be held by the Treasurer of the State of Arkansas in trust as collateral security for the refunding bonds issued to refund the principal amount of the bonds now outstanding. The principles of the proposed plan of refinancing have been unanimously approved by the undersigned Committee.

The validity of the Refunding Act was sustained by the Supreme Court of Arkansas in an opinion filed on April 30, 1934. The Refunding Board constituted by the Refunding Act has already set aside sufficient funds to meet the cash interest payment which was due April 1, 1934 on the Highway and Toll Bridge Refunding Bonds which are to be issued. This interest will be paid to holders of Refunding Bonds as rapidly as the bonds now outstanding are exchanged for Refunding Bonds. State officials estimate that such exchanges cannot be commenced for approximately another sixty days or about July 1, 1934.

This Committee is no longer receiving deposits under its Deposit Agreement, but will act as the agent for holders of outstanding Highway and Toll Bridge Bonds in effecting the exchange thereof for refunding bonds. The Chase National Bank of the City of New York has agreed to act as Escrow Agent to receive the bonds to be exchanged for refunding bonds in accordance with the terms of a Letter of Transmittal and Agency Agreement, copies of which will be furnished by the Secretary of the Committee upon request.

The details of the refunding are complicated and care should be taken to make sure that holders of the outstanding obligations receive the proper refunding bonds in exchange therefor, and that all steps to be taken by the State officials prior to the issuance of the refunding bonds have been properly completed, and that the records of the State evidence the retention of the proper surrendered bond as collateral security for the appropriate refunding bond issued in exchange therefor. For these reasons the Committee is now offering to all holders of the above securities the facilities for effecting this exchange which will be available to its depositors, who include the principal institutional holders of Arkansas bonds.

The Committee cannot undertake to act for holders of Highway and Toll Bridge Bonds other than its depositors and those who enter into agreements designating the Committee as their agent for the purpose of effecting the exchange. The proceedings in connection with the issuance of the bonds exchanged through the agency of the Committee will be examined by Thomson, Wood & Hoffman, counsel for the Committee, who will approve the validity of only those refunding bonds delivered through such agency. A copy of such approving opinion will be furnished by the Committee to its depositors and bondholders who enter into agency agreements with the Committee. The members of the Committee are acting without compensation, and accordingly the cost to bondholders exchanging through the Committee will be only the actual expenses of the Committee, including the expenses heretofore incurred. These expenses will be borne by all of the bonds deposited with the Committee or transmitted under such agency agreements proportionately and will be kept at as low a figure as possible.

For further information with reference to the refinancing proposed by the State and for copies of the Letter of Transmittal and Agency Agreement above referred to, address the Secretary of the Committee, W. D. Bradford, 115 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

LONDON WOOL.

LONDON, May 2.—(AP)—There were 7,113 bales of wool offered at the auction today, of which 4,494 were sold. More liberal amounts of greasy types were included in the fair offerings, and the tone of the market improved, the home trade being its chief supporter. German bidding was noticeably absent, but withdrawals were fewer.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was unchanged today, but refiners showed more interest and all nearby sugars available at 2.75 cents were absorbed. Holders then asked, 2.80c. The sales reported included 10,000 bags of Puerto Rican and 63,000 bags of Philippines for May arrival at 2.75c. While 50,500 bags of Philippines sold for May shipment at 2.80c, all to refiners. In addition there were sales of 8,000 bags of Cuban for May shipment at equal to 3.40c duty paid and 19,000 bags at 3.41c, to operators. Futures were more active and prices firmer on increased covering and speculative buying. Final prices were 4 to 5 points net higher. Sales, 20,800 tons.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close
May	1.48	1.48	1.48	1.48	1.45

January	1.67	1.67	1.67	1.67	1.63

Refined was unchanged at 4.30c for fine granulated, with trading only of moderate proportions and mostly in the way of withdrawals on old orders.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP)—COFFEE—Was generally lower today under trade and Brazilian selling in a small market with demand restricted. Continued poor spot demand appeared to bring in some of the selling. Santos opened unchanged to 3 points higher and closed 10 to 14 points lower. Sales, 5,000 bags. No. 7, opened 6 points lower to 2 points higher, and closed 7 to 10 points lower. Sales, 2,000 bags. Closing quotations: Santos, May, 10.65c; July, 10.78c; September, 11.14c; Decembeer, 11.26c; March, 11.33c. Rio prices follow:

STEERS ADVANCE TO $9.50, TOP MAY MARK IN 3 YEARS

Lambs Also Rise, but Hogs Hold Steady.

Higher price levels were attained by cattle and lambs yesterday, while hogs sagged back to a steady basis after a feeble attempt at a rally on opening rounds. Top steers soared to $9.50, the highest mark since October, 1932, and highest for May in three years. Lambs reached a peak of $10.35, the highest May top since 1930. Top grades of hogs were halted at $3.85.

Yesterday's rise carried top steers 146 per cent above swine and boosted top wooled lambs 168 per cent above hogs. Never in the history of the live stock markets has there been such a discrepancy in the values of live stock, and both packers and live stock growers are unanimously attributing the hog market's weakness to the processing tax, which at the current rate comprises about 38 per cent of the average price that packers pay for hogs.

Heavy Steers Highest.

Prime 1,272 pound steers sold to Insel & Insel, Inc., of Newark, N. J., established the $9.50 mark. Several carloads of cattle averaging 1,300 to 1,533 pounds brought $9.40 and about 700 weighing 1,200 to 1,631 pounds brought $9.00 and above. Nearly all the action centered in the big weights, some of the light steers and yearlings showing a weaker trend toward the close.

Few steers weighing less than 1,000 pounds were eligible to more than $8.00. Among the extreme weights were two carloads of 2,000 to 2,030 pound steers from Iowa that sold at $7.50. Butcher stock brought mostly steady to strong prices. Calves were firm.

Hog Buyers Block Rise.

Following a rise of 5 to 10 cents in the hog market early yesterday, local packers withdrew a good many buying orders until prices had settled back to about a steady basis. The best selections reached the $3.85 top, both to packers and on the account of the relief corporation. The general average at $3.70 was 5 cents above Tuesday's price.

Because of the condition of the hog market the relief corporation decided to extend the "old" contracts to May 11 to bridge the gap in buying until the new federal contracts are made ready. Bidding for the new contracts will open May 8.

Of the 12 carloads of lambs on the market yesterday, 7 carloads sold to packers at $10.35, fully 15 to 25 cents above Tuesday's quotations. Two carloads reached $10.10 and one load of shorn lambs sold at $9.

A scattering of native spring lambs sold within a range of $10 to $11. No strictly fancy springers were offered.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP)—Cotton goods were firmer today following higher prices in speculative cotton market. Curtailment of production is expected to be carried on by individual action and not by code committee arrangements in cotton and silks. Rayon yarns are steadier and fabrics are firmer with business a little more active. Silk printed goods are still the best sellers. Unfinished silks are quiet. Some inquiries for worsted dress goods for fall are considered very promising for future business for fall delivery. Burlaps were quiet and unchanged.

WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, Mass., May 2.—May day was too quiet in the wool market to please the trade, who would welcome a revival in demand.

Business is so dull that the market borders on stagnancy and prices nominally are unchanged.

MEN.

If you live on the South Side or South Side Suburbs, let me set you up in a profitable business of your own, backed up by our prosperous company.

I have been in this territory exactly seven months, and have already set one hundred and forty-six men up in business for themselves, between Cadillac, Mich., and Mattoon, Ill., and still have thirty-four opportunities left.

I am in control of this territory of a business unique in character, merchandising an electrical unit that has no competition for which there is an ever increasing demand.

If on a personal interview you can satisfy me that you are honest, reliable and trustworthy, and really have a desire to succeed, willing to study and are teachable, you may be the very man I am looking for.

Our business is very profitable. Many of our associates earning as much as $50 on percentage basis in a single day, and after they become experienced handling our business receive a sizeable monthly income, not regulated by seasons, as ours is a year around business.

Selling experience not necessary, as if you are selected you are thoroughly trained at no expense to you. Some of our most successful associates never sold anything before joining us.

We stand all the expense of your business, such as rent, light, heat, telephone, help, etc., and in addition to giving you merchandise on open account, carry all of your time payment paper.

You do not invest one cent with us. We finance everything.

Our business is depression-proof, as same has increased every month of the last four years, with 1933 our busiest year. We have thousands of satisfied customers in this territory and are considered one of the country's outstanding organizations. There are no strings connected with the offer, and if you can meet the above requirements you will be granted a personal, confidential interview, which will quickly determine our mutual interests.

Apply Thursday between 11:30 and 2:00. Suite 404 Maryland Bldg., 841 E. 63d-st. [one block east of Cottage Grove], ask for E. T. LOVELL.

THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS IN READY CASH AVAILABLE TO FINANCE ACCEPTABLE MEN IN THIS NEW AND PROFITABLE BUSINESS!

My earnings for April were equivalent to a good rate of interest on a cash investment of $132,000.00 and yet I did not put up one dime, buy goods, or make any deposit or investment. The men under my direction earned in April what would be good interest on an investment of $828,000.00 and yet they did not put up a penny. We have no business overhead such as store rent, payroll or the like, but our company finances our business and we get our comm. checks regularly and in increasing sums.

There is probably no more fascinating business than this electrical unit field without respect to past experience, because we are shoulders-deep in the world's great electrical age.

This is a job for earnest workers and men between 25 and 45 years old—polite, with character and with families. I can place just a few more North Side men and invite you to call for an interview promptly at 2:00 p. m. Thursday, May 3, in Room 215 at 1046 Wilson-av. This is permanent work and income increases are rapid.

NORTHWESTERN SUBURBAN MEN— From Edison Park to Des Plaines, Barrington, Arlington Heights, etc., I am paying over large comm. checks weekly to a number of men whom I have selected for this large company and personally trained during the last few weeks. This is not for old men or boys, or for floaters. It is a character proposition and leads in the world's specialized electric unit field.

Every man selected means a considerable investment on our part and no monetary cost on his. But if we agree I can start you to work this week!

I can talk it over with you at 2 o'clock P. M. only, Thurs., May 3, Room 6 Park Ridge State Bank Bldg., Park Ridge.

LAKE COUNTY MEN, ATTENTION! Friday, May 4, is monthly employment day for men with references, good families, with cars, not on relief, seeking permanency and big comm. returns after a reasonable start without any experience in this electric unit field. Men must be on their toes in this business and have stability. No boys or old men considered. If selected you will be assigned to or near your home community. No investment or deposit required. Come promptly Friday, May 4, at 9:00 in the morning to Deerpath Inn, Lake Forest, and ask for Mr. Goble. Don't call if you expect part time work. This demands all your time and effort. It pays accordingly.

ATTENTION MEN (3).

A large growing organization of international reputation, now well established in the American market with its famous electric unit, can use clean cut, ambitious men over 25 years and under 55, fair education and ability to make money. We train you, if you qualify. Steady work, good comm. paid to start. Floaters and ad chasers need not apply. Average earnings $30 to $75 paid weekly. Call 9 S. Kedzie, Room 329, 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. Thursday. Ask for Mr. Eckman.

UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY IN CHICAGO and midwestern cities and towns to sell and employ others to sell, guaranteed line exquisite ladies' hosiery and lingerie, men's hose, shirts, underwear, neckties. BEAUTY SHOPS

Want DeLEE

GRADUATES

Beauty shops owners know that only DeLEE students are trained in a school where the equipment is 100% new and up to date. They know that only at DeLEE do students receive personal individual instruction. Shop owners like to tell their patrons that their operators were trained under Madame Louise personally at DeLEE.

New Low Tuition

Learn for yourself exactly why DeLEE is equipped to prepare you for a better paying position in a shorter time. Come in and talk with the DeLEE Dean, Miss Ruby Lorrain Stevens, or write for the interesting illustrated book, "Your Career in Beauty Culture." [It's free.]

Enroll at DeLEE and insure yourself [1] perfect training; [2] pleasant surroundings; [3] a good paying position after graduation. At DeLEE you get "more for your money." Visit DeLEE FIRST. Henri Gordon, famous Hollywood make-up artist, will tell you how he makes up movie stars, and how this new art is taught at DeLEE.

BURNHAM

School of Beauty Culture

OFFERS OPPORTUNITIES FOUND ONLY AT BURNHAM'S

FOR 63 YEARS THE WORLD'S LARGEST BEAUTY SCHOOL.

When you visit Burnham's you'll understand why more girls enroll in this school than in any other, and you'll be amazed at the unexpected and exclusive advantages which our 63 year record of turning out the best operators enables us to pass on to you —such as positions on ocean liners, positions with the best shops which DEMAND Burnham graduates, the opportunity of earning while learning, free tools, unlimited practice on living models, easy terms, and many other advantages.

Once explained you'll see how Burnham teaching methods will enable you to master Beauty Culture quicker, easier, and better—why these methods develop the type of operator shop owners want.

If you ACT NOW you can arrange to pay most of your tuition after you graduate. Call, phone, or write for free beauty book.

BEFORE BORROWING Get the Facts About HOUSEHOLD'S REDUCED RATE ON $300 LOANS
LOANS OF $30 TO $300 MADE.
On amounts above $100 Household's charge is below the maximum rate permitted by the State Small Loan Law.
We believe we do the largest business in the Chicago area because:
1. We offer good service at reasonable cost.
2. We only make loans that are helpful to the customer.
3. We give free authentic information on managing people's incomes.
4. If desired we give free authentic information on buying economically.

HOW LOANS ARE MADE.
Household makes loans of $30 to $300 only to families, that is, to husband and wife on their signatures. They can be repaid in monthly installments over 20 months or sooner. Loans are made on the basis of the information furnished by husband and wife. We do not question your employer, your neighbors, your relatives or the people with whom you do business. All of our offices are equipped so that your business can be handled in a private room.
